Another Dillinger Bandit Convicted; 2 Given Sentence

Russell Clark Gets Life Imprisonment For Part

GANG IS BROKEN UP

Pierpont And Makley
Face Death In Electric
Chair July 13

COURTHOUSE, LIMA, Ohio, March 24.—(P)—The old Dillinger gang was formally dissolved here late today when two of its members were sentenced to die in the electric chair and a third was condemned to life imprisonment.

Harry Pierpont, brazen, defiant, and Charles Makley, roving, slow moving, will pay with their lives in the Ohio state penitentiary on Friday, July 13, for the murder of Sheriff Jess L. Sarber last October, when John Dillinger was "sprung" from the county jail by his confederates.

Sleepy-eyed Russell Clark alone was given quarter by Allen county juries. For his part in the jailbreak here he drew a verdict of guilty with mercy, obligating the court to pronounce sentence of life imprisonment.

The gang chief, the slippery John Dillinger himself, twice imprisoned and twice liberated by gunplay within seven months, is still on the loose. He walked out of the Crown Point, Ind., jail flourishing a wooden pistol three weeks ago today.

The day was filled with swift moving developments in this dingy courthouse. It began with final arguments in the Clark trial, the charge to the jury, and deliberations.

While the jury was out, Judge E. E. Everett called in Pierpont and Makley from their cells for sentence of death, made obligatory by juries who had found the two gangsters guilty of murder and did not recommend mercy. Each of the three trials took a week, and through the three weeks national guardsmen and deputies armed to the teeth with sandbag defenses and machine guns, guarded the city.

JOHN DILLINGER REPORTED SEEN

INDIANAPOLIS, March 24.—(P)—Three squads of city policemen were rushed to the west part of the city this evening when Patrolman Omer Lee reported he had seen John Dillinger going west on U. S. highway 40. Lee reported he saw Dillinger driving past the West Washington street car barns in a muddy automobile with Ohio license plates. He said he jumped on to the running board and that the man he identified as being the gangster chieftain knocked him into the street and then drove on west.

The officer was off duty at the time.

FORMER AIR HEAD DIES AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(P)—Major General George O. Squier, retired, chief of the army air service during most of the years the United States participated in the World war, died tonight at George Washington hospital, Born in Dryden, Mich., he was 69 last Tuesday.

Death came from pneumonia. He entered the hospital a week ago. Squier was in the headlines several weeks ago during investigation of an alleged racketeering scheme to raise funds for the purchase of a bust of his close friend, General John J. Pershing.

The promoter, who sought funds from 15,000 prominent Americans with letters bearing Squier's signature, was indicted on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Squier knew nothing of the way funds were being raised until his return last summer from Chicago, where he was an official of the world's fair. When complaints reached him he asked the District of Columbia United States attorney to start the investigation which resulted in the indictment of Harold M. Layton.

Woman's Mystery Death Probed In Mississippi

GULFPORT, Miss., March 24.—(P)—Harrison county officers today continued an exhaustive investigation into the mysterious death of Mrs. Mary Evans, 32, wife of David Evans, 52, whose body was found yesterday on the banks of a small stream near her home, with three razor slashes across her throat and deep gashes in her wrist. The Evans home is five miles east of Saurier.

The suicide theory first advanced yesterday when two "suicide" notes allegedly in Mrs. Evans' handwriting were found was subsequently discounted by a coroner's jury which returned a verdict of murder.

When found by workers from the federal experiment station in a dense undergrowth, the position of the body was said to have indicated that she had either fallen or had been dragged backward.

Negroes Escape After Robbing 6 Persons
Aboard Freight

TALLULAH, La., March 24.—(Special)—One white youth was seriously injured when knocked from the top of a freight train, two others were wounded by pistol shots and two others escaped injury when they engaged in a fight Friday night with two negroes who held them up and robbed them while all were riding an east-bound freight train, two miles west of Tallulah. A negro on the same car with the young white men also was robbed, but was not injured.

Fado Johnson of Natchitoches suffered a serious concussion of the brain when he fell from the train and was placed in a Tallulah hospital, where he remained unconscious for a number of hours. Later he was transferred to Natchitoches.

Virgil Robertson of Mobile, Ala., was shot in the arm and George Easley of Shreveport was shot in the hand. Norman Easley of Shreveport and Pat O'Leary of Chicago escaped unhurt. Sheriff A. J. Sevier of Tallulah said the negro robber obtained only a few cents from the white youths, but they took $5 from Will McAdams, negro, who was uninjured.

According to Sheriff Sevier, a fight started between the five white youths and the two negro robbers when one of the youths sprang upon one of the negroes while he was being searched. Had it not been for the fact that the fight occurred on top of the train the youths would have been able to overcome the negroes, they believed, but when one of them was shoved

MRS. C. SCHULZE DIES SATURDAY

Wife Of Former City
Judge Was Pioneer Resident Of Monroe

Mrs. Etha Conner Schulze, wife of Judge Charles Schulze, superintendent of the Louisiana Training institute, died at 8 o'clock last night at the family home after a prolonged illness.

Mrs. Schulze was a pioneer resident of Monroe and was widely known and highly respected. She was the daughter of the late Thomas Nathaniel and Elizabeth Lark Conner.

Surviving Mrs. Schulze, besides the husband, are four daughters, Mrs. Clyde V. Sanders and Mrs. Fred Culpepper, Monroe; Mrs. G. M. G. Stafford, Alexandria; and Mrs. Robert C. Boswell, Bristol, Tenn.; one son, William Schulze, Durham, N. C.; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Bynum, Monroe; and Mrs. Estelle Keller, Alexandria; and three grandchildren, Fred Culpepper, Jr., Martha Jean Boswell and Clyde Vernon Sanders.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night pending the arrival of relatives.

ARMS DEADLOCK MAY NOT BE UNTANGLED

LONDON, March 24.—(P)—British statesmen were represented tonight as believing there is only the faintest hope of breaking the European arms deadlock.

They expect France to show no signs of relaxing her demands for security when she replies to oral inquiries from Great Britain for an amplification of the French disarmament note published last night.

This anticipation cast gloom over Whitehall and British official quarters said they could see no reason for calling a proposed conference outside Geneva of principal powers in an effort to save the disarmament cause.

American participation in such a meeting has been suggested but the British view is that continuations of bilateral negotiations holds the only prospect—though very faint—of solving the knotty problem.

Italy Not Defaulting On War Debt, Officials Say

ROME, March 24.—(P)—Italian officials declared today their government did not consider itself as defaulting on American war debt payments and hence Secretary Morgenthau's ruling on foreign loans did not apply to Italy.

Italy made token payments on her debts in 1932 and 1933, they pointed out, and during the last five years the Italian policy has been opposed to contracting more foreign debts.

All government and industrial financing can be done without outside help, it was officially indicated.

In recent years beneficial results are said to have accrued from a home financing program and Italian leaders favor a continuation of the plan.

DEFENDED

Members of the faculty of Louisiana Tech yesterday rallied to the defense of G. W. Bond (above), president of the institution, after reputed resolutions had been made public demanding a change in the presidency.

FIVE CANDIDATES IN 6TH DISTRICT CONGRESS FIGHT

J. Y. Sanders, Jr., Flaunts
Anti-Administration
Banner

BATON ROUGE, La., March 24.—(P)—Five candidates broke from the barrier tonight in the sixth Louisiana district congressional vacancy race as the time limit for candidacy filing closed.

One flaunted the colors of opposition to the state administration, with the others running under "independent" banners.

Papers were filed with Chairman A. L. Ponder, Jr., of the Democratic district executive committee by the oppositionist, State Senator J. Y. Sanders, Jr., of Baton Rouge, and by State Commissioner of Agriculture Harry D. Wilson of Amite, John S. Nelson of Doyle, E. M. Whitman of Amite, and Murphy J. Sylvest of Franklinton, all of whom claimed freedom from factional alliance.

Just before the lists closed at midnight, Commissioner of Agriculture Wilson, latest entrant in the field, released an outline of what he called his "pro-Roosevelt and anti-factional" platform, and Whitman, Amite business man who ran third in 1932 when the late Congressman Bolivar E. Kemp, to whom a successor is to be named, was last elected, similarly set out his campaign stand.

Ralph W. McBurney of Slaughter, a previously announced aspirant for the vacancy, said he had decided not to run because of time loss and expense involved.

District voters will register their choice at a primary April 17. If a second primary proves necessary because of no candidate obtaining a majority, it will be held April 24. Governor

Long Uses Tax Reform Just As Smoke Screen

School Finance Plan Seen
As Subterfuge

Seemingly authentic reports from Baton Rouge indicate that the state school administration has resolved to place its influence squarely behind the school finance program of the Louisiana Tax Reform commission.

This is the plan with which Senator Huey P. Long toyed for several months and then discarded as inopportune.

It is now said that the senator is prepared to accept the commission program, with modifications. He doesn't want the legislature to tinker with his political machine.

Studying the psychology of the situation, the senator thinks that if he shouts loud enough for tax reform and protection of school finances, his voice will drown out the demands for economy of government.

Accordingly, Senator Long, speaking through Governor Oscar K. Allen, may be expected to shortly issue a blast in behalf of the schools, which he so sadly neglected last year, and the property taxpayers, whom he so shamefully abandoned when he turned thumbs down on the special session.

The official statement, which is expected to embrace the fiscal policies of the administration for the next two years, will probably omit all reference to the suggestions of the Louisiana Tax Reform commission for abolition of the office of supervisors of public accounts, consolidation of levee boards and reorganization of the state board of liquidation.

Or, if the senator and governor touch upon that phase of fiscal reform at all, it will probably be to say that

LOUISIANA TECH FACULTY BACKS PRESIDENT BOND

Instructors Aroused At 'Personal Opinions' Of A. A. Smith

'MASS MEET' RAPPED

Teachers Say 'Resolutions' Were Passed At Unofficial Session

RUSTON, La., March 24.—(Special)—Aroused at the "personal opinions" of A. A. Smith of Shreveport, president of the Louisiana Tech Alumni association, as expressed in connection with the publication of resolutions attacking the Tech president, G. W. Bond, several members of the college faculty have come to the defense of the institution's head. The president's defenders include all of the Tech alumni on the Tech faculty except one, who was declared.

The resolutions, proposing a change in the presidency of the college here, were made public by Mr. Smith Saturday in the Monroe Morning World and Shreveport Times. Mr. Smith was quoted in the Times as having said that "in my opinion the movement directed at President G. W. Bond of Tech is supported by an overwhelming majority of the alumni at Tech." The "alumni at Tech," it is pointed out, obviously means members of the faculty. Assuming that this was a typographical error, and that the statement intended to mean "alumni of Tech," even in that case the faculty members here declare that they disagree with the opinion.

In a statement signed by several members of the Tech faculty Saturday, all of whom are alumni of this institution, the teachers and administrative officers minimize the importance of the reported "mass meeting" held here last November, and cite irregularities in calling the meeting.

The "mass meeting" as referred to by Mr. Smith, says the faculty statement, "was held without notice and was not an official meeting of the association." The alumni secretary, D. G. Armstrong, who is director of the extension division at Tech, says he was not notified that the meeting was to be held.

Following the "mass meeting," which was held here last November, newspapers were informed and they reported that "several hundred alumni" attended the meeting. It has since been learned from reliable sources that "not more than 14 persons were present."

The resolutions adopted at this alleged unofficial meeting, which have just now been made public, are signed by three "Tech alumni," including F. C. Haley of Junction City, who is designated as "corresponding secretary" of the alumni association. The Tech faculty members of the alumni association point out that the charter of the association "does not provide for any such office as corresponding secretary."

The full statement signed by the faculty members is as follows:

"In response to the statement issued by Mr. A. A. Smith, president of the True Tabloid Tales

No. 48
Henry Lester Hughes of Natchitoches, member of the Louisiana Tax Commission, is reported to have received tax favors at the hands of the state administration. There are others, it is true, that the case of former senator, Hughes is more flagrant because of his official connection with the state body which ordered a reduction of his taxes. But the case of Senator E. M. Robinson of Union, also a "Robinson" and subsequently the collector of the state administration, likewise discloses beneficial use of a statute never intended to be employed by the Long-Allen regime has employed it.

The following letter is self-explanatory:

Baton Rouge, Feb. 26, 1934.
Hon. F. W. Murphy, Sheriff,
Parish of Union,
Farmerville, Louisiana.

Dear Sir:

Under the provisions of Act 129 of 1918, you are hereby directed and instructed to make the following reduction on your roll for the year 1933: $2,000.00 to $1,500.00.

Cut-over lands (swamp lands) deduct $450, to leave $1,050, instead of $1,500.

To leave $1,050, instead of $1,500.

This reduction is made to properly assess the above property.

This shall be your authority to make said reduction on the tax roll for the year 1933.

We are this day forwarding a copy of this letter to State Auditor Baynard and the assessor of your parish for their information and guidance.

Yours very truly,
LOUISIANA TAX COMMISSION,
By P. O. MOSS,
Chief State Assessor.

Two things should be borne in mind in connection with this reduction. First, the assessment had been made and there is no claim of error; second, the act, as issued by the tax commission was declared by three separate district judges several weeks before the writing of the above letter, not to apply to individual assessments.

THREATENED AUTO STRIKES DELAYED AS TALKS GO ON

Tension Increases During Day As Conferences
Are Held

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(P)—The automobile labor dispute narrowed today to an argument over who should receive a list of union members in the industry and the selection of a board to pass upon charges of discrimination against workers.

The threatened strike in the industry was held in abeyance while talks went ahead in Washington. Endeavoring to aid the labor representatives and manufacturers in reaching a decision, Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator, traveled from one group to the other. The White House door was open to both sides if they desired further suggestions from President Roosevelt.

The tension increased during the day and there were acrid statements from both sides. The manufacturers charged labor was attempting to dominate industry and that the names of union members should be furnished the employers with an impartial board to pass upon grievances. The labor men said they would supply such a list to a government representative.

In another quarter of the city, Joseph B. Eastman, the railroad coordinator, was trying to settle the railroad wage dispute. After putting a proposal before railroad managers, he went to labor representatives today with the same plan. Details of the proposal were not made public.

Julian Dies At Chinese City; Suicide Is Seen

SHANGHAI, March 23.—(Sunday)—(P)—C. C. Julian, former Oklahoma oil operator wanted there on mail fraud charges, died suddenly today. Physicians said death was caused by poison and they believed he had committed suicide.

They said he took poison at 1 a. m. and died from its effects five hours later. A girl associate whose identity was not established also attempted to kill herself, they said. She is still alive.

ROGERS HAS HIS SAY

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., March 24.—(Special)—Well, there ain't many Republicans left, and the good ones of them are dying off. Lost a good one, and a fine friend, Fred Balzer, cow-puncher, rail-roader, and miner. A real two-fisted governor of the most independent state in our Union, Nevada. He drove out to see me when down here a few weeks ago, and brought me a quilt. I knew it was his last trip, and he did, too, but he never flinched. You would love Nevada; it's the west without dressing up to look the part. The heart of cotton and a hole in the ground made it a unique state. And a long rista and a pick keep it a unique state.

PRESIDENT NAMES POSTMASTERS FOR TWO LOCAL TOWNS

Winnsboro; Mrs. Davenport For Mer Rouge

Nominations by President Roosevelt of two postmasters to serve in towns in parishes in the Monroe area were announced in an Associated Press dispatch Saturday night from Washington. The nominations were sent to the senate for confirmation. Nominees included Mrs. Leonard C. Davenport for the Republic at Mer Rouge and Neil D. Womble for the postoffice at Winnsboro.

If Mr. Womble's appointment is confirmed he will replace T. C. Reagan, Sr., said to be serving as a "holder-over" postmaster from the Republican administration. Mr. Reagan was said to have been registered as a Republican during the previous administration, but it was stated that he is now registered as a Democrat.

Mr. Womble served one four-year term as postmaster, but went out when a Republican administration went into office. He is connected with

ANOTHER COLD WAVE VISITS TWIN CITIES

Again the weather man showed that March is his favorite month for dishing out just about every type of weather in the category when another siege of cold descended upon the Twin Cities Friday night on the heels of intermittent showers.

After the mercury Friday had climbed to summer heights, it began its descent late that night and was registered at 50 degrees early Saturday morning. At 6 p. m. yesterday the temperature had receded to 41 degrees with indications that it would go still lower during the night.

Little immediate relief from the cold was seen in the official forecast which predicted colder weather from the Rio Grande valley to Florida. However, rising temperatures in the south were promised after the week-end.

Rains generally accompanied the reappearance of lower mercury readings and snow, reported yesterday in some of the mid-story when another siege of cold descended upon the Twin Cities Friday night on the heels of intermittent showers.

With thermometers showing a drop yesterday, today's forecast was "colder" from the Rio Grande valley to Florida.

There were indications, however, that the visitation would be short-lived in the south, the official weather outlook indicating rising temperatures after the week-end.

Girl's Attacker Slain In Attempt To Escape

ALEXANDRIA, La., March 24.—(P)—Arrested for assaulting a young white woman, Donaldson Butler, 21-year-old negro, early today was shot and fatally wounded by officers who said he had attempted to wrest a pistol from a deputy.

The young woman was assaulted late last night on a street in Bunkie, near here, while she was out walking with a sister. She suffered a broken arm and other injuries. The negro was arrested shortly afterwards and identified by the attack victim.

Deputies said Butler was then placed in an automobile to be taken to the Marksville jail and that he attacked one of the officers en route in an effort to grab a pistol. Another officer then shot and fatally wounded the prisoner. He died in the Avoyelles parish jail shortly afterward.

Fire Causes Worst Disaster In History Of Lynchburg, Va.

STARTS AT HOT STOVE

Flames Spread Through Former Store With Astounding Speed

LYNCHBURG, Va., March 24.—(P)—Those responsible for the management of the transient bureau here were held blameless in the burning to death of 14 transients today by Alan Johnstone, federal relief investigator.

LYNCHBURG, Va., March 24.—(P)—The red flames of death swept through the federal transient relief bureau before dawn today and fourteen lonely wanderers perished in the raging inferno.

Seventy-five others, whites and negroes, were either burned or hurt as they leaped to the street from upper windows as the flames, starting from a stove boiling over a hot stove, swept through the former furniture store with almost incredible speed. Approximately 100 escaped uninjured and scantily clad into frigid atmosphere and snow-covered streets.

Eight of the dead were white and five negroes—the race of the other charred victims could not be determined.

The dead, addresses unavailable, were:

Whites—James Alexander, Jack Swift, Howard Lloyd, James Lewis, Robert Adams, James Roberts, Walter H. Moore and one unidentified.

Negroes—James Miller, William Lewis, Willie Williams, Willie Brooks and Frank Stuart.

The holocaust was the worst disaster in Lynchburg's history; the old three-story brick building at Twelfth and Church streets—a federal haven for wanderers broken by the depression—became the funeral pyre of 14. The walls stood, but the interior was gutted.

Every ambulance in the city as well as trucks and private cars were brought into use over the ice-covered streets, taking the victims to hospitals, and doctors and nurses were rushed to the scene—a scene of horror as the flames shed an eerie light over the snow-covered city.

The trapped inmates were panicked at the alarm, some seeking to tear down a high board wall which surrounded the windows of the sleeping quarters, others leaping in desperation to the street 15 feet below and still others swinging down by sheet-covered wires. Several suffered broken arms and legs and other hurts. Floors at the rear of the building collapsed within ten minutes after fire trucks arrived.

PHILIPPINE MEASURE SIGNED BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(P)—With a flourish of his pen, President Roosevelt today wrote upon the statute books a plan for the complete freedom of the Philippine islands in 1945 or soon thereafter.

To the click of cameras and in the presence of authors of the measure and members of the Philippine independence mission here, the president shortly after noon signed the McDuffie-Tydings independence law passed this week, and Philippine leaders announced immediately it would be accepted on May 1 by their legislature. Blowing of whistles and ringing of bells greeted news of the action in Manila.

"This is a great day for you and for me," the president told President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippine senate, adding that if invited he would attend the inaugural ceremonies 10 to 12 years hence.

This anticipation cast gloom over Whitehall, and British official quarters said they could see no reason for calling a proposed conference outside Geneva of principal powers in an effort to save the disarmament cause.

American participation in such a meeting has been suggested but the British view is that continuations of bilateral negotiations holds the only prospect—though very faint—of solving the knotty problem.

Italy Not Defaulting On War Debt, Officials Say

ROME, March 24.—(P)—Italian officials declared today their government did not consider itself as defaulting on American war debt payments and hence Secretary Morgenthau's ruling on foreign loans did not apply to Italy.

Italy made token payments on her debts in 1932 and 1933, they pointed out, and during the last five years the Italian policy has been opposed to contracting more foreign debts.

All government and industrial financing can be done without outside help, it was officially indicated. In recent years beneficial results are said to have accrued from a home financing program and Italian leaders favor a continuation of the plan.

FIVE CANDIDATES IN 6TH DISTRICT CONGRESS FIGHT

J. Y. Sanders, Jr., Flaunts Anti-Administration Banner

BATON ROUGE, La., March 24.—(P)—Five candidates broke from the barrier tonight in the sixth Louisiana district congressional vacancy race as the time limit for candidacy filing closed.

One flaunted the colors of opposition to the state administration, with the others running under "independent" banners.

Papers were filed with Chairman A. L. Ponder, Jr., of the Democratic district executive committee by the oppositionist, State Senator J. Y. Sanders, Jr., of Baton Rouge, and by State Commissioner of Agriculture Harry D. Wilson of Amite, John S. Nelson of Doyle, E. M. Whitman of Amite, and Murphy J. Sylvest of Franklinton, all of whom claimed freedom from factional alliance.

Just before the lists closed at midnight, Commissioner of Agriculture Wilson, latest entrant in the field, released an outline of what he called his "pro-Roosevelt and anti-factional" platform, and Whitman, Amite business man who ran third in 1932 when the late Congressman Bolivar E. Kemp, to whom a successor is to be named, was last elected, similarly set out his campaign stand.

Ralph W. McBurney of Slaughter, a previously announced aspirant for the vacancy, said he had decided not to run because of time loss and expense involved.

District voters will register their choice at a primary April 17. If a second primary proves necessary because of no candidate obtaining a majority, it will be held April 24. Governor

Long Uses Tax Reform Just As Smoke Screen

Expected Approval Of School Finance Plan Seen As Subterfuge

Seemingly authentic reports from Baton Rouge indicate that the state school administration has resolved to place its influence squarely behind the school finance program of the Louisiana Tax Reform commission.

This is the plan with which Senator Huey P. Long toyed for several months and then discarded as inopportune.

It is now said that the senator is prepared to accept the commission program, with modifications. He doesn't want the legislature to tinker with his political machine.

Studying the psychology of the situation, the senator thinks that if he shouts loud enough for tax reform and protection of school finances, his voice will drown out the demands for economy of government.

Accordingly, Senator Long, speaking through Governor Oscar K. Allen, may be expected to shortly issue a blast in behalf of the schools, which he so sadly neglected last year, and the property taxpayers, whom he so shamefully abandoned when he turned thumbs down on the special session idea.

The official statement, which is expected to embrace the fiscal policies of the administration for the next two years, will probably omit all reference to the suggestions of the Louisiana Tax Reform commission for abolition of the office of supervisor of public accounts, consolidation of levee boards and reorganization of the state board of liquidation.

LOUISIANA TECH FACULTY BACKS PRESIDENT BOND

Instructors Aroused At 'Personal Opinions' Of A. A. Smith

Teachers Say 'Resolutions' Were Passed At Unofficial Session

RUSTON, La., March 24.—(Special)—Aroused at the "personal opinions" of A. A. Smith of Summerfield, president of the Louisiana Tech Alumni association, as expressed in connection with the publication of resolutions attacking the Tech president, G. W. Bond, several members of the college faculty have come to the defense of the institution's head. The president's defenders include all of the Tech alumni on the Tech faculty except one, it was declared.

The resolutions, proposing a change in the presidency of the college here, were made public by Mr. Smith Saturday in the Monroe Morning World and Shreveport Times. Mr. Smith was quoted in the Times as having said that "in my opinion the movement directed at President G. W. Bond of Tech is supported by an overwhelming majority of the alumni at Tech."

The "alumni at Tech" it is pointed out, obviously means members of the faculty. Assuming that this was a typographical error, and that the statement intended to mean "alumni of Tech," even in that case the faculty members here declare that they disagree with the opinion.

In a statement signed by several members of the Tech faculty Saturday, all of whom are alumni of this institution, the teachers and administrative officers minimize the importance of the reported "mass meeting" held here last November, and cite irregularities in calling the meeting.

"The 'mass meeting' as referred to by Mr. Smith," says the faculty statement, "was held without notice and was not an official meeting of the association." The alumni secretary, D. G. Armstrong, who is director of the extension division at Tech, says he was not notified that the meeting was to be held.

Following the "mass meeting," which was held last November, newspapers were informed and they reported that "several hundred alumni" attended the meeting. It has since been learned from reliable sources that "not more than 14 persons were present."

THREATENED AUTO STRIKES DELAYED AS TALKS GO ON

Tension Increases During Day As Conferences Are Held

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(P)—The automobile labor dispute narrowed today to an argument over who should receive a list of union members in the industry and the selection of a board to pass upon charges of discrimination against workers.

The threatened strike in the industry was held in abeyance while talks went ahead in Washington. Endeavoring to aid the labor representatives and manufacturers in reaching a decision, Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator, traveled from one group to the other. The White House door was open to both sides if they desired further suggestions from President Roosevelt.

The tension increased during the day and there were acrid statements from both sides. The manufacturers charged labor was attempting to dominate industry and that the names of union members should be furnished to the employers with an impartial board to pass upon grievances. The labor men said they would supply such a list to a government representative.

In another quarter of the city, Joseph B. Eastman, the railroad coordinator, was trying to settle the railroad wage dispute. After putting a proposal before railroad managers, he went to labor representatives to day with the same plan. Details of the proposal were not made public.

ROGERS HAS HIS SAY

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., March 24.—(Special)—Well, there ain't many Republicans left, and the good ones of them are dying off. Lost a good one, and a fine friend, Fred Balzer, cow-puncher, railroad and miner. A real two-fisted governor of the most independent state in our Union, Nevada. He drove out to see me when down here a few weeks ago, and brought me a quilt. I knew it was his last trip, and he did, too, but he never flinched. You would love Nevada; it's the west without dressing up to look the part. A herd of cows and a hole in the ground made it a unique state. And a long vista and a pick keep it a unique state.

PRESIDENT NAMES POSTMASTERS FOR TWO LOCAL TOWNS

Womble Chosen For Winooski; Mrs. Davenport For Mer Rouge

Nominations by President Roosevelt of two postmasters to serve in towns in parishes in the Monroe area were announced in an Associated Press dispatch Saturday night from Washington. The nominations were sent to the senate for confirmation. Nominees included Mrs. Leonard C. Davenport for the postoffice at Mer Rouge and Neil D. Womble for the postoffice at Winooski.

If Mr. Womble's appointment is confirmed he will replace T. C. Reagan, Sr., said to be serving as a "holder-over" postmaster from the Republican administration. Mr. Reagan was said to have been registered as a Republican during the previous administration, but it was stated that he is now registered as a Democrat.

Mr. Womble served one four-year term as postmaster, but went out when a Republican administration went into office. He is connected with

ANOTHER COLD WAVE VISITS TWIN CITIES

Again the weather man showed that March is his favorite month for dish-ing out just about every type of weather in the category when another siege of cold descended upon the Twin Cities Friday night on the heels of intermittent showers.

After the mercury Friday had climbed to summer heights, it began its descent late that night and was registered at 59 degrees early Saturday morning. At 6 p.m. yesterday the temperature had receded to 41 degrees with indications that it would go still lower during the night.

Little immediate relief from the cold was seen in the official forecast which predicted colder weather from the Rio Grande valley to Florida. However, rising temperatures in the south were promised after the weekend.

Rains generally accompanied the appearance of lower mercury readings and snow reported yesterday in some of the middle Atlantic states and in Colorado, Wyoming, Kansas and Missouri, was threatened as far south as north Mississippi, north Alabama and west Texas.

With thermometers showing a drop yesterday, today's forecast was "colder" from the Rio Grande valley to Florida.

There were indications, however, that the visitation would be short-lived in the south, the official weather outlook indicating rising temperatures after the week-end.

Girl's Attacker Slain In Attempt To Escape

ALEXANDRIA, La., March 24.—(P)—Arrested for assaulting a young white woman, Donaldson Butler, 21-year-old negro, early today was shot and fatally wounded by officers who said he had attempted to wrest a pistol from a deputy.

The young woman was assaulted late last night on a street in Bunkie, near here, while she was out walking with a sister. She suffered a broken arm and other injuries. The negro was arrested shortly afterwards and identified by the attack victim.

Deputies said Butler was then placed in an automobile to be taken to the Marksville jail and that he attacked one of the officers en route in an effort to grab a pistol. Another officer then shot and fatally wounded the prisoner. He died in the Avoyelles parish jail shortly afterward.

LEGION AUXILIARY'S BOOK CONTEST FOR CHILDREN

The contest sponsored by the Bark-dull Faulk unit of the American Legion has stimulated much interest on the part of children throughout Ouachita parish. The above picture shows a display in the windows of the Palace store, which is the basis of the contest. The display has been moved to the Monroe public library to make it easily accessible to the young contestants.

Under the rules of the contest children of grades 1 to 4 are entitled to enter for one of the two prizes offered. Children in grades 5 to 8 are competing for the other prize. The rules are simple. Many of the figures in the foreground of the display are numbered. Each of these designated figures characterizes the name of some book, interesting to children. Contestants are expected to write the number of the "book friend" indicated, and to follow the number with the title of the book. For instance, in the display number 1 is "The Gingerbread Man." Each number denotes some "book friend." Books appropriate to the grade of the prize winner will be awarded at the close of the contest. The contestant in each division who turns in the largest number of correct answers will be awarded the prize. The contest closes Saturday, April 30. Answers should be sent to the "Book Friend Contest," Monroe public library.

Rover Got His Medicine On Time, Gibbs Assisting

Although it was almost noon, Henry Gibbs, superintendent of maintenance of city schools, slumbered soundly. It was Sunday, and he was taking his day of rest seriously. Moreover, this particular morning was comfortably cool, and the warmth of his bed was conducive to deep, untroubled sleep. His countenance was in benign repose. He was apparently at peace with the universe.

But, like all things good, this couldn't continue indefinitely. It had to end. And, like most things worth while, the termination was abrupt. Suddenly, Gibbs' apartment was filled with dissonance. It was a monotonous discord, an alternation of noise and silence, a metallic vibration at brief, regular intervals.

Finally, the clamor pierced Gibbs' consciousness. And when it did, his first impulse—instinctively protective—was to smother it. He drew the blankets about his ears. This manner, however, was unavailing. The insistent clangor continued to prod him.

Unwillingly, Gibbs gave up the battle against wakefulness. Extending his arm above his head, he stretched himself. He then rubbed his eyes hurriedly with the heels of his hands and, despite the uproar, indulged in an abbreviated yawn. Whereupon, he sought the source of the disturbance with his half-awakened senses.

The telephone was ringing imperatively. Jumping from his bed, Gibbs hastened groggily toward it. In the brief space of time he required to reach it, he debated with himself as to the importance of the call. If it was concerning some minor matter, he was going to be plenty mad, he told himself.

With a glint in his eyes that indicated an impulse to throttle the cause of his discomfort, Gibbs, with an angry gesture, jerked the receiver from its hook and clapped it to his ear. He directed a hoarse, sleep-laden "hello" into the mouthpiece. The response from the other end of the line was an inquiry in an anxious feminine voice.

"Is that Mr. Gibbs?"

"Yes," replied the maintenance superintendent.

"Well, this is Mrs. Soandso," the voice informed him, adding without a perceptible pause, "and you've just got to help me! It's a matter of grave importance!" he was emphatically told.

"Yes, m'am," Gibbs answered, his curiosity aroused. "What can I do?" he requested with mingled solicitude and interest.

A barrage of exclamatory sentences informed him.

"I forgot a bottle of medicine in the Central grammar school auditorium! That's where our Sunday school class meets! I walked off and left it in my seat! I hurried back to the building as soon as I missed it, but the janitor had already locked the door! I've just got to get that bottle! I've got to give a dose out of it at noon! It's very important that I give it! I've just got—"

Envisioning a case of life and death, Gibbs interrupted the pleading explanation.

"I'll be down right away! Meet me at the school door!" he called excitedly into the mouthpiece as he clicked the receiver into its hook.

In mad haste, he literally jumped into a few essential garments. Then, without pause, he rushed headlong to his garage. Into the seat of his automobile he sprang. Not a moment elapsed before he jammed home the starter pedal. As the motor sputtered rebelliously, he slammed the shift lever into reverse. The car careened jerkily in its backward course into the street.

Carload Shipment To Be Made To Government Agency

Farmers of Ouachita parish who desire to participate in the filling of an order for a carload of cane or sorghum syrup to be sold to the federal surplus relief corporation may list before Wednesday the number of gallons they wish to dispose of with Mark W. Stroud, at 112 1-2 North Grand street, E. R. Strahan, parish agricultural agent, announced Saturday.

As soon as Mr. Stroud is furnished with the address and name of each farmer with surplus syrup for sale he will determine the number of gallons each producer may place in the first carload shipment and notify him when to deliver the syrup, Mr. Strahan said.

The requirements are that the syrup shall be of high grade, open kettle, standard quality, the kind that is made on most of the farms in the parish. The syrup must be put up in 10-gallon pails.

Mr. Stroud, who is the local representative of the Louisiana Farm Bureau federation, will furnish the cartons and labels and supervise the assembling, labeling, packing and loading. The price per gallon, whatever the contract will specify, will be net to the farmer. It is expected that the price will be about 50 cents per gallon for good quality cane syrup and 45 cents per gallon for sorghum syrup.

A recent preliminary survey, Mr. Strahan said, indicated that at least five carloads of syrup could be offered by farmers of Ouachita parish. Any farmer who made a tentative offer at the time of the survey should disregard that offer and make a new offer now, the parish agent said.

Farmers may mail letters or postcards to Mr. Stroud, giving the quality and quantity of the syrup they have to offer and they will be notified later of the date of the shipment.

MAN WHO ESCAPED IN AIRSHIP CRASH ONCE LIVED HERE

Captain Harold Harris, a vice president of the Pan-American Grace airline, a part of the Pan-American airways, who escaped injury in a fatal airplane crash at Lima, Peru, Thursday, spent several years in Monroe as an employee of an airplane concern which operated cotton dusters, according to Barney Oakland, a company official here, who was well acquainted with Harris.

Mr. Oakland said that Harris, who assisted in locating flood victims here during the flood of 1927, was credited with being the first member of the "Caterpillar club," organization composed of fliers who have been forced to "bail out" and save their lives by descending in parachutes. Records show that Harris was the first man in America, and probably the first in the world, to save his life by descending in a parachute after his plane had "cracked up."

While Harris was in Monroe he bore the rank of an army lieutenant. Most of the fliers used by the air dusting companies were either retired or reserve army officers and Harris was among this number.

In the April 8, 1928, issue of the New Orleans Item-Tribune, an entire page is devoted to a story and pictures of the way in which Mr. Oakland and Harris located flood victims from a plane. With Harris at the controls, Mr. Oakland operated a clinometer and in this way determined the exact location of stranded flood victims after they had been sighted. After locations of the flood victims had been determined information was dropped to ground crews in order that they might make rescues, while the men in the plane continued their search for those surrounded by water and with no means of escape.

Although Harris was not hurt in the crash, three persons were killed and a number of others among the 12 on board, including the Chilean ambassador to the United States, were injured.

LEGION AUXILIARY'S BOOK CONTEST FOR CHILDREN

The contest sponsored by the Bark-dull Faulk unit of the American Legion has stimulated much interest on the part of children throughout Oua-
a display in the windows of the Palace store, which is the basis of the contest. The display has been moved to the Monroe public library to make it easily accessible to the young contestants.

Under the rules of the contest children of grades 1 to 4 are entitled to enter for one of the two prizes offered. Children in grades 5 to 8 are competing for the other prize. The rules are simple. Many of the figures in the foreground of the display are numbered. Each of these displayed figures characterizes the name of some book, interesting to children.
Contestants are expected to write the number of the "book friend" indicated, and to follow the number with

Rover Got His Medicine On Time, Gibbs Assisting

Although it was almost noon, Henry Gibbs, superintendent of maintenance of city schools, slumbered soundly. It was Sunday, and he was taking his day of rest seriously. Moreover, this particular morning was comfortably cool, and the warmth of his bed was conducive to deep, untroubled sleep.
His countenance was in benign repose. He was apparently at peace with the universe.

But, like all things good, this couldn't continue indefinitely. It had to end. And, like most things worthwhile, the termination was abrupt.
Suddenly, Gibbs' apartment was filled with dissonance. It was a monotonous discord, an alteration of noise and silence, a metallic vibration at brief, regular intervals.

Finally, the clamor pierced Gibbs' consciousness. And when it did, his first impulse—instinctively protective —was to smother it. He drew the blankets about his ears. This maneuver, however, was unavailing. The insistent clangor continued to prod him.

Unwillingly, Gibbs gave up the battle against wakefulness. Extending his arm above his head, he stretched himself. He then rubbed his eyes hurriedly with the heels of his hands and, despite the uproar, indulged in an abbreviated yawn. Whereupon, he sought the source of the disturbance with his half-awakened senses.

The telephone was ringing imperatively. Jumping from his bed, Gibbs hastened groggily toward it. In the brief space of time he required to reach it, he debated with himself as to the importance of the call. If it was concerning some minor matter, he was going to be plenty mad, he told himself.

With a glint in his eyes that indicated an impulse to throttle the cause of his discomfort, Gibbs, with an angry gesture, jerked the receiver from its hook and clapped it to his ear. He directed a hoarse, sleep-laden "hello" into the mouthpiece. The response from the other end of the line was an inquiry in an anxious feminine voice.

"Is that Mr. Gibbs?"
"Yes," replied the maintenance superintendent.
"Well, this is Mrs. Soandso," the voice informed him, adding without a perceptible pause, "and you've just got to help me! It's a matter of grave importance!" he was emphatically told.

"Yes, m'am," Gibbs answered, his curiosity aroused. "What can I do?"
he requested with mingled solicitude and interest.

A barrage of exclamatory sentences informed him.

"I forgot a bottle of medicine in the Central grammar school auditorium! That's where our Sunday school class meets! I walked off and left it in my seat! I hurried back to the building as soon as I missed it, but the janitor had already locked the door! I've just got to get that bottle! I've got to give a dose out of it at noon! It's very important that I give it! I've just got—"

Envisioning a case of life and death, Gibbs interrupted the pleading explanation.

"I'll be down right away! Meet me at the school door!" he called excitedly into the mouthpiece as he clicked the receiver into its hook.

In mad haste, he literally jumped into a few essential garments. Then, without pause, he rushed headlong to his garage. Into the seat of his automobile he sprang. Not a moment elapsed before he jammed home the starter pedal. As the motor sputtered rebelliously, he slammed the shift lever into reverse. The car careened jerkily in its backward course into the street.

MAN WHO ESCAPED IN AIRSHIP CRASH ONCE LIVED HERE

Captain Harold Harris, a vice president of the Pan-American Grace airline, a part of the Pan-American airways, who escaped injury in a fatal airplane crash at Lima, Peru, Thursday, spent several years in Monroe as an employee of an airplane company which operated cotton dusters, according to Barney Oakland, Gas company official here, who was well acquainted with Harris.

Mr. Oakland said that Harris, who assisted in locating flood victims here during the flood of 1927, was credited with being the first member of the "Caterpillar club," organization composed of fliers who have been forced to "bail out" and save their lives by descending in parachutes. Records show that Harris was the first man in America, and probably the first in the world, to save his life by descending in a parachute after his plane had "cracked up."

While Harris was in Monroe he bore the rank of an army lieutenant. Most of the fliers used by the air dusting companies were either retired or reserve army officers and Harris was among this number.

In the April 8, 1928, issue of the New Orleans Item-Tribune, an entire page is devoted to a story and pictures of the way in which Mr. Oakland and Harris located flood victims from a plane. With Harris at the controls, Mr. Oakland operated a clin-ometer and in this way determined the exact location of stranded flood victims after they had been sighted.

After locations of the flood victims had been determined information was dropped to ground crews in order that they might make rescues, while the men in the plane continued their search for those surrounded by water and with no means of escape.

Although Harris was not hurt in the crash, three persons were killed and a number of others among the 12 on board, including the Chilean ambassador to the United States, were injured.

Carload Shipment To Be Made To Government Agency

Farmers of Ouachita parish who desire to participate in the filling of an order for a carload of cane or sorghum syrup to be sold to the federal surplus relief corporation may list before Wednesday the number of gallons they wish to dispose of with Mark W. Stroud, at 112 1-2 North Grand street, E. R. Strahan, parish agricultural agent, announced Saturday.

As soon as Mr. Stroud is furnished with the address and name of each farmer with surplus syrup for sale he will determine the number of gallons each producer may place in the first carload shipment and notify him when to deliver the syrup, Mr. Str-ahan said.

The requirements are that the syrup shall be of high grade, open kettle, standard quality, the kind that is made on most of the farms in the parish. The syrup must be put up in 10-gallon pails.

Mr. Stroud, who is the local representative of the Louisiana Farm Bureau federation, will furnish the cartons and labels and supervise the assembling, labeling, packing and loading. The price per gallon, whatever the contract will specify, will be net to the farmer. It is expected that the price will be about 50 cents per gallon for good quality cane syrup and 45 cents per gallon for sorghum syrup.

A recent preliminary survey, Mr.
Strahan said, indicated that at least five carloads of syrup could be offered by farmers of Ouachita parish.
Any farmer who made a tentative offer at the time of the survey should disregard that offer and make a new offer now, the parish agent said.

Farmers may mail letters or postcards to Mr. Stroud, giving the quality and quantity of the syrup they have to offer and they will be notified later of the date of the shipment.

FIRST AID WORK USED IN MISHAP

Life Of Negro Believed Saved By Stopping Flow Of Blood

Recent first aid courses conducted among CWA foremen and timekeepers not only has resulted in a sharp decline in number of accidents, but probably caused the saving of the life of a negro worker Wednesday, it was stated Saturday by B. S. Vaughan, Ouachita parish safety director, under F. E. Hundley, district safety director.

While working among a crew of men engaged in clearing work on Bayou Deslaur, the negro, Robert Minnweather, fell backward on one blade of a double-bitted axe and a deep gash was cut across the palm of his right hand, severing an artery. It was stated that if the negro had not been given first aid treatment he would have bled to death within 20 minutes, or before he could have been taken to a physician.

The accident occurred while the negro was cutting underbrush while standing in a boat. He had cut loose several limbs and had stuck one blade of the axe into a rib of the boat while he tried to pull the limbs away. When his hold slipped he naturally threw his hands backward to catch himself and one of them struck the upper blade of the axe.

A severed artery in the palm of the hand is said to be one of the most difficult to stop from bleeding. But Clarence Evans, foreman of the crew, had recently completed a first aid course and he immediately made practical use of the information he had received by taking proper steps to stop the bleeding.

When the negro was taken to the clinic for treatment, a physician commented upon the excellent first aid job that had been done and said it probably had saved the negro's life. Since the first aid courses were conducted about four weeks ago and were passed by 54 foremen and timekeepers there have been only three loss-of-time accidents, among CWA workers in the parish, despite the fact that approximately 1,000 have been working, Mr. Vaughan said. Prior to that time accidents had been a serious problem, with from eight to 10 loss-of-time accidents occurring each week. Barney Oakland, qualified Red Cross life-saving instructor, assisted in conducting the courses.

Lake Pontchartrain Thought Contracting

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—(P)—Lake Pontchartrain, whose waters were formally as salty as the gulf of Mexico, is contracting in size and passing into a fresh water stage, it was declared here by Professor R. A. Steinmayer, of the department of geology at Tulane university, in his paper read last night before the annual meeting of the New Orleans Academy of Sciences.

The lake furnishes the northern boundary of New Orleans and has connection with Mississippi Sound on the east through Lake Borgne. It is 40.8 miles in length and approximately 23 miles wide with an area of 635 square miles.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Miss Bliss Johnson, Ouachita parish high school student, underwent an emergency operation at 5 p. m. Saturday at Mosely's clinic.

Republican Factions Clash Over Election

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 24.—(P)—"Lily white" and "black and tan" Republicans clashed over the election of a county chairman here today and their organization meeting broke up in disorder after a negro lawyer smashed a lamp.

Men shouted and women screamed, and the chairman of the meeting made a hasty exit.

The "lily white" group, led by John E. McCall, former state American Legion commander and Republican candidate for governor in 1932, emerged victorious with the election of Dr. Carroll Morgan as chairman, but there were indications his election would be contested at later meetings.

Bob Church, negro Republican real estate dealer, heads the other group of Republicans.

North Carolina State college estimates the gross income of farmers in that state was $200,000,000 last year.

Crescent chapter No. 64, Order of Eastern Star, met at their hall in regular semi-monthly session. This being set apart for the social program, a large number of visitors were present. The chapter is enthusiastic since Mrs. Ella McDowell, a member of the chapter was appointed district deputy grand worthy matron by Mrs. Carrie Goff, grand worthy matron, at the recent session of the grand chapter at Alexandria. After the business was transacted several members spoke of the inspiration gained by attending the grand chapter meeting. A social hour was enjoyed with stunts and games directed by Mrs. R. Bloch and Mrs. Pearl Howard, after which a salad course was served.

The Eveready circle of the M. E. Missionary society met in the home of Mrs. E. L. Thompson with 11 members present.

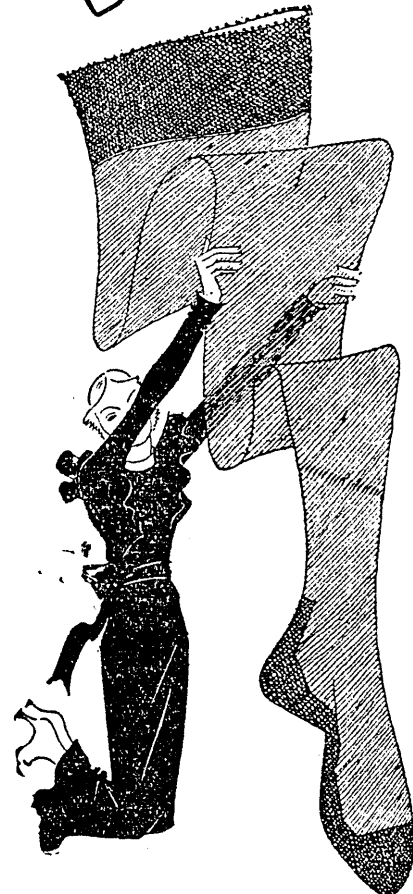

The Ruth Brown circle met in the home of Mrs. V. L. Brumfield with 11 members present. In the absence of Mrs. Cox, chairman of the circle, Mrs. Fred Calloway opened the meeting by giving the devotional.

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—(P)—Lake Pontchartrain, whose waters were formerly as salty as the gulf of Mexico, is contracting in size and passing into a fresh water stage, it was declared here by Professor R. A. Steinmayer, of the department of geology at Tulane university, in his paper read last night before the annual meeting of the New Orleans Academy of Sciences.

The lake furnishes the northern boundary of New Orleans and has connection with Mississippi Sound on the east through Lake Borgne. It is 40.8 miles in length and approximately 23 miles wide with an area of 635 square miles.

Republican Factions Clash Over Election

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 24.—(P)—"Lily white" and "black and tan" Republicans clashed over the election of a county chairman here today and their organization meeting broke up in disorder after a negro lawyer smashed a lamp.

Men shouted and women screamed, and the chairman of the meeting made a hasty exit. The "lily white" group, led by John E. McCall, former state American Legion commander and Republican candidate for governor in 1932, emerged victorious with the election of Dr. Carroll Morgan as chairman, but there were indications his election would be contested at later meetings.

Bob Church, negro Republican real estate dealer, heads the other group of Republicans.

STARS OF FLYING ACES

Pictured here are Miss Jessie Martin and Carl Winstead, two of the stars with the Flying Aces, who stage their aerial circus at the airport this afternoon. Miss Martin will thrill with her famous death-ride in which she stands on the top wing while the pilot puts the plane through a series of loops and barrel-rolls. Winstead in another thriller puts on a complete stunting exhibition with his motor shut off at all times.

Big Air Circus Is Slated In Monroe This Afternoon

What is declared to be the biggest and best show of its kind ever to be staged here will open this afternoon at Selman airport when the Flying Aces of Wichita, Kansas, stage their aerial circus under the auspices of the American Legion and Forty and Eight.

Fifteen women and men pilots will take part in the fifteen-act program that is to start at 3 o'clock, with one of the features of the afternoon a 10,000 foot delayed parachute drop by Herb Bassett. As he leaves the two-mile high plane he will release a streamer of flour to enable spectators to watch his downward plunge to earth. In another feature, and one never before seen here, C. W. Whitteback will execute several outside and inverted loops as well as do figure eights and completely circle the airport while flying on his back. Jessie Martin, a 22-year-old miss, will thrill with her daring "death-ride" in which she stands on the top wing of a plane while the pilot loops and barrel-rolls with her.

Other pilots and performers will entertain with stunting contests, stunting with motors completely shut off, serpentine cutting and ballooning contests, bombing of an automobile from the air, formation flights and many other thrills.

So that there be not even one "dead spot" several ground attractions will be staged, including one in which Cunningham, the "Human Torpedo," rides a speeding motorcycle through a solid inch board wall staked down on the field in front of the audience.

All department of commerce safety regulations will be strictly complied with and no parking or congregating of spectators will be permitted within a safety zone of one mile around the airport excepting in the designated parking area and no flying or stunting will be permitted over spectators.

Seventy-five Legionnaires will assist a corps of parish, city and state police in handling the thousands of cars expected without any delay in approach, parking or leaving the field.

Tickets in the form of windshield stickers, each one admitting an entire automobile load of people are on sale at most of the leading drug stores, filling stations and all leading hotels and Legion officials urge that everyone purchase one of these stickers in advance and start early to avoid the last minute rush. Those not buying advance stickers will be charged a higher rate of admission at the gates. Announcement was made that the show will be held regardless of weather conditions.

Morehouse Farmers Arrested In Connection With Negro's Death

BASTROP, La., March 24.—(Special)—Three Morehouse parish farmers were arrested today by deputy sheriffs and placed in jail on charges of kidnaping and murdering Sonny Hobbs, negro.

The kidnaping and slaying were alleged to have occurred northeast of Jones, in this parish, on December 16, of last year. The persons arrested are Robert Ward, Walter Ward and Leslie Martin, farmers residing near Jones. The Ward brothers were indicted by the grand jury which reported Friday on charges of kidnaping, while all three were indicted on the charge of murder.

According to authorities, the Ward brothers were alleged to have picked the negro up on the highway and taken him to their home, when joined by Robert Ward's brother-in-law, Leslie Martin, they are alleged to have killed the negro. No motive for the kidnaping and killing has been learned.

Willie Taylor, negro, also indicted by the grand jury on a charge of murder, was arrested today. He is alleged to have killed another negro by the name of Sam Price, near Oak Ridge, several months ago.

The grand jury will reconvene in special session Tuesday to continue its investigation of other criminal offenses in the parish. Twenty-six true bills were returned in its report Friday afternoon. Those arrested today will be arraigned Tuesday and will be tried at the spring term of court to be held during the week beginning Monday, April 16.

COMING TO PARAMOUNT MONDAY

Frank Morgan, Jeannette MacDonald and Ramon Novarro in a scene from the musical comedy success, "The Cat and the Fiddle," the attraction coming to the Paramount theater for three days starting Monday. It was adapted from the sensational stage success by the same name that ran on Broadway for over two years.

AT LOCAL THEATERS

AT THE PARAMOUNT—A gown, so heavy that she was unable to move in it, was made for Greta Garbo for a scene in her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Queen Christina," playing for the last times today at the Paramount theater.

The gown, created by Adrian, was made by fifteen women who were employed six weeks on the embroidery work, woven into the pattern in antique silver thread.

At her first sitting, Miss Garbo was asked to take a few steps in it. She tried, but could not move. She seemed to be anchored to the floor!

The gown had to be lightened by many pounds to permit freedom of movement by the Swedish star.

Directed by Rouben Mamoulian, the new picture reunites Garbo and John Gilbert on the screen and has a cast that includes Ian Keith, Lewis Stone, Elizabeth Young, C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Owen, Georges Renevent, David Torrence, Gustav Von Seyffertitz and Ferdinand Munier.

AT THE CAPITOL—Seldom has there been so large and impressive a cast of players in a screen production as that listed for "Massacre," the First National picture which opens at the Capitol theater today. Besides three hundred Indians and extras there are an even twenty popular Hollywood players in important character roles.

The cast is headed by Richard Barthelmess, who stars in the production which follows his successes in the recent "Heroes for Sale," "Central Airport" and "Cabin in the Cotton." He has the role of Joe Thunder Horse, a young and educated Indian brave, in "Massacre."

Ann Dvorak, who has but recently returned to picture work after a year abroad, plays opposite him in the role of a beautiful Indian girl. Claire Dodd has the part of a wealthy society girl who vies with the Indian girl for Barthelmess' love.

There are three villainous roles, white men who live on the Sioux reservation to exploit the Indians. These roles are enacted by Dudley Digges, Arthur Hohl and Sidney Toler. Others in the cast include such

COTTON GINNINGS SHOW DECREASE IN THIS PARISH

A tabulation of card reports shows there were 10,021 bales of cotton, counting round as half bales, ginned and to be ginned in Ouachita parish for the crop of 1933, as compared with 14,422 bales from the crop of 1932, according to a report received here by E. R. Norris, cotton census representative for this parish, from the bureau of census at Washington.

According to another report sent out by the census bureau, all of the 13 other parishes in the fifth congressional district also showed a decrease in the amount of cotton produced and the same was generally true of parishes throughout the state, although a few of the parishes with small production showed an increase in 1933 as compared with 1932.

Part of the reduction was attributed to the cotton plow-up campaign last year and a part to the fact that in some sections the cotton did not produce as well as the year before. It was believed, however, that the plow-up campaign was chiefly responsible for causing the state as a whole to show a decrease in production.

Parishes in the fifth district and their yields, respectively, for 1933 and 1932 were as follows: Caldwell, 4,410; Catahoula, 7,435; 8,965; Concordia, 7,388; 10,196; East Carroll, 17,200; 15,094; Franklin, 20,411; 22,639; Jackson, 4,561; 5,972; Lincoln, 14,478; 19,843; Madison, 8,985; 13,899; Morehouse, 15,429; 21,523; Ouachita, 10,021; 14,422; Richland, 20,071; 20,862; Tensas, 13,116; 18,960; Union, 12,434; 15,498; West Carroll, 14,990; 18,866.

Mrs. German Baker entertained the Methodist Missionary society. Important business matters were taken up during the meeting. Tea was served in conclusion. Besides the hostess and president, Mrs. Baker, the other members present at the meeting were Mrs. Steve Smith, Mrs. Edward Smith, Mrs. Howard Worth, Mrs. George Clarke, Jr., and Mrs. John Osborne.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Watson entertained at tea. The attractive living room of Mr. and Mrs. Watson's home was bright with a profusion of spring flowers placed in different parts of the room. The tea table was very pretty with rich silver settings and violets, suggestive of the spring season. The center piece was a silver bowl filled with violets. Mr. and Mrs. Watson's guests included Mr. and Mrs. Blanton Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lynch, Dr. and Mrs. J. Claude Earnest, Miss La Verne Noble and Mr. Spencer Jones.

The women's auxiliary of the Presbyterian church met at the home of Mrs. Philip Watson. The afternoon was spent in study by the members. "The Home and Christian Living" was the theme chosen. Mrs. Ida Jones discussed the spiritual development, Miss Philip Watson the physical development and Mrs. Fred Skinner the moral development of the child. Discussion of the book, "The Home and Christian Living," also took place. Mrs. Curry MacPherson acted as secretary in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Christopher Haddon, when the meeting was concluded refreshments were served. Besides those already mentioned the other members attending the meeting were Mrs. Freeman Goodwine, Mrs. Louis Mordock, Mrs. Albert Bondurant and Miss Ethel Keiber.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Lynch entertained at cards and a buffet supper. Masses of early spring flowers decorated the living room of Mr. and Mrs. Lynch's apartment. Those enjoying Mr. and Mrs. Lynch's hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moore Whitney, Mrs. Thomas Wade, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Philip Watson, Miss Willie Mae Jackson and Miss Marian Post.

The Tensas Garden club held its meeting for the month of March at the Farrar town house. The leader for the afternoon was Mrs. Albert Bondurant and the hostess Mrs. Peter Schauf. The subject of the program for the meeting was back gardens and lily pools. "Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep." Mrs. Fred Cassil contributed a most interesting article about water gardening. Mrs. John Blanche read a very pretty paper, the subject of which was the pool, its tranquil coolness in the garden. When the program was finished delicious refreshments were served. It was decided that the club will extend an invitation to Mrs. Balfour Miller of Natchez to pay a visit here during the third week in April, and lecture on old homes and gardens. Other matters of importance were also taken up. Besides those already mentioned the members of the club attending the meeting were Mrs. Joseph Curry, Mrs. Katie Watson, Mrs. Laura Beaubien, Mrs. Reese Lewis, Mrs. Joseph Whitaker, Mrs. Samuel T. Yourtee, Mrs. William Summers, Mrs. Theodosia B. LaCour, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. Fred Cummings, Mrs. John Hughes and Mrs. Fred Skinner.

If you own Liberty Bonds

You should check them over.

All U. S. Bonds, having the words "Fourth Liberty Loan," in large, brown letters across the face and bearing the serial letters J or K or A and ending with the figure 9 or 0 or 1 (for example J 4,876,549) should be sent in to the U. S. Treasury for redemption by April 15th.

This means you will get par for your bond and interest to April 15th—but all interest stops after that date.

And remember, this is only for a part of the 4th Liberties—those in J-9, K-0, or A-1. The remainder will continue to bear interest.

There are now only two issues of Liberties bearing interest, the 1st and the 4th—those of the 2nd, 3rd and 5th or Victory having matured or having been called some years back.

We will be glad to send your called bonds in to Washington for you.

Oscar K. Allen has set the special general election for May 1.

The contest is another chapter in the warm district political history that burst into flame last December, when state administration supporters "elected" Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp to succeed her late husband without a Democratic primary and State Senator Sanders was named to the seat in protest in a citizens election.

Both Mrs. Kemp and Sanders were refused national house of representatives recognition and the governor called a new election.

Proclaiming his candidacy views, Wilson, commissioner of agriculture since 1916, declared himself in a formal statement an independent who had "never made any pledges at any time, expressor implied to Long (Senator Huey P. Long), the present administration or anyone else."

"My duties as commissioner of agriculture have been so exacting and absorbing and I have spent so much of the best years of my life in this work that I have steadily refused to aspire to any other office," he said. "It has, however, been pointed out to me by many men and women whose opinions I respect and value, that during these days of economic distress and national rehabilitation, I could be of greater service to my district and state by going to Washington rather than continuing my work as commissioner of agriculture."

from the train and two others were shot while fighting and the negroes fled a moment later.

Sheriff Sevier said two negroes, believed to have been the same ones, held up another white man on the train Thursday night and took a small amount of money from him. He was of the opinion that the robbers had been working back and forth between Monroe and Tallulah for some time and said he thought they might be connected with a gang of negroes who have been staging robberies on trains near Shreveport recently.

Charles F. Colcord of Oklahoma City has been a member of the chamber of commerce for 46 consecutive years.

Speaking of plants that have speeded up production since a year ago, don't forget David Burpee's double hybrid nasturtium that pretty Louise Estes is shown admiring at the international flower show in New York. desire to join are expected to be present, it was stated by Mrs. J. H. Watkins, chairman of the advisory committee. The meetings are necessary, it was explained by Mrs. Watkins, following a session of the committee Saturday, in order to divide the various groups of prospective students into classes and to determine the number of teachers required for the work, as well as to ascertain the kinds of books and other materials for the schools. These facts are essential before the project will be approved by the CWA authorities, it was stated.

It is proposed to establish three schools, two for white students and one for negroes. All persons over the regular school age are eligible for admission. One white school will be started in West Monroe, another in Monroe, and the third at the negro high school or some other negro school that may be available.

It was announced at the meeting Saturday that 75 prospective white students had enrolled in Monroe, besides 45 in West Monroe. About 150 negro students have registered for the night schools. The purpose of the project is to provide work for unemployed teachers.

COTTON CONTROL BILL DANGEROUS, OHIO SOLON SAYS

failed to solve the problem of over-production in the cotton fields.

Chairman Smith, of the agriculture committee, joined Bankhead in pleading for the bill, contending that its only opponents were "the ginning people, the fertilizer people, the speculators, et al."

Fess opposed the bill as a step toward the control of all crops, saying he was more concerned with the direction of the step than its length.

Bankhead was the first speaker on his bill which would limit the domestic cotton crop to 10,000,000 bales a year through a quota plan under which a tax of 50 per cent would be levied against over quota production.

Before recessing today the senate agreed to a limitation of debate beginning Monday to assure a vote on the bill, which already has been approved by the house, early next week.

Bankhead said the compulsory plan was necessary, despite the signing of acreage reduction agreements by 90 per cent of the farmers, because every producer was trying to grow as much on six acres as he formerly produced on 10.

Questioned by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, Bankhead agreed the bill proposed to use the taxing power to limit production and said in this regard it followed the legal precedents of the oleomargarine law.

Senators McNary, Republican, Oregon, and Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, challenged its constitutionality, however, and the latter questioned its comparison with the oleomargarine law.

Smith told the senate that Bankhead had caused a questionnaire to be sent to "practically every cotton farmer in the south" and that 85 per cent of them favored a control law.

A war veterans' publication criticized the "eternal fire" atop the Kansas City Liberty memorial because it does not burn after 11:30 p. m.

DR. ALICE WYNEKOOP ORDERED TO PRISON

CHICAGO, March 24.—(AP)—Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop was refused a new trial today and was ordered to prison for the "operating table" murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta.

She will be taken to the new institution at Dwight, Ill., with the next shipment of prisoners, probably Thursday. Her attorneys have the usual 60 days in which to appeal, but Judge Harry B. Miller refused a stay of sentence.

Dr. Wynekoop, stronger than when she was tried, accepted the judge's ruling with a reiteration of innocence. "The only thing I can say," she said in answer to the formal question, "is what I have already said, I am not guilty."

The judge then imposed the sentence of 25 years in the penitentiary, ordered by the jury.

committee finished hearings on the stock exchange regulation bill with prospects good for quick action by the committee which would send the bill to the floor. The final hearing brought before the committee Eugene Thompson, president of Associated Stock Exchanges, with the contention that the bill would be one of the most damaging pieces of legislation ever enacted.

The house commerce committee with the same bill in hand heard an outline by Robert E. Healy, chief counsel for the trade commission, of practices by the Cities Service Security company which he said demonstrated the need for exchange regulation. He said many millions of dollars had been spent by the company in carrying on transactions designed to keep the stock active on the market.

Realizing that the dry timbers would burn like parchment, Rasch shouted to James Webb, the night watchman, to grab the fire extinguishers. The door to the room containing the extinguishers was locked and the night superintendent had to be called. Meanwhile the flames spread rapidly under the dormitories above. The men were awakened by the alarm and scores escaped through the front door. Rasch told investigators there were only one stairway for each apartment—white and negro. There were no outside fire escapes.

Tonight those who escaped, were housed in the city armory, which was offered as a temporary refuge. The Salvation Army also offered its facilities.

If the appointment of Mrs. Davenport is confirmed, she will replace Mrs. J. H. Leach, who has served in the postoffice for a number of years. It was stated at Mer Rouge that Mrs. Leach and her husband have served alternately for several terms, one of them being registered as a Democrat and the other as a Republican.

Mrs. Davenport has been a resident of Morehouse parish for 10 or 12 years. She first went to Mer Rouge from Rapides parish and became a permanent resident of Morehouse parish when she married. She went to the parish as a school teacher and is still engaged in that work.

About half a dozen persons took the examination for this position. Thus far no announcement has been made as to the nomination of a permanent postmaster for Monroe. Examinations were held a number of weeks ago and 15 persons, including five women and ten men, made applications, but results of the examinations have not been made known.

J. R. Wooten was appointed as acting postmaster soon after the Roosevelt administration went into office and has held the position since that time. He is one of those seeking a permanent appointment.

NATIONAL AIR RESERVE

To the Editor:

The national air reserve was created about a year ago. One man, George Bruce, saw the necessity of an adequate national defense. Out of this idea grew this powerful organization, the National Air Reserve, which is on the lips of hundreds of thousands of people from coast to coast today. "I received an application to enroll and through this medium the Louisiana organization area was established. As a cadet I worked very hard to organize the local area and today I am proud of the membership of the city and state. I asked national headquarters for permission to establish an organization area headquarters in Monroe. My request was granted and I went to work, with results startling even to myself. With the assistance of prominent citizens of this city and the state we have one of the most powerful centers of the work in the United States. Today Monroe alone has a membership of 653 members and is growing larger day by day. There are 22 state units in operation. National membership exceeds the one million mark," says Lieutenant Colonel A. Rothman, the Louisiana organization area commanding officer.

With the kind cooperation of Mayor Bernstein and Dr. B. M. McKoin, the local unit has the use of the Central grammar school for the weekly drill meetings held each Friday night at 8 p.m. These two men, as well as many other prominent citizens, have aided materially in the progress of the Monroe unit of the reserve.

Louisiana organization area headquarters staff officers are: Chief aide to the fourth corps area commanding officer and commander Louisiana organization area, Lieutenant Colonel A. Third District Court In Session At Farmerville FARMERVILLE, La., March 24.—(Special).—The third district court convened here Monday morning with Judge E. L. Walker of Ruston, presiding. Walton E. McBride of Ruston, the district attorney, was present when court opened. This is the regular grand jury term of this district. The docket for this term is extremely light, there being few matters of a civil and probate character to come up. The principal work of the term will be that of the grand jury.

Following is the personnel of the grand jury: E. T. Powell, foreman; Blake Hale, R. M. Leggett, T. J. Bennett, C. F. Rockett, A. C. Dykes, J. L. Hinton, J. M. Farrar, J. M. Hinton, C. B. Allen, Clemmie Davis and J. G. Goss.

Two men, Melvin Jennings and Cal Brasher, were each sentenced to serve six months in the state penitentiary in district court here Monday. The defendants were charged with breaking and entering the store of Allen Buckley on the Farmerville-Monroe highway, last December. Each entered a plea of guilty to the charge, and a jury in each case was called to decide whether sentence should be suspended. In Jennings' case the jury recommended that sentence not be suspended, in Brasher's a jury recommended that it be suspended.

alumni association of Louisiana Polytechnic institute, we, who are members of the alumni association and connected with the institution, wish to make the following correction:

"The alumni association of the Louisiana Polytechnic institute is a corporate body and its charter does not provide for any such office as corresponding secretary. The 'mass meeting' as referred to by Mr. Smith was held without notice and was not an official meeting of the association. Neither the secretary of the association nor the general membership of the organization were notified that such a meeting was to be held. Any action taken at such a meeting could reflect the opinion of only a few individuals and not the sentiment of the association.

Bond at Tech is supported by an overwhelming majority of the alumni at Tech,' and to protest against his unwarranted assertions of opinion regarding the attitude of the alumni towards the administration of President G. W. Bond."

cook since the federal emergency relief administration opened the building as a lodging house and temporary home in December, was preparing sausage gravy for breakfast when the grease boiled over, starting the flames. Realizing that the dry timbers would burn like parchment, Rasch shouted to James Webb, the night watchman, to grab the fire extinguishers. The door to the room containing the extinguishers was locked and the night superintendent had to be called. Meanwhile the flames spread rapidly under the dormitories above. The men were awakened by the alarm and scores escaped through the front door. Rasch told investigators there was only one stairway for each apartment—white and negro. There were no outside fire escapes.

the L. and L. Motor company of Winnsboro and was born and reared in Franklin parish.

If the appointment of Mrs. Davenport is confirmed, she will replace Mrs. J. H. Leach, who has served in the postoffice for a number of years. It was stated at Mer Rouge that Mrs. Leach and her husband have served alternately for several terms, one of them being registered as a Democrat and the other as a Republican.

Mrs. Davenport has been a resident of Morehouse parish for 10 or 12 years. She first went to Mer Rouge from Rapides parish and became a permanent resident of Morehouse parish when she married. She went to the parish as a school teacher and is still engaged in that work.

About half a dozen persons took the examination for this position. Thus far no announcement has been made as to the nomination of a permanent postmaster for Monroe. Examinations were held a number of weeks ago and 15 persons, including five women and ten men, made applications, but results of the examinations have not been made known.

J. R. Wooten was appointed as acting postmaster soon after the Roosevelt administration went into office and has held the position since that time. He is one of those seeking a permanent appointment.

NATIONAL AIR RESERVE

To the Editor:

The national air reserve was created about a year ago. One man, George Bruce, saw the necessity of an adequate national defense. Out of this idea grew this powerful organization, the National Air Reserve, which is on the lips of hundreds of thousands of people from coast to coast today.

"I received an application to enroll and through this medium the Louisiana organization area was established. As a cadet I worked very hard to organize the local area and today I am proud of the membership of the city and state. I asked national headquarters for permission to establish an organization area headquarters in Monroe. My request was granted and I went to work, with results startling even to myself. With the assistance of prominent citizens of this city and the state we have one of the most powerful centers of the work in the United States. Today Monroe alone has a membership of 655 members and is growing larger day by day. There are 22 state units in operation. National membership exceeds the one million mark," says Lieutenant Colonel A. Rothman, the Louisiana organization area commanding officer.

With the kind cooperation of Mayor Bernstein and Dr. B. M. McKoin, the local unit has the use of the Central grammar school for the weekly drill meetings held each Friday night at 8 p.m. These two men, as well as many other prominent citizens, have aided materially in the progress of the Monroe unit of the reserve.

Louisiana organization area headquarters staff officers are: Chief aide to the fourth corps area commanding officer and commander Louisiana organization area, Lieutenant Colonel A. Rothman; chief of staff of headquarters, Captain C. A. Peerman; adjutant, Captain C. S. Lecky; coordination officer, Captain Albert L. Harper; enrollment officer, lieutenant senior grade, H. C. In the pictures today we have Mrs. Nellie Webb Bubb, lovely member of the younger married set. Mrs. Bubb assisted in receiving guests who attended the vernissage of her cousin, Mrs. Delano Leary of Shreveport, during the early part of March in this city. Mrs. Bubb was also one of the mannequins featured in Mrs. Johnnie Smith Elbert's Style Revue last week. (Left)

Miss Betty Keller, beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Keller is seen here in the costume she will wear in the leading role of the religious drama "Pontia" to be presented in connection with Holy week, Monday night at the Ouachita parish school auditorium under the direction of the sisters at St. Matthew's school. Portrait by Downing studio. (Center)

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, lovely member of the younger married set who is taking a prominent part in club work in this city. She served as chairman of one of the committees on the Y. W. C. A. drive and has been appointed delegate to the fifth district Louisiana Federated Club Women's meeting in Tallulah on the seventh of the month. Mrs. Tisdale has also been appointed delegate from the Auxiliary to the Ouachita Parish Medical society to attend the state meeting in Shreveport next month. (Right). Portrait by Downing studio.

'Holy Week' Is The Subject Of Interesting Paper Read Before Study Club Members

Mrs. J. E. Walsworth's paper "Holy Week in Seville," read before members of the Study Club at their regular meeting will hold much of interest as everyone is more or less spiritually minded at this particular time. Mrs. Walsworth said in part: "Few cities have been more celebrated in song and story than Seville. A city which from its languorous climate and intrinsic beauty, as well as its historic associations, seems always to have possessed a peculiar charm."

"The approach to Lent is marked by the carnival which is greeted by no less heartily in Spain by all classes of the population, than it is in every other Roman Catholic country. The city seems to don the garment of festivity. The streets never seem so gay, the white walls never so bright, the flowers on the balconies never so fresh. Young and old, rich and poor are united in paying homage of gladness to a great occasion; all enjoy to the fullest the gifts that the city spreads before them."

"With the Semana Santa (Holy Week) visitors flock to Seville from all quarters of civilization and the managers of hotels stretch their accommodations beyond all reasonable limit and try to lift their scale of charges as high as the golden Virgin of the Giralda Tower."

"Semana Santa is a moving religious drama, beginning on Palm Sunday and ending Easter day. The actors are every man, woman and child in Seville and of the towns nearby. The curtain for this immense drama is the rising sun on the morning of Palm Sunday. The first act is staged outside the Cathedral, just after the blessing of the palms, symbolizing Christ's triumph over death. A procession of the clergy in gorgeous vestments, followed by the chanting choir, leaves the church by the north portal which is heavily draped in purple."

"They march around the huge Cathedral to the south door, which is closed. An immense crowd meets them there, waving palms and shouting as the huge bells of the Giralda clash and boom. The archbishop knocks at the closed door with the foot of the cross and the crowd, like a well-trained chorus, is hushed and expectant."

"All eyes are turned to the closed door, as if expecting a miracle. Slowly it swings back, and the princely procession enters the dark church, followed by the multitude and the solemn Palm Sunday mass begins."

"If one has spent Easter in Florence, Rome or Jerusalem the memory of Semana Santa in Seville will master all other memories, as the serpent of Aaron is said to have mastered the serpents of the magicians at the court of the Egyptian king."

"During Holy Week the city lays aside its high spirits, merriment is hushed and along the streets in which all regular traffic is suspended, religious processions, full of the suggestion of pain and mourning pass through the awe-struck crowd, bearing aloft reminders, terrible in the realism of the tragedy of Calvary."

"Holy Week is a time of mourning in Spain, a season of abstinence from the joys of life."

"Just as in old days when the Roman emperors, triumphed through the streets of the world's greatest city, amidst scenes whose splendor our country cannot match, there was one in attendance on the imperial car, whose duty it was to remind Imperial Caesar that he too must die; so the church seizes the occasion of a city's exuberant mirth to sound its solemn warning in every ear."

"The stranger finds himself in the city of the dead—traffic is suspended, and the carriages that pass are those of the doctor and the priest."

"Early on Maundy Thursday is Good Friday, shops are closed, it is impossible to buy meat on the next three days. Theaters are also closed and gloom clothes the city."

"Only during Lent, need the Spaniard fast on Fridays, for in response to the intercession of an old time cardinal archbishop of Toledo, one of the popes was graciously pleased to grant all Spain a dispensation against Friday fasting."

"During Thursday afternoon and on Good Friday, between the hours of 12:00 and 3:00 p.m., the recollection of the tragedy consummated in Palestine nearly 2,000 years ago, seems to weigh heavily on every living thing, and sees the startled tourist wandering uncomfortably about the streets, in which, as he is fully conscious, he plays no more than a ridiculous part. He is in the city not of it—a heretic whose sentence is pronounced by the thousands who pass him, without comment, without notice. He stands with bared head as the processions move by."

"The dominant feature of every procession is always the sacred image of the Virgin of her church. She is dressed in her costliest state robes, adorned with her most precious jewels. The train of the robe of the Virgin is often embroidered in rare gems and pure gold and it always reaches far over the edge of the huge paso (float)."

"These processions, beginning at sundown, last often through the night. Each float forms a most spectacular pageant and each has a military band or a choir of drums."

"A charming, dramatic touch is added to the monotonous splendor of the passing pageant when a lone voice is suddenly heard chanting from the balcony or perhaps a tower, or even from the dense crowd. At times it seems a cry for mercy; again an outburst of joy. This weird voice is always heard when the float of the Virgin passes, and the vast crowd moved by tradition and faith, is always hushed."

"The simplicity of those little cries is spectacular; but everything in Spain is spectacular. Nothing is more so than the Miserere which is sung in the Cathedral by the full choir with full orchestra and the magnificent organ. The solo parts being taken by the favorite singers of the Royal Opera of Madrid."

"Another dramatic feature of this religious drama is the washing of the feet of twelve paupers, in the chancel of the Cathedral. The king performs this ceremony, if present; in his absence, the archbishop takes his place. Each puts his best foot forward, which is sprinkled with perfumed water by his majesty, the king. After this ceremony a feast is spread and the king and his suite wait upon the old men; then each is given a bit of money and dismissed, to talk about this great honor to the end of his life."

"On Easter Sunday the city awakes to a new mood. Seville's bells sing out in a new glory. It is not alone the songs of Easter that they sing, but the opening of the Sevillian fair. 'The church so dark all the week, is now ablaze with light. Thousands upon thousands of wax candles illuminate its altars. The crowds are willing to stand for hours while the holy office of the mass proceeds. Women resume their usual modern finery. Cafes and theaters open their doors and in the afternoon all roads lead to the Plaza del Toros and the Spaniard sees his favorite sport, a bull fight. No man is too poor to take his family to the first formal fight of the season, on Easter Sunday."

"So this story of Holy Week must close with the salutation which greets one at every turn on Easter day, from old to young, from rich to poor, from the pauper to the king. 'That salutation is, 'Christ is risen,' the answer, 'Yes, risen indeed.'"

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Lewis Hosts Club Women At Buffet Supper And Dance On The Cherokee Terrace

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Lewis of Wisconsin, La., entertained their friends with a charmingly arranged buffet supper and dancing party on the Cherokee Terrace of the Frances hotel Thursday night. This is an annual custom and one that is eagerly anticipated by friends fortunate enough to be included in the guest list.

Mrs. Lewis, wearing a smart black velvet model, and Mr. Lewis, immaculate in evening attire, de rigueur of formal events extended a gracious welcome to their guests at the entrance to the Terrace, banked with beautiful springtime blossoms. The buffet supper table, centered with a low mound of blossoms in all the beautiful shades of springtime, was freighted with luscious hot and cold dishes. Plates were placed conveniently and guests foraged for themselves among the cold meats and salads, with the efficient white clad attendants passing the sweet course and coffee as desired.

Dancing was the diversion of the evening with a "peppy" orchestra escorting the dancers, all of whom were on grand tenue.

The eighth departments of federation will be presented through the district department chairman who will give concise reports.

The meeting will not be without its pleasant social features and good music, for the club women of Tallulah are far-famed for their gracious hospitality.

Mr. C. Edward Jordan of Huntsville, Ala., has many friends in this city, where he visited in the home of his brother, Mr. Glenn Jordan, who will be interested in the following article appearing in the society column of the Huntsville News:

Of interest to a wide circle of friends and relatives in Huntsville will be the announcement of the engagement of C. Edward Jordan, formerly of Huntsville, and Miss Helen Pearson of Akron, Ohio.

Mr. Jordan is a nephew of Miss Alice Miller of this city. He is a graduate of the University of Alabama where he was a student in the department of commerce and administration, and for the past few years has been identified with the export department of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company in India and several other foreign countries.

Miss Pearson is the daughter of Mrs. Hanna Pearson of Akron.

Mrs. M. B. Emmich and handsome young son of Vicksburg, Miss., will arrive tomorrow to spend several days with Mrs. Emmich's mother, Mrs. Evelyn Reims.

Because Miss Alma Summer Potts and Miss Mildred Cobb have a host of friends both young and old, it is not surprising that a perfect deluge of pre-nuptial affairs should be planned in their honor.

Prominent among the beautiful events of the past week was the tea at the Lotus club, Friday afternoon with three gracious hostesses, Mrs. Arthur Dryburgh, Mrs. J. B. Vaughan and Mrs. Bernice Nichols, receiving.

The comfortable environs of the club, ideal for large, fashionable affairs, was in gala, springtime attire with beautifully gowned guests, numbering two hundred or more, gracing each other at every hand. HOLY week! A brief interlude during which we pause to renew our faith and await the glimmer of tall white candles on shadowy altars, Easter morning... During Holy week, new hope lights its bright fires within many hearts... a renewal of faith gives strength to feeble knees and confidence speaks to troubled minds with a calm voice of assurance... We are asked to look up so that we might see that the stone has been rolled away by the risen Lord... "Why art thou cast down, O my soul?" is an old age question at this particular time of the year when the dawn of glorious Easter casts its shadows along the days of Holy week...

Last week if you had happened to ask any member of society "where are you going my pretty maid" she would surely have answered "I am going 'a-teasing'..." Two brilliant events, one at Riverside club and one at the Lotus club, kept society busy, with numerous bridge affairs, dinner parties and coffee hours sandwiched in between...

Alma Summer and Mildred were in the spotlight, of course, looking gay and frivolous despite the fact they will soon take some very serious vows... Mildred was a vibrant flame at Friday's tea in a pomegranate colored afternoon frock with a tiny black hat set at a ravishing angle... at Thursday's tea, sans chapeau, she wore one of those dusty pink models... Alma Summer has been wearing some smart looking trousseau clothes also... that pink starched chiffon, for instance, with its demure round collar and a yellow flower sprinkled crepe to say nothing of a white satin evening model... she is being assiduously escorted to the evening affairs by that good looking fiancé of hers...

So many smart clothes to feast our eyes upon last week we were simply dazzled... Speaking of glamorous people, Anna Speed was "as you desire me" at her tea last week... Blue is her color, at least we thought so until we saw her in a pink chiffon creation with her lovely white hair waved close to her head and the pink of her skin enhanced by the color of her gown...

Then, there was Cherry Bernice, tall, aristocratic and completely charming in a black and white flowered chiffon, greeting everyone in that lovely soft voice of hers... Mrs. R. B. Frizzell in a flowered frock that suited her distinctive charm... she has the faculty of making every one feel so at home in that very charming way of hers... At both teas last week there was a friendly, pleasant jam quite like the good old days of yore... Can you imagine more delightful hostesses than Stella Dryburgh and Bernice Nichols?... there was a fly in the ointment, however, the afternoon of their tea... Minta Vaughan, who assisted in the plans, was ill and unable to be present... everyone missed the charm of her presence... My oh my, how becoming was Bernice's canary colored frock... hope she does not pass it on to Joel as she threatened to do... Bernice's mother, Mrs. Joseph Renwick, vied for honors... never have we seen her look as well... the pastel blue of her lovely lace dress was most flattering... Ann Hardie was a "dream walking"... let us tell you what she was wearing when she assisted at the tea on Thursday... a white satin frock with rows and rows of black "val" lace on the long floor length skirt... from the elbows to the wrists were tiny ruffles of black lace... sounds rather intriguing, don't you think?...

Sara Beth Nute, home for a brief visit from Memphis, was wearing a frothy pink chiffon, matching to perfection her marvelous skin... It was fun to watch the guests foraging among the bewildering array of canapes passed on shining silver platters... For fear of missing a single variety we heard one guest say that she sampled one of each kind...

Good news for the light-footed gentry... an Easter ball at Riverside with those young gallants, members of Phi Kappa, the hosts... and for diversion, guess what... a male fashion revue... correct togs for the well dressed male will be shown during an intermission... rather novel, don't you think?...

We heard some one say the other day that the most interesting man in Monroe is Sam Rubens... they discovered that he has at his finger tips, priceless information about antiquities

... if you happen to have an old piece of jewelry, the origin of which you are uncertain let him classify it for you... not only jewelry but period furniture, bric-a-brac or object d'art... If for no other reason, you must see Sally Johnson in East Lynn on the fourth of April... she will wear the Lord Fauntleroy suit worn by her father when he was a boy... her long curls and highly dramatic voice make her invaluable to the cast... her sister, Nancy, also a member of the cast, is a "knockout"... never have we seen two children so ideally suited to the roles they have been assigned in East Lynn... you must see them.

The following, beautifully engraved invitations have just been issued: Mr. and Mrs. John James Potts requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Alma Summer to Mr. John Roumain Peters Tuesday evening, the tenth of April Nineteen hundred and thirty-four at half after eight o'clock Grace Episcopal Church Monroe, Louisiana Reception immediately following the ceremony Two hundred one Breard Street

Interesting guests arriving in the city to visit in the home of Mrs. Edward Graham Warring, will be Mrs. Eugene Mock and Mrs. A. J. Brown of St. Louis and Mrs. Norton England of Little Rock, Ark. They will be the guests of Mrs. Warring on a motor trip to Natchez, Miss., on the fifth of April for the Garden Pilgrimage. Of interest also will be Mrs. Nathaniel Hurdle's luncheon in their honor.

Mrs. Sam Kaplan, Mrs. Dora Anish and Miss Patricia Kaplan will introduce their charming house guests, Mrs. Herman Frankel, Mrs. Arthur Frankel, Mrs. Joseph Berkowitz of Chicago, to their friends informally, tomorrow afternoon between the hours of four-thirty and six-thirty, coming in a pastel shaded, flowered

'Holy Week' Is The Subject Of Interesting Paper Read Before Study Club Members

Mrs. J. E. Walsworth's paper "Holy Week in Seville," read before members of the Study Club at their regular meeting will hold much of interest as everyone is more or less spiritually minded at this particular time. Mrs. Walsworth said in part:

"Few cities have been more celebrated in song and story than Seville. 'A city which from its languorous climate and intrinsic beauty, as well as its historic associations, seems always to have possessed a peculiar charm.'"

"The approach to Lent is marked by the carnival which is greeted by no less heartily in Spain by all classes of the population, than it is in every other Roman Catholic country. The city seems to don the garment of festivity. The streets never seem so gay, the white walls never so bright, the flowers on the balconies, never so fresh. Young and old; rich and poor are united in paying homage of gladness to a great occasion; all enjoy to the fullest the gifts that the city spreads before them."

"With the Semana Santa (Holy Week) visitors flock to Seville from all quarters of civilization and the managers of hotels stretch their accommodations beyond all reasonable limit and try to lift their scale of charges as high as the golden Virgin of the Giralda Tower."

"Semana Santa is a moving religious drama, beginning on Palm Sunday and ending Easter day. The actors are every man, woman and child in Seville and of the towns nearby. The curtain for the town's immense drama is the rising sun on the morning of Palm Sunday. The first act is staged outside the Cathedral, just after the blessing of the palms, symbolizing Christ's triumph over death. A procession of the clergy in gorgeous vestments, followed by the chanting choir, leaves the church by the north portal which is heavily draped in purple."

"They march around the huge Cathedral to the south door, which is closed. An immense crowd meets them there, waving palms and shouting as the huge bells of the Giralda clash and boom. The archbishop knocks at the closed door with the foot of the cross and the crowd, like a well-trained chorus, is hushed and expectant."

"All eyes are turned to the closed door, as if expecting a miracle. Slowly it swings back, and the princely procession enters the dark church, followed by the multitude and the solemn Palm Sunday mass begins."

"If one has spent Easter in Florence, Rome or Jerusalem the memory of Semana Santa in Seville will master all other memories, as the serpent of Aaron is said to have mastered the serpents of the magicians at the court of the Egyptian king."

"During Holy Week the city lays aside its high spirits, merriment is hushed and along the streets in which all regular traffic is suspended, religious processions full of the suggestion of pain and mourning pass through the awe-struck crowd, bearing aloft reminders, terrible in the realism of the tragedy of Calvary."

"Holy Week is a time of mourning in Spain, a season of abstinence from the joys of life."

"Just as in old days when the Roman emperors, triumphed through the streets of the world's greatest city, amidst scenes whose splendor our country cannot match, there was one in attendance on the imperial car, whose duty it was to remind Imperial Caesar that he too must die; so the church, seized the occasion of a city's exuberant mirth to sound its solemn warning in every ear."

"The stranger finds himself in the city of the dead—traffic is suspended, and the carriages that pass are those of the doctor and the priest."

"Early on Maundy Thursday before Good Friday shows are closed; it is impossible to buy meat on the next three days. Theaters are also closed and gloom clothes the city."

"Only during Lent, need the Spaniard fast on Fridays, for in response to the intercession of an old time cardinal archbishop of Toledo, one of the popes was graciously pleased to grant all Spain a dispensation against Friday fasting."

"During Thursday afternoon and on Good Friday, between the hours of 12:00 and 3:00 p.m. the recollection of the tragedy consummated in Palestine nearly 2,000 years ago, seems to weigh heavily on every living thing, and sees the startled tourist wandering uncomfortably about the streets, in which, as he is fully conscious, he plays no more than a ridiculous part. He is in the city not of it—a heretic whose sentence is pronounced by the thousands, without notice. He stands with bared head as the processions move by."

"The dominant feature of every procession is always the sacred image of the Virgin of her church. She is dressed in her costliest state robes, adorned with her most precious jewels. The train of the robe of the Virgin is often embroidered in rare gems and pure gold and it always reaches far over the edge of the huge paso (float)."

"These processions, beginning at sundown, last often through the night. Each float forms a most spectacular pageant and each has a military band or a choir of drums."

"A charming, dramatic touch is added to the monotonous splendor of the passing pageant when a lone voice is suddenly heard chanting from a balcony or perhaps a tower, or even from the dense crowd. At times it seems a cry for mercy; again an outburst of joy. This weird voice is always heard when the float of the Virgin passes, and the vast crowd moved by tradition and faith, is always hushed."

"The simplicity of those little cries is spectacular; but everything in Spain is spectacular. Nothing is more so than the Miserere which is sung in the Cathedral by the full choir with full orchestra and the magnificent organ. The solo parts being taken by the favorite singers of the Royal Opera of Madrid."

"Another dramatic feature of this religious drama is the washing of the feet of twelve paupers, in the chancel of the Cathedral. The king performs this ceremony, if present; in his absence, the archbishop takes his place. Each puts his best foot forward, which is sprinkled with perfumed water by his majesty, the king. After this ceremony a feast is spread and the king and his suite wait upon the old men; then each is given a bit of money and dismissed, to talk about this great honor to the end of his life."

"On Easter Sunday the city awakes to a new mood. Seville's bells sing out in a new glory. It is not alone the songs of Easter that they sing, but the opening of the Sevillian fair. 'The church so dark all the week, is now ablaze with light. Thousands upon thousands of wax candles illuminate its altars. The crowds are willing to stand for hours while the holy office of the mass proceeds. Women resume their usual modern finery. Cafes and theaters open their doors and in the afternoon all roads lead to the Place del Toros and the Spaniard sees his favorite sport, a bull fight. No man is too poor to take his family to the first formal fight of the season, on Easter Sunday."

"So this story of Holy Week must close with the salutation which greets one at every turn on Easter day, from old to young, from rich to poor, from the pauper to the king. 'That salutation is, 'Christ is risen,' 'The church so dark all the week, is now ablaze with light. Thousands upon thousands of wax candles illuminate its altars. The crowds are willing to stand for hours while the holy office of the mass proceeds. Women resume their usual modern finery. Blue is her color, at least we thought so until we saw her in a pink chiffon creation with her lovely white hair waved close to her head and the pink of her skin enhanced by the color of her gown. . . . Then, there was Cherry Berny, tall, aristocratic and completely charming in a black and white flowered chiffon, greeting everyone in that lovely soft voice of hers. . . . Mrs. R. B. Frizzell in a flowered frock that suited her distinctive charm. . . . she has the faculty of making everyone feel so at home in that very charming voice of hers. . . . At both teas last week there was a friendly, pleasant jam quite like the good old days of yore. . . . Can you imagine two more delightful hostesses than Stella Dryburgh and Bernice Nichols?

. . . if you happen to have an old piece of jewelry, the origin of which you are uncertain let him classify it for you . . . not only jewelry but period furniture, bric-a-brac or object d'art. . . . If, for no other reason, you must see Sally Johnson in East Lynn on the fourth of April . . . she will wear the Lord Fauntleroy suit worn by her father when he was a boy . . . her long curls and highly dramatic voice make her invaluable to the cast . . . her sister, Nancy, also a member of the cast, is a "knockout" . . . never have we seen two children so ideally suited to the roles they have been assigned in East Lynn . . . you must see them.

Miss Eleanor Faulk Writes Interesting Letters From Far Off Calcutta, India

The mystery and the charm of India is holding Miss Eleanor Faulk enthralled, according to recent letters received. Miss Faulk is making a world tour and writes in the most interesting manner of the places visited. From Calcutta she writes:

"Calcutta is the strangest place I have yet visited. Broad, paved streets with sacred white bulls lying placidly in the main thoroughfare or walking unmolested, Indians everywhere asleep in the sun. They are all unkempt and look half starved. The men have straggly beards and wear cheap, semi-transparent muslin thrown around the shoulders like Gandhi. In fact any kind of an old rag is thrown over the shoulders. They all go barefoot with either a fez or a turban on their head—their hair is long and matted. The women usually wear a circular piece of cloth around their head and shoulders. It is difficult to distinguish the men from the women. The better class Indian is seldom seen on the streets of Calcutta. They wear knee length, tight fitting coats with high neck line which sets them apart from the lower class.

"I went to the races. Saw several perfectly gorgeous young women standing in the club house enclosure and a few in the grandstand. Every kind of costume under the sun was worn. Many Indian women were in beautiful, flimsy clothes, edged in silver and gold, and wearing wonderful jewelry. Except for the fact that the race track had six grandstands around the track. I sat with Indians all around me, some of the dirtiest had one hundred rupee notes in their hands.

"Here in India it is necessary to buy bottles of water. I buy natural Evian water, it's about fifty cents. U. S. money, a quart. This hotel even charges extra for the coal in the grate. I've already used three bushels of it. See little girls here carrying great loads on their backs, suspended on a bamboo pole from a strap around the forehead. But they seem quite happy.

Women Solve Problem Of Clean Movies

The problem of objectionable motion pictures which has been the subject of much discussion in club circles has been solved by the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs through the executive ability, unflinching industry, initiative enthusiasm, and above all the supreme gift of vision of the state chairman of motion pictures, Mrs. Arretus F. Burt of St. Louis.

Realizing that the task of cleansing the motion pictures of salacious advertising, objectionable "off-color" jokes, or parts of stage acts was too great a task for the Missouri Federation alone, Mrs. Burt sought many allies which resulted in the formation of the Better Films Council of St. Louis and St. Louis county. The organization represents a total constituency of 25,000 women.

Two courses were open to the council: one, negative criticism and force, or cooperation, persuasion, and a constructive program. Being women they chose the latter.

Committee work is the most important phase of the work of the council. There are five committees of five members each who see the first showings of all programs presented at the first run theaters. Last year the committees reviewed 284 feature pictures, recommending 92 of them for family night showings. Reviews included 281 short subjects which, with few exceptions, were found to be acceptable. Of the 284 reviewed, seven were not recommended for anyone. When such pictures are released, letters are sent by the council to producers protesting the violations of good taste and of ethics, and to the artists expressing regret that they appear in such pictures.

The committees have found the managers of theaters most cooperative, and by working together noteworthy results have been obtained, the most important being the inauguration of family Friday nights, and the city of St. Louis, where the advertising was found to be the most salacious of any city in the United States, after one year's time was declared the cleanest.

The inauguration of family Friday nights in 20,000 theaters of the United States is helping to protect the moral and spiritual life of a vast multitude of children. Many requests from other states have been made for the policies and plan of work of the Better Films Council.

Mrs. Ann Wells entertained members of W. B. A. Review No. 26 at bridge and bingo at her home Thursday evening. Gifts for high scores were presented to Mrs. Louise Harberson, Mrs. Effie Jones, Mrs. Ophelia Thompson and Mrs. Webster.

Before departure, Mrs. Wells served a delicious salad course and English tea to Misses Maud Carr, Audrey Volsel, Mell Swinney, Dorothy Glenn, Ophelia Thompson, Effie Jones, Louise Harberson, Webster, Miss Phenile Keller.

Mrs. John Sherrouse and son, John, Jr., motored to Baton Rouge to spend the week-end.

Miss Noelle Currie of New Orleans will be the guest during the Easter holidays of Miss Johnnie Cox.

BROADWAY, STAR SHY THIS SEASON, BRINGS OUT PROMISING NEW TALENT

Elizabeth Love (center) made an impression in "By Your Leave" after an apprenticeship in stock. Tamara (right), a brunette arrival from Russia, was refreshing in "Roberta" and Florence Britton (below) displayed talent in "The Lake" and "The Shining Hour."

- D. A. R. Members Hear Talk By Mrs. R. C. Major
The mountain people of South Carolina and Alabama was the interesting subject of Mrs. Reese Major's talk before members of Fort Miro chapter, D. A. R., at their regular monthly meeting. Mrs. Major also gave some interesting information on the subject of the mountain schools founded by the D. A. R. She said:
"The Kate Duncan Smith D. A. R. school of Alabama and the Tennessee D. A. R. school of South Carolina are the only schools founded, owned and controlled by state societies of the American Revolution. Fort Miro chapter has contributed to both these schools."
"While these are the only schools owned by the D. A. R., there are many approved D. A. R. schools. Among them is the American Indian Institute, Wichita, Kans.; Beula College, Kentucky; Berry Schools, Georgia; Hillside School, Mass.; Crossmore School, North Carolina, and many others."
"The needs of these schools are many. Gifts would be appreciated. Gifts of any description, money, furniture, bedding and old clothes."
"Crossmore has a famous 'Rag Shake.' The old clothes are sold to maintain people and the money contributed to the support of the school. Other schools use old clothing for the same purpose."
"To be interested in a subject we must know something about it, so we are going to give you more facts about two of these schools... Tamassée and Crossmore."
"Crossmore School, Inc., is the boarding unit, whose residents attend the Altamont Consolidated school, located on Crossmore grounds. This Consolidated school is and always has been state supported, a public school, and the only Crossmore School, Inc., has in it is supplying the Bible instructors. There has been some confusion and misapprehension current about these facts, and we wish to make it clear that any aid asked is for the boarding department alone, and that is what is meant by Crossmore School, Inc."
"Crossmore school occupies a hill crowned with white pine and known as 'Christmas Tree Hill,' on the very crest of the Blue Ridge, the backbone of the Appalachians. Just back

More Leisure Provides For Study Of Music

Music is one of the greatest forces operating on the minds and hearts of people today. Its healing and regenerative power has been proved through all the difficult years immediately behind us.

The new leisure provides study time for countless people who hitherto found it impossible, and since it has become one of the most widely discussed topics of the times, partially due to the radio, to be musically illiterate will hardly be excusable.

Geographic barriers that have stood in the way of the great mass of people and the finest fruits of the musical art have been swept aside by the radio.

Millions of people living in the most remote hamlets may now hear the same artists and symphonies that are enjoyed in the metropolitan halls. Radio has in fact added new worlds to the domain of music. Its audience has been multiplied a thousandfold. The radio broadcasting of music of high character has done an amazing work in familiarizing masterpieces to the general public. Especially is this true of our orchestras—they are unsurpassed anywhere in the world. This fact has been attested to by Mrs. H. S. Godfrey, chairman of the division of music for the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Godfrey has suggestions to make to the radio audiences as follows: write to the broadcasting stations and thank them for the privilege of hearing great music. Have you ever written to the broadcasting stations and expressed appreciation, and a desire to have programs of good music continued? If not, do so. Letters help to get the better things.

The assembly singing of the general federation in assembly at Hot Springs on May 21-25 will be featured by state songs. Twenty-five states have responded to date.

A regular meeting of the Missouri Pacific Women's club was held in the club house Friday afternoon with Mrs. S. A. Moss, president, and Mrs. P. J. Newman, secretary, presiding. Two new members and eight visitors made a total of forty present. Following the business session, Mr. Charles Mitchell made an interesting talk on "Social Welfare Problems." Mrs. Mitchell was also present and talked on the subject of "Camp Fire," of which organization she is president. Mrs. Mitchell, in her talk, mentioned the fact that with the exception of the P. T. A., the Missouri Pacific Women's club was the only women's club of this city to sponsor the Camp Fire Girls.

mound of fragrant, pink sweet peas, edged with long stemmed English violets and feathery fronds of maiden hair partially covered the table.

The refreshment table held silver trays of pastel tinted dainties, open faced sandwiches, mints, luscious little cakes and sweetmeats, passed around by a coterie of charming young women, Miss Jane Colbert, Miss Ann Hardie, Miss Suzanne Hirsch, Mrs. Louis Nute and Mrs. Mary Bancroft. Mrs. George Weeks and Mrs. J. B. Reilly were also offering confections.

On Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 6 members of the Alto Community club were delightedly entertained by Mesdames G. A. O'Neal and Lloyd Gill in the attractive home of Mrs. Gill. Beautiful spring flowers were arranged effectively in pottery bowls throughout the dining room and living room. Cards were enjoyed by the following guests: Mrs. C. G. Pardue, Mrs. Jimmie Richardson, Mrs. R. H. Alexander, Mrs. E. E. Thompson, Mrs. W. T. Sartor, Jr., Mrs. J. A. McCoy, Miss Mary Lou Sartor, Mrs. L. J. Mulhern, Mrs. Louis Bledsoe, D. R. FAITH FAITH entered business in prehistoric times, when cave men laid aside their clubs to trust one another in bartering—when might was cast aside in favor of the handshake.

Thus man found that by mutual trust and confidence, there was greater unity against common enemies. The beginning of this faith came with the realization that a fair exchange of commodities was eminently satisfactory to all, and that service rendered was worthy of its hire.

We have built this great institution on mutual faith—faith in Monroe, faith in its people, and the faith of our customers in our honest merchandise. Our most valued possessions are the remembrances of the hearty handshakes we receive from our customers, who by trading here again and again, have become our warmest friends.

Miss Eleanor Faulk Writes Interesting Letters From Far Off Calcutta, India

The mystery and the charm of India is holding Miss Eleanor Faulk enthralled, according to recent letters received. Miss Faulk is making a world tour and writes in the most interesting manner of the places visited. From Calcutta she writes:

"Calcutta is the strangest place I have yet visited. Broad, paved streets with sacred white bulls lying placidly in the main thoroughfare or walking unmolested. Indians everywhere asleep in the sun. They are all unkempt and look half starved. The men have straggly beards and wear cheap, semi-transparent muslin thrown around the shoulders like Ghandi. In fact any kind of an old rag is thrown over the shoulders. They all go barefoot with either a fez or a turban on their head—their hair is long and matted. The women usually wear a circular piece of cloth around their head and shoulders. It is difficult to distinguish the men from the women. The better class Indian is seldom seen on the streets of Calcutta. They wear knee length, tight fitting coats with high neck line which sets them apart from the lower class.

"I went to the races. Saw several perfectly gorgeous young women standing in the club house enclosure and a few in the grandstand. Every kind of costume under the sun was worn. Many Indian women were in beautiful, flimsy clothes, edged in silver and gold, and wearing wonderful jewelry. Except for the fact that the race track had six grandstands it wasn't noteworthy. The track is turf. The horses run clockwise around the track. I sat with Indians all around me, some of the dirtiest had one hundred rupee notes in their hands.

"Here in India it is necessary to buy bottles of water. I buy natural Evian water, it's about fifty cents. U. S. money, a quart. This hotel even charges extra for the coal in the grate. I've already used three bushels of it. See little girls here carrying great loads on their backs, suspended on a bamboo pole from a strap around the forehead. But they seem quite happy.

From Darjeeling, one of the hill towns in India, Miss Faulk continues: "It doesn't seem possible, but here I am sitting at the foot of the world's greatest range of mountains, shivering on the floor by a coal fire and looking out upon snow capped peaks, which are wreathed in clouds.

"When you get to these long dreamed of places it all seems very matter of fact. I think it is due to the reasonable, comfortable hotels. This one even has a tub and hot water. And the mountain sides are dotted with modern white cottages and buildings with red tin roofs. The whole distance from Calcutta was well settled. Many tea plantations clinging to the sides of the mountains. But the homes of the poorer natives are horrible huts of old tin and wood. My baggage was carried up the hill to the hotel by two women with gold rings in their noses. Up here I have seen many of the women with jeweled gold rings and gold buttons in their noses, great silver anklets and bracelets and huge gold earrings the size of biscuits.

"I flew from Bangkok to Calcutta. Only saw the gleaming gold spire of Rangon from the air. We flew over miles of teak forest, deep jungles, rivers, including the Irrawaddy and for a time over the sea, out of sight of land. They have very nice planes, this one had a crew of four men with room for four passengers. It is a mail plane carrying mail from Batavia to Amsterdam in nine days, leaving once a week.

"Here I see many Tibetans, they are a laughing lot of people. The men and some women wear their hair in long plaits down their backs. The women wear silver charm boxes studded with turquoise suspended from silver chains about their necks. Have seen many men wearing a huge round loop of silver set with turquoise in the left ear, and a single turquoise stud in the other ear. Many of the men throughout this part of the east wear button ear rings of jewels or small gold loops.

"My trip to the Ganges was exceedingly interesting."

Members of Phi Kappa fraternity are planning a gala affair for next Saturday night at which time they will be hosts at a dancing party at Riverside Country club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William D. King, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Coates, former members, who recently married.

A Style Revue showing the correct for gentlemen, will be a unique feature of the evening's program. Of interest also will be the floor show.

A lovely visitor in the city is Mrs. Louis Nute of Memphis, Tenn., guest in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Farmer, in Fairview. Mrs. Farmer will return to Memphis with her daughter for a brief visit.

Mrs. John Sherrouse and son, John, Jr., motored to Baton Rouge to spend the week-end.

Miss Noelle Currie of New Orleans will be the guest during the Easter holidays of Miss Johnnie Cox.

The committees have found the managers of theaters most cooperative, and by working together noteworthy results have been obtained, the most important being the inauguration of family Friday nights, and the city of St. Louis, where the advertising was found to be the most salacious of any city in the United States, after one year's times was declared the cleanest.

The inauguration of family Friday nights in 20,000 theaters of the United States is helping to protect the moral and spiritual life of a vast multitude of children. Many requests from other states have been made for the policies and plan of work of the Better Films Council.

D. A. R. Members Hear Talk By Mrs. R. C. Major

The mountain people of South Carolina and Alabama was the interesting subject of Mrs. Reese Major's talk before members of Fort Miro chapter, D. A. R., at their regular monthly meeting. Mrs. Major also gave some interesting information on the subject of the mountain schools founded by the D. A. R. She said:

"The Kate Duncan Smith D. A. R. school of Alabama and the Tamassee D. A. R. school of South Carolina are the only schools founded, owned and controlled by state societies of the American Revolution. Fort Miro chapter has contributed to both these schools.

"While these are the only schools owned by the D. A. R., there are many approved D. A. R. schools. Among them is the American Indian Institute, Wichita, Kans.; Beula College, Kentucky; Berry Schools, Georgia; Hillside School, Mass.; Crossmore School, North Carolina, and many others.

"The needs of these schools are many. Gifts would be appreciated. Gifts of any description, money, furniture, bedding and old clothes.

"Crossmore has a famous 'Rag Shake.' The old clothes are sold to mountain people and the money contributed to the support of the school. Other schools use old clothing for the same purpose.

"To be interested in a subject we must know something about it, so we are going to give you more facts about two of these schools. . . . Tamassee and Crossmore.

"Crossmore School, Inc., is the boarding unit, whose residents attend the Altamont Consolidated school, located on Crossmore grounds. This Consolidated school is and always has been state supported, a public school, and the only Crossmore School, Inc., has in it is supplying the Bible instructors. There has been some confusion and misapprehension current about these facts, and we wish to make it clear that any aid asked is for the boarding department alone, and that is what is meant by Crossmore School, Inc.

"Crossmore school occupies a hill crowned with white pine and known as 'Christmas Tree Hill' on the very crest of the Blue Ridge, the backbone of the Appalachians. Just back of us the streams flow toward the gulf, before us they empty into the Atlantic. We are at an altitude of 3,400 feet, so the fact that we are quite far south has little effect on our winters, when the thermometer frequently reaches zero or below, and the cold winds blow. The school buildings include four dormitories, the last of which will not be available for use until the first of the year. It is the gift of the North Carolina D. A. R., and is for the older girls.

Many years ago in a mountain village of the Cherokee Indians, there lived a famous fire prophet. His great wisdom and his power of healing were attributed to the possession of an unusually large ruby. With their gift for picturesque nomenclature, the Indians called this glowing ball of fire 'The Sunlight of God.' They came from far and near to consult with the prophet and to be made strong. His influence was mighty and far-reaching. At his death the Indians obeyed his parting injunction and buried him with the stone clasped to his breast. The knoll where the grave lay was called 'Tamassee, the Place of the Sunlight of God.'

"And, as someone has aptly put it: 'After more than one hundred years Tamassee is again a place where the sunlight goes forth into many lives to bless and to strengthen them. Once more to this spot come those whose need for it is great. This light must never again be extinguished. Tamassee must ever continue true to the beautiful meaning of its name.'

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Matthews' Convert league, sponsored by the local court of the Catholic Daughters of America scheduled for Thursday night, will be dispensed with, owing to the fact that this date is Holy Thursday and the church activities for the day will absorb the regular meeting time of the league. All members are requested to meet for Holy Hours devotions at the church from 7:30 until 8:30.

The April program, the last Thursday of the month, promises to be one of the most interesting offered so far. Reverend John C. Vandegard's subject, 'The Dominating Quality of Truth,' will be followed with a talk on the 'Life of Frederic Ozanam' ably prepared by Mr. M. C. Delarot. As customary at these monthly meetings, whose popularity is growing in great strides since the inauguration four months ago, a talk is given by a minister on some phase of the Catholic religion; also a layman is requested to give the story of the life and history of an outstanding convert to the faith. These talks feature the first half of the program; the second part consists of a musical program by some of Monroe's outstanding musicians. Each month's program will not only be beneficial to the converts alone, but also a source of good to all who may care to attend. These meetings are held regularly on the last Thursday of the month at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium of St. Matthews parochial school building on Grammont street. The public is most cordially invited to hear a most instructive information regarding the Catholic religion, and likewise to enjoy a musical treat.

More Leisure Provides For Study Of Music

Music is one of the greatest forces operating on the minds and hearts of people today. Its healing and regenerative power has been proved through all the difficult years immediately behind us.

The new leisure provides study time for countless people who hitherto found it impossible, and since it has become one of the most widely discussed topics of the times, partially due to the radio, to be musically illiterate will hardly be excusable.

Geographic barriers that have stood in the way of the great mass of people and the finest fruits of the musical art have been swept aside by the radio.

Millions of people living in the most remote hamlets may now hear the same artists and symphonies that are enjoyed in the metropolitan halls.

Radio has in fact added new worlds to the domain of music. Its audience has been multiplied a thousandfold. The radio broadcasting of music of high character has done an amazing work in familiarizing masterpieces to the general public. Especially is this true of our orchestras—they are unsurpassed anywhere in the world. This fact has been attested to by Mrs. H. S. Godfrey, chairman of the division of music for the General Federation of Women's clubs.

Mrs. Godfrey has suggestions to make to the radio audiences as follows: write to the broadcasting stations and thank them for the privilege of hearing great music. Have you ever written to the broadcasting stations and expressed appreciation, and a desire to have programs of good music continued? If not, do so. Letters help to get the better things.

The assembly singing of the general federation in assembly at Hot Springs on May 21-26 will be featured by state songs. Twenty-five states have responded to date.

A regular meeting of the Missouri Pacific Women's club was held in the club house Friday afternoon with Mrs. S. A. Moss, president, and Mrs. P. J. Newman, secretary, presiding. Two new members and eight visitors made a total of forty present. Following the business session, Mr. Charles Mitchell made an interesting talk on "Social Welfare Problems." Mrs. Mitchell was also present and talked on the subject of "Camp Fire," of which organization she is president. Mrs. Mitchell, in her talk, mentioned the fact that with the exception of the P-T. A., the Missouri Pacific Women's club was the only woman's club of this city to sponsor the Camp Fire Girls.

Miss Dorothy Lively entertained with a tap dance number, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. P. J. Newman. After the meeting delicious refreshments were served.

mound of fragrant, pink sweet peas, edged with long stemmed English violets and feathery fronds of maiden hair partially covered the table.

The refreshment table held silver trays of pastel tinted dainties, open faced sandwiches, mints, luscious little cakes and sweetmeats, passed among the guests by a coterie of charming young women, Miss Jane Colbert, Miss Ann Hardie, Miss Suzanne Hirsch, Mrs. Louis Nute and Mrs. Mary Bancroft. Mrs. George Weeks and Mrs. J. B. Kelly were also offering courtesies.

On Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 6 members of the Alto Community club were delightfully entertained by Mesdames G. A. O'Neal and Lloyd Gill in the attractive home of Mrs. Gill. Beautiful spring flowers were arranged effectively in pottery bowls throughout the dining room and living room. Cards were enjoyed by the following guests: Mrs. C. G. Pardue, Mrs. Jimmie Richardson, Mrs. R. H. Alexander, Mrs. E. E. Thomson, Mrs. W. T. Sartor, Jr., Mrs. J. A. McCoy, Miss Mary Lou Sartor, Mrs. L. J. Mulhern, Mrs. Louis Bledsoe, Mrs. D. R. A. O'Neal, Mrs. Lloyd Gill.

A delicious luncheon course was served with the Easter decorations and colors delightfully portrayed.

Mrs. F. B. Neely Talks On Work Of Camp Fire

Mrs. F. B. Neely who has taken a prominent part in Camp Fire work in this city during the past several years has the following remarks to make in regard to the birthday anniversary recently observed in this city:

Out of the Camp Fire Girls' birthday project of 1933 grows their project for 1934. Hobbies, for one of the important factors in "Making the Most of Me" is being interesting and having interests.

With the forty-hour week a reality and ever shorter hours in view, it is apparent that everyone is going to have a great deal of leisure time. As Angelo Patri recently said, "People who do not know what to do with their leisure time are already giving themselves and other people a lot of trouble."

Increased leisure time will be a burden rather than a blessing to the adult who has no special interests and who must entirely rely for his entertainment on commercial amusements. At the end of a long strenuous work day a detective story is good relaxation. But for people who come home from work still full of energy and interest, these forms of entertainment will not suffice. The individual will need something to do that requires the use of his intelligence and creativeness. If he has not developed the basis for these interests in his formative years, he will have difficulty in getting underway.

In choosing her hobby and pursuing it, the Camp Fire girl will find she is earning honors, and that many of the things she does are ready a part of the program.

The hobby which a girl chooses should lift her out of the ordinary routine of life into the most exciting living. Ask your girls how they spend their leisure time; what they do on Saturdays and in the afternoon when school is over for the day. Camp Fire girls are happy—the seventh law of the Fire.

Picturesque daffodils and bridal wreath and other flowers suggestive of spring, formed a decorative background of the spacious reception rooms Friday afternoon when Miss Hazel Mitchell welcomed members of "Le Cercle Français" of the Ouachita junior college in her home on the west side.

French games offered the chief diversion for the afternoon with a selection of French songs by Mr. Marian Gilliland, accompanied by Miss Anna Lee Null.

Prizes, featuring the Easter motif, were received by Misses Dorothy Flanagan and Clarissa Davis.

Little Almond Eyes, Johnstone, Nell McCormick. Fountain Spray, Johnstone, Martha Grafton. Cedar Brook Waltz, Perry, Vivian Harper. Love's Greeting, Elgar, Joan Boardman. Golden Rod, Powell, Barbara Thompson.

A feature of the afternoon was the social hour during which the hostesses served delicious refreshments to Misses Joan Boardman, Gene Flanagan, Alice Howard Holmes, Laura Flounoy, Myrtle Ruth Harrison, Vivian Harper, Mary Levinia Inabnet, Katherine Kugler, Faith Knapp, Nell McCormick, Carolyn Oliver, Sarah Elizabeth Randle, Virginia Ann Stulce, Barbara Thompson, Mildred Wales and counselor, Miss Beatrice Skirvin.

News-Star--World Pattern

PATTERNS 1770 AND 1780 You can't have too many frocks in your wardrobe—there's always an occasion when you want to slip into a new one—it's a good boost for your spirits, and besides you have worn your last year's frocks quite often, haven't you? Fabrics are lovely this year and not at all expensive, and it's just no trouble to run up a simple model like either of these sketched today.

Pattern 1770 is the sort to wear to town for shopping, for spectator sports and for general knockabout. It is best fashioned of cotton—one of the new ones, rough in texture, would be just the thing. The scarf adds a splash of color—note how smartly it slips under the revers and ties in a huge flowing bow. Pleats lend freedom and animation to the skirt.

Pattern 1780 is the ideal frock for luncheon, tea or informal afternoon affairs. Its lines are feminine, and extremely flattering to the figure—the gracefully flared sleeves set in raglan fashion, the unusual fitted waistline where no belt is necessary and the slender skirt panels. This is

Farmerville

On Wednesday evening, Miss Lillian Edwards, Miss Dorothy Terral and Miss Mary Lee Hill were co-hostesses at a tea given in honor of the Farmerville high school seniors. The reception suite of the Edwards home was beautifully decorated with baskets of white hyacinths intermingled with sprays of fern.

As the guests registered they were received by their faculty, Miss Bertha Cobb, Miss Hilda Fuller, Miss Corrie Smith, Miss Coralie Saunders, Mrs. P. L. Read, Mr. J. Q. Long and Mr. Lowell J. Everett; class officers, Miss Ernestine Ramsey, T. G. Davis, Jr., and Ezelle McGough and Parish Superintendent P. L. Read.

The table, laid with Normandy lace, was appointed in green, white and silver in recognition of St. Patrick. Sandwiches were three-leaved and tinted green and white, while mints and other confections were all suggestive of St. Patrick designs. White hyacinths and green fern arranged so as to overflow the center surrounded with tall white tapers supported by silver, repeated the color as green bulbs in wall brackets and chandeliers diffused a soft light for the evening.

Presiding at the table was Miss Bertha Cobb, who poured the tea and was assisted by Miss Edwards' mother, Mrs. George M. Edwards.

Between the hours of six and eight the following guests registered: Ezelle McGough, T. G. Davis, Jr., Ernestine Ramsey, Cecil Read, Martha Hollis, Callie McVicker, Mary Louise Smith, Cecelia Rant, Mary Louise Smith, Clemmie Brantley, Evelyn Cox, Christelle Dean, Evelyn Taylor, Corbet Brasher, Mildred Nyegard, Hazel Brooks, Vilma Nolan, Dhal Malone, Estell Armstrong, Ruby Foster, Mary Lou Smith, Opal Templeton, Maxine Brantley, Rosa Wood, Cleo Taylor, Lorraine Auld, Broadus Odum, James Hill, Boyce Hamilton, Dorothy Green, Marie Neal, Naomi Phelps, Linzie Williams, Robbie Auger, James Pickle, James Brantley, Billy Joe Booth, Coralie Saunders, Corrie Smith, Hilda Fuller, Bertha Cobb, Doris Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Read, Lowell J. Everett, and J. Q. Long.

On Wednesday evening at the stroke of six, all the Intermediate boys of the Farmerville Baptist church were headed for the Stancil home. Here they were greeted by Lowell J. Everett, their teacher.

After all the boys gathered a sudden "out-cry" came from Robert Lee Albrighton that was in search of a "wild goose." On being directed by the group as chairman of the crowd for the evening, the entire class began searching for the "unknown fowl."

The search was started at Odum's store. Here they were directed to the Farmerville Mercantile company, so in turn the boys were sent to where the Stancil's Variety store. They found that John Lee Turnage was the only one to know the "secrets" of the "goose."

He told the boys it would be found at the Baptist church, and on arriving, Mr. Everett greeted the boys as the "goose." The class was ushered into the men's club where a class party, a bountiful chicken dinner was served to the following: Robert Lee Albrighton, Roland Hill, Jones Edward Booth, John Edward Rabun, J. W. Roan, Vaughn Phelps, Murry Ward, Junior Odum, Moses Compton, Jr., Jack Dean, Elwood Compton, Jr., Allen Stancil, Woodie Compton, and Leon Clark. At 7:30 the boys were dismissed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Dawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lee, Dr. and Mrs. J. Deane Miller, Miss Olivia Barr, Miss Christine Lee, W. Porter, Edward Everett, Jr., and Leon Clark attended a banquet given by Group No. 1 of the Louisiana Lions at Gibsland Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Baughman, Miss Faye and Elynn Baughman, David and Lazarus Baughman, Mrs. Lester Hartman, Miss Rita Hartman, Miss Gussie Fenton and Mrs. Paul Lusk were among the guests at the Farmerville hotel Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. Z. Harper and son, Davis, and Miss Gussie Price and Miss Imogene Hines of Crossett, Ark., spent the week-end in Farmerville as guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett J. Lee.

Joan waited, bewildered. She was sure this was not the usual approach of a business arrangement. This younger man was going all around the field instead of jumping fences.

"When I was in Monte Carlo several years ago," he went on, "I was in one of the elaborate night clubs which had a large and wealthy patronage. The place was packed every night principally because of a singer—an attractive woman who was always masked. People came to see her. You must humor them in a lot of foolish notions!"

"Incidentally, the singer disappeared one night. At the same time an American woman missed a costly diamond necklace. Guests remembered afterward that the singer had stopped near the Americans to untangle her scarf which had caught on a chair. The police worked on the case, but the woman was never found. She simply removed her mask and escape was simple."

Joan was becoming more bewildered. "It sounds like the fiction I was always encouraged to leave on the bookshelves," she said. "Are you planning to involve me in a jewel robbery?"

"Hardly!" I've built my business on unexpected things. I am preparing to offer you a chance now because I believe we can put over an idea I've had in mind for four years. I'm taking you on as one of my singers and you will sing in a mask. Other cabarets have tried the same thing, but I mean to do it differently."

When Joan reached the hotel she found a telegram waiting for her. It read, "Received long letter from Pat. She has job and is living with another girl. Gave no address but promised one soon. Am writing tonight. Mother."

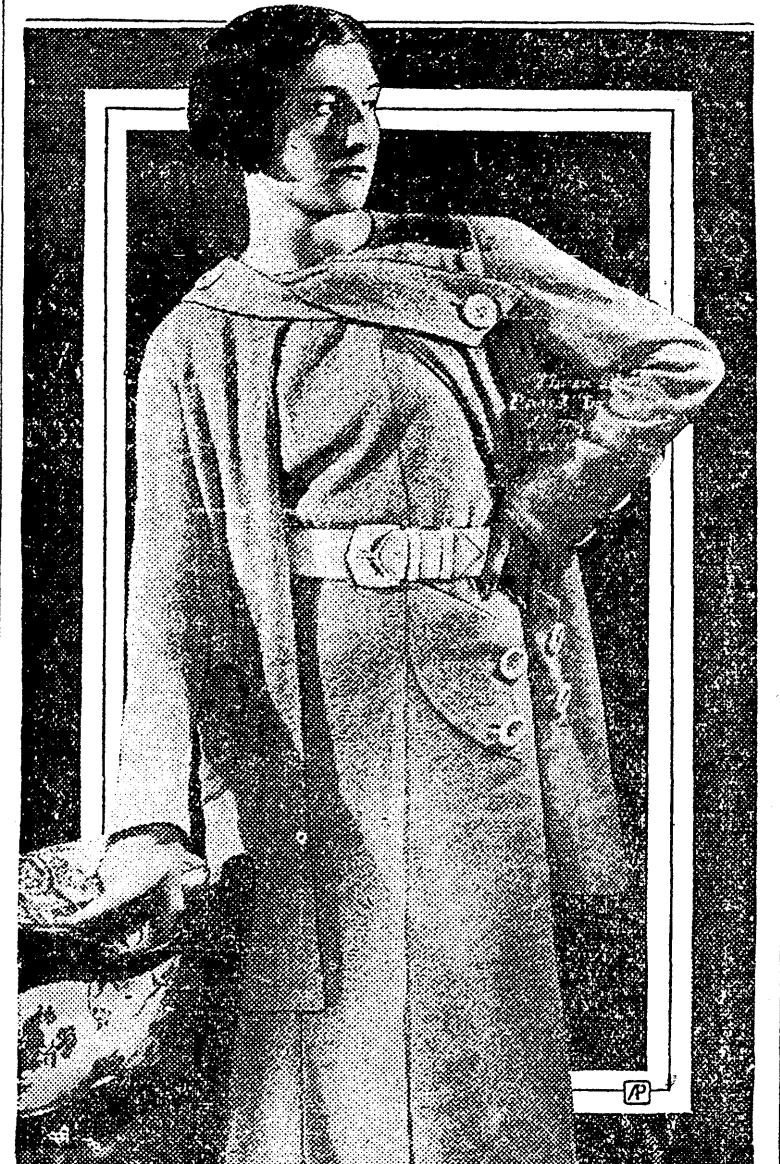

Joan sat down and cried over the telegram, the burden of anxiety slipping from her with tears. Now she could bear looking out of the window at the millions of lights. Pat was safe. Pat had found work. Clever, efficient, level-headed little Pat. Oh, if she could only see her tonight!

It was a long while before Joan could think of her own new job. She had been vaguely troubled at the idea of singing in a night club but had pushed aside her scruples. The melodramatic plan to have her wear a mask changed all that. She could sing at the "Jigsaw" and no one would be wiser. Masking seemed silly but it would make the job much easier.

Blake had terminated the interview a little abruptly. "There'll be $50 a week for you in it. Perhaps more later on if the act goes over."

Joan smiled. Fifty dollars a week was a fortune! She went to the win-

CHAPTER XXII

Joan looked at the night club manager without replying. He went on, whimsically but with a current of seriousness behind the words. "Don't mind me, Miss Waring. I'm always jumping fences instead of stopping to open gates. It's just my way of getting past a lot of preliminaries which are really unimportant. We move fast in this business. What I mean is that it isn't going to be difficult for us to understand each other," he concluded.

He smiled then and Joan smiled back. Joan instinctively liked Barney Blake. His infectious smile and boyishness won them completely.

He was shifting papers in a desk drawer, frowning a little. "Here it is. Just luck that I saved it." He smoothed out a newspaper clipping and handed it to Joan. Her eyes were caught by bold, black headlines and the picture of a masked woman.

"Europeans have a flair for the unusual," Blake was saying. "They do things beautifully that we would be afraid to attempt. We Americans are always putting a curb on our enthusiasms because we are so afraid of ridicule."

Joan waited, bewildered. She was sure this was not the usual approach of a business arrangement. This younger man was going all around the field instead of jumping fences.

"When I was in Monte Carlo several years ago," he went on, "I was in one of the elaborate night clubs which had a large and wealthy patronage. The place was packed every night principally because of a singer—an attractive woman who was always masked. People came to see her. You must humor them in a lot of foolish notions!"

"Incidentally, the singer disappeared one night. At the same time an American woman missed a costly diamond necklace. Guests remembered afterward that the singer had stopped near the Americans to untangle her scarf which had caught on a chair. The police worked on the case, but the woman was never found. She simply removed her mask and escape was simple."

Joan was becoming more bewildered. "It sounds like the fiction I was always encouraged to leave on the bookshelves," she said. "Are you planning to involve me in a jewel robbery?"

"Hardly!" I've built my business on unexpected things. I am preparing to offer you a chance now because I believe we can put over an idea I've had in mind for four years. I'm taking you on as one of my singers and you will sing in a mask. Other cabarets have tried the same thing, but I mean to do it differently."

When Joan reached the hotel she found a telegram waiting for her. It read, "Received long letter from Pat. She has job and is living with another girl. Gave no address but promised one soon. Am writing tonight. Mother."

Joan sat down and cried over the telegram, the burden of anxiety slipping from her with tears. Now she could bear looking out of the window at the millions of lights. Pat was safe. Pat had found work. Clever, efficient, level-headed little Pat. Oh, if she could only see her tonight!

It was a long while before Joan could think of her own new job. She had been vaguely troubled at the idea of singing in a night club but had pushed aside her scruples. The melodramatic plan to have her wear a mask changed all that. She could sing at the "Jigsaw" and no one would be wiser. Masking seemed silly but it would make the job much easier.

Blake had terminated the interview a little abruptly. "There'll be $50 a week for you in it. Perhaps more later on if the act goes over."

Joan smiled. Fifty dollars a week was a fortune! She went to the win-

Joan went to the small desk in the corner of the room and wrote: "Darling Mother, you will never know how happy your telegram made me. I guess you do know, because all the anxiety and fear must have fallen from you when Pat's letter came. It was just like that with me. I was so happy I cried. I have been nearly frantic with fear for three weeks but I didn't want you to know that. I will write Pat tonight, care of General Delivery, and beg her to tell me where she is staying."

"I am going to stay in New York as long as Pat does. I have a job singing at a night club. Don't be shocked about it. It really is a nice place and the manager isn't at all what you'd expect. He looks just like any young business man and he is as nice as he can be. They say he's just a smart Yankee who's made a lot of money, because he manages to out-guess the crowd that comes to his club—always giving them some new or different sort of entertainment. Barney Blake is his name. One of the girls told me he went to college but didn't want to practice law and somehow he turned out to be a night club manager."

"In my act I am to wear a mask and I'm never to take it off until I return home at night. Of course in the day time I'm just Joan Waring but at night I'll be singing old songs like 'Love Brings a Gift of Roses,' wearing a lovely old-fashioned frock. And there's a gypsy song with a gorgeous gypsy costume. I think I like that best. Really the job is going to be fun—"

Bill grinned when his mother finished the letter. "Sounds like our little Joan sort of likes that night club fellow. What do you say, Mother?"

His mother said, "Nonsense, Bill! Don't be foolish."

The first morning when Pat was introduced to her work as a model in the large wholesale house a girl named Jane Johnson prophesied, "You'll like wearing good clothes—and you'll get used to them."

One month later Pat knew what Jane meant. When she slipped carelessly into an exquisite evening gown of white lace with pink rosebuds on the bodice she enjoyed the touch of the fragile fabric, the artful lines, the flattering way in which the dress clung to her figure. Pat turned the price tag thoughtfully in her hand.

Mrs. F. B. Neely Talks On Work Of Camp Fire

Mrs. F. B. Neely who has taken a prominent part in Camp Fire work in this city during the past several years has the following remarks to make in regard to the birthday anniversary recently observed in this city:

Out of the Camp Fire Girls' birthday project of 1933 grows their project for 1934. Hobbies, for one of the important factors in "Making the Most of Me" is being interesting and having interests.

With the forty-hour week a reality and ever shorter hours in view, it is apparent that everyone is going to have a great deal of leisure time. As Angelo Patri recently said, "People who do not know what to do with their leisure time are already giving themselves and other people a lot of trouble."

Increased leisure time will be a burden rather than a blessing to the adult who has no special interests and who must entirely rely for his entertainment on commercial amusements. At the end of a long strenuous week day a detective story is good relaxation. But for people who come home from work still full of energy and interest, these forms of entertainment will not suffice. The individual will need something to do that requires the use of his intelligence and creativeness. If he has not developed the basis for these interests in his formative years, he will have difficulty in getting underway.

In choosing her hobby and pursuing it, the Camp Fire girl will find she is earning honors, and that many of the things she does are already a part of the program.

The hobby which a girl chooses should lift her out of the ordinary routine of life into the most exciting living. Ask your girls how they spend their leisure time; what they do on Saturdays and in the afternoon when school is over for the day. Camp Fire girls are happy—the seventh law of the Fire.

Picturesque daffodils and bridal wreath and other flowers suggestive of spring, formed a decorative background of the spacious reception rooms Friday afternoon when Miss Hazel Mitchell welcomed members of "Le Cercle Francais" of the Ouachita junior college in her home on the west side.

French games offered the chief diversion for the afternoon with a selection of French songs by Mr. Marlan Gilliland, accompanied by Miss Anna Lee Null.

Prizes, featuring the Easter motif, were received by Misses Dorothy Flanagan and Clarissa Davis.

PATTERNS 1770 AND 1780

You can't have too many frocks in your wardrobe—there's always an occasion when you want to slip into a new one—it's a good boost for your spirits, and besides you have worn your last year's frocks quite often, haven't you? Fabrics are lovely this year and not at all expensive, and it's just no trouble to run up a simple model like either of these sketched today.

Pattern 1770 is the sort to wear to town for shopping, for spectator sports and for general knockabout. It is best fashioned of cotton—one of the new ones, rough in texture, would be just the thing. The scarf adds a splash of color—note how smartly it slips under the revers and ties in a huge flowing bow. Pleats lend freedom and animation to the skirt.

Pattern 1780 is the ideal frock for luncheon, tea or informal afternoon affairs. Its lines are feminine, and extremely flattering to the figure—the gracefully flared sleeves set in raglan fashion, the unusual fitted waistline where no belt is necessary and the slender skirt panels. This is

Farmerville

On Wednesday evening, Miss Lillian Edwards, Miss Dorothy Terral and Miss Mary Lee Hill were co-hostesses at a tea given in honor of the Farmerville high school seniors.

The reception suite of the Edwards home was beautifully decorated with baskets of white hyacinths intermingled with sprays of fern.

As the guests registered they were received by their faculty, Miss Bertha Cobb, Miss Hilda Fuller, Miss Corrie Smith, Miss Coralie Saunders, Mrs. P. L. Read, Mr. J. Q. Long and Mr. Lowell J. Everett; class officers, Miss Ernestine Ramsey, T. G. Davis, Jr., and Ezelle McGough and Parish Superintendent P. L. Read.

The table, laid with Normandy lace, was appointed in green, white and silver in recognition of St. Patrick. Sandwiches were three-leaved and tinted green and white, while mints and other confections were all suggestive of St. Patrick designs. White hyacinths and green fern arranged so as to overflow the center surrounded by tall white tapers supported by silver, repeated the color as green bulbs in wall brackets and chandeliers diffused a soft light for the evening.

Presiding at the table was Miss Bertha Cobb, who poured the tea and was assisted by Miss Edwards' mother, Mrs. George M. Edwards.

Between the hours of six and eight the following guests registered: Ezelle McGough, T. G. Davis, Jr., Ernestine Ramsey, Cecil Read, Martha Hollis, Callie McVicker, Mary Lillian Patterson, Cecelia Roan, Mary Louise Smith, Clemmie Brantley, Evelyn Cox, Christelle Dean, Evelyn Taylor, Corbett Brasher, Mildred Nyegaard, Hazel Brooks, Vilma Nolan, Dhale Malone, Estell Armstrong, Ruby Foster, Mary Lou Smith, Opal Templeton, Maxine Brantley, Rosa Wood, Cleo Taylor, Lorraine Aulds, Broadus Odum, James Hill, Boyce Hamilton, Dorothy Green, Marie Neal, Naomi Phelps, Linnie Williams, Robbie Auger, James Pickel, James Brantley, Billy Joe Booth, Coralie Saunders, Corrie Smith, Hilda Fuller, Bertha Cobb, Doris Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Read, Lowell J. Everett, and J. Q. Long.

On Wednesday evening at the stroke of six, all the intermediate boys of the Farmerville Baptist church were headed for the Stancil home. Here they were greeted by Lowell J. Everett, their teacher.

After all the boys gathered a sudden "out-cry" came from Robert Lee Albrighton that he was in search of a "wild goose." On being selected by the group as chairman of the crowd for the evening, the entire class began searching for the "unknown fowl."

The search was started at Odum's store. Here they were directed to the Farmerville Mercantile company, so in turn the boys were sent to Sanderson's Variety store. They found that John Lee Turnage was the only one to know the "secrets" of the "goose." He told the boys it would be found at the Baptist church, and on arriving, Mr. Everett greeted the boys as the "goose." The class was ushered into the men's Bible class room where a bountiful chicken dinner was served to the following: Robert Lee Albrighton, Roland Hill, James Edward Booth, John Edward Rabun, J. W. Roan, Vaughn Phelmy, Murry Ward, Junior Odum, Mose Compton, Jr., Jack Dean, Elwood Compton, Jr., Allen Stancil, Woodie Compton, Horace Clark, Jr., Rev. Tom L. Roberts, Mr. Everett was assisted by Mrs. Joe Booth in the courtesies of the evening.

Joan looked at the night club manager without replying. He went on, whimsically but with a current of seriousness behind the words. "Don't mind me, Miss Waring. I'm always judging fences instead of stopping to open gates. It's just my way of getting past a lot of preliminaries which are really unimportant. We move fast in this business. What I mean is that it isn't going to be difficult for us to understand each other," he concluded.

He smiled then and Joan smiled back. People instinctively liked Barney Blake. His infectious smile and boyishness won them completely.

He was shifting papers in a desk drawer, frowning a little. "Here it is. Just luck that I saved it." He smoothed out a newspaper clipping and handed it to Joan. Her eyes were caught by bold, black headlines and the picture of a masked woman.

"Europeans have a flair for the unusual," Blake was saying. "They do things beautifully that we would be afraid to attempt. We Americans are always putting a curb on our enthusiasms because we are so afraid of ridicule."

Joan waited, bewildered. She was sure this was not the usual approach to a business arrangement. This younger man was going all around the field instead of jumping fences.

"When I was in Monte Carlo several years ago," he went on, "I was in one of the elaborate night clubs which had a large and wealthy patronage. The place was packed every night principally because of a singer—an attractive woman who was always masked. People are really like children. You must humor them in a lot of foolish notions."

"Incidentally, the singer disappeared one night. At the same time an American woman missed a costly diamond necklace. Guests remembered afterward that the singer had stopped near the Americans to untangle her scarf which had caught on a chair. The police worked on the case, but the woman was never found. She simply removed her mask and escape was simple."

Joan was becoming more bewildered. "It sounds like the fiction I was always encouraged to leave on the bookshelves," she said. "Are you planning to involve me in a jewel robbery?"

"Hardly!" I've built my business on unexpected things. I am preparing to offer you a chance now because I believe we can put over an idea I've had in mind for four years. I'm taking you on as one of my singers and you

And there's a gypsy song with a gorgeous gypsy costume. I think I like that best. Really the job is going to be fun—"

Bill grinned when his mother finished the letter. "Sounds like our little Joan sort of likes that night club fellow. What do you say, Mother?"

His mother said, "Nonsense, Bill! Don't be foolish."

The first morning when Pat was introduced to her work as a model in the large wholesale house a girl named Jane Johnson prophesied, "You'll like wearing good clothes—and you'll get used to them."

One month later Pat knew what Jane meant. When she slipped carelessly into an exquisite evening gown of white lace with pink rosebuds on the bodice she enjoyed the touch of the fragile fabric, the artful lines, the flattering way in which the dress clung to her figure. Pat turned the price tag thoughtfully in her hand.

Yes, it was easy to learn to like beautiful clothes.

Jane, who had worked her way up to a supervisory position, put her head in the door. "There's a gang of buyers waiting to see those evening gowns. More speed, girls!"

Lauren was modeling a green satin Vionnet. Jessie's white chiffon was a copy of a Chanel. Ruth wore black velvet and Mabel, the other girl, a coral crepe. Pat, already dressed stood watching the others. Lauren was grumbling. "This thing fits me like the paper on the wall. It's back to the orange juice diet for me, or I'll be out of a job! And how I hate orange juice!"

Ruth said, "Never mind, honey. They say the Mae West figure's going to be the rage and then you can have all the steak dinners and French pasty you want."

"All right, Jessie," Jane said from the door.

Jessie, with one slender wrist crooked against her hip in the inimitable manner that was the envy and despair of the others, moved into the big room where the buyers were gathered.

Mabel, looking like a glowing flame in the coral dress, was next. It was Mabel who whispered to Pat when she returned. "The boss is all a-twitter! Some of his best buyers are in there—old Fodick from Indianapolis, Larry Brentford from Milwaukee and a man from Dallas. The rest are small fry who don't matter so much."

Pat, her golden curls caught back, looked young and graceful with the roses of her corsage matching color in her soft, curved lips. Slowly she entered the big room, paraded before the men and women buyers. As she moved over the thick carpet, past the large, comfortable chairs, she became conscious of the admiring gaze of one man.

It made Pat nervous—the half smile on the lips of the stockily built man. It was almost a deliberate stare. He was carefully dressed, his thinning hair brushed until every hair lay smoothly in place. He sat forward in his seat, one hand gripping his cane, devouring Pat with his eyes.

She did not know why she disliked him so much or why she found his appraisal so disconcerting. After all, she was there to be looked at. She sighed with relief, however, when she was back in the dressing room.

She had slipped into her street clothes and was tucking her curls under a white knitted hat when Jane came in.

"They want you in the manager's office," Jane said, adding kindly, "I'm sure it's nothing to worry about."

"What in the world can the manager want with me?" Pat asked.

Jane did not answer and Pat opened the door. Her heart was beating nervously. Then she stifled her fears. What could there be to worry about?

STORY TELLS OF MILL OPERATION

Brown Paper Mill Publication Describes "Digger Room"

Another interesting item concerning mill operation was contained in a recent issue of the Little Brown Jug, weekly publication of the Brown Paper mill. These articles have been reproduced on this page to acquaint the public with some of the interesting operation phases of the great kraft mill at Brownville.

The latest article is as follows: "In order to appreciate the necessity of cooperation and co-ordination in the digester room it is only necessary to investigate the steps that are taken each time a cook is made."

"First—After a digester has been properly cooked and the pulp blown by the ninety-pound cooking pressure into a storage tank, the cycle for another cook is started. The digester head or cover must be removed with every possible precaution, because the digester, having been under the high steam pressure, might have a slight remaining pressure which when released might cause a serious accident.

"Second—After the head is removed a blast of steam is blown into the digester to ascertain if there has been any pulp left in the digester and if the steam line is in good working order. In order to make good pulp there must be no pulp left in the digester and the steam line must be in perfect order.

"Third—The digester is then filled with chips to a previously determined mark. This is important because a shortage of chips directly affects the pulp yield per cook and the quality of pulp because the cooking liquor is run in for a full charge of chips. A digester holds about 1,250 cubic feet of chips.

"Fourth—The cooking liquor is then put in. A digester requires approximately 3,500 gallons of cooking liquor. Each batch of cooking liquor must be carefully analyzed before being put into the digester. Accuracy in both analyzing and measuring the quantity of liquor run in is absolutely necessary.

"Fifth—The digester head is now bolted back on and the steam turned into the newly charged digester.

"The above five steps must be completed in 12 or less minutes, otherwise with a definite cooking time, any lagging or loss of time will mean a corresponding loss of production.

"The operator of the digester room must be constantly on the lookout for changing in the condition of the wood. A skilled operator can tell immediately whether there has been a change in wood and it is his duty to report the change so that the proper steps can be taken."

LEE-ROGERS HAS EXPERT SERVICE

Thoroughly Equipped Shop Is Manned By Experienced Mechanics

Regarding the service department of Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company located at Walnut street, it strongly brings to mind the old adage—"you can fool some of the people—"

Servicing hundreds of cars per month, as does the service department of this prominent Monroe firm, it requires neither sage nor philosopher to realize that there must be a reason for this—a reason that has been conclusive over an amply sufficient length of time to resolve itself into a complete confirmation of the truth of this ancient adage.

"Various theories have been indulged in regarding auto repairing," states Jack Rogers. "Statistics, however, continue to be the most authoritative source of information, and by a compilation thereof it has been accurately ascertained that those cars serviced by the dealer continue to take the lead in both performance and trade-in value, and it is here where we have a distinct advantage to offer the Chevrolet owner."

Occupying an enviable position as one of the leading Chevrolet dealers in the entire district, the factory-trained mechanics, factory tools, equipment, parts, etc., bear mute evidence of the fact that for the Chevrolet owner, this is the logical scene of his repair work. For a company to actually service hundreds of cars per month over an extended period resolves itself into one of the finest testimonials for efficiency and equitable dealings ever brought to light in this entire section.

The reputation of Lee-Rogers, from the standpoint of the utmost in service and integrity has been built on a "rock." Since the inception of the company, its sole purpose and aim has been to conduct its affairs as to make its clients references. Today, the names of such clients are legion. The reputation established by this concern for its used cars has been handed down to its service department, and it is the combined elements of the two that make the name of Lee-Rogers synonymous with everything in the category of ultra-Chevrolet service.

To those Chevrolet owners, and owners of other makes as well, who may have in the past been perplexed by the various troubles from the standpoint of mechanical service, it is strongly suggested that they avail themselves of the services of such a company—a company whose reputation in the past is its recommendation for the future, a company that, from every angle, new cars, used cars and repair service, stands without a peer.

In bringing your car to Lee-Rogers you may do so secure in the knowledge that your wants will be met in every detail, satisfactorily, courteously, equitably and of course, economically.

The Longfellow-Evangeline park of 300 acres in St. Martin parish, Louisiana, stands as a memorial to the Acadian maiden in exile and to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, who immortalized her in his poem, "Evangeline."

"After having parked the car for about an hour, I saw one tire was partly deflated and the next morning, it was entirely down. I put on a spare and did nothing more with the deflated tire for about a week when I took it into a service station to be repaired."

"After a thorough inspection, the repairman said he could find no break in the tire but heard something rolling around inside the tube, which he opened. Inside was a bullet, which had gone through the fender, tire casing and tube to remain inside the tube when it had been spent."

Lechner said he felt sure that the bullet would have caused an ordinary balloon tire to go out at once, with a bang, and probably would have diverted the course of the car, traveling at high speed, so that it might have been wrecked.

The famous General tire line is sold in Monroe by the Central and Circle S serve stations, home of complete service.

Public works dredging for extension of an airport at the head of Chesapeake bay is removing tons of phosphorus on the bay bottom that has been a poison menace to wild waterfowl.

Queer Fire Hazard Is Reported In Michigan

This very curious incident was recently reported from Hazel Bar, Michigan:

"A mouse, a cat and a dog teamed up to destroy the house of Charles Gunisch. The mouse chewed on matches setting the box afire. The cat chased the mouse, then the dog chased the cat and a can of kerosene was overturned. Mouse, cat and dog were burned, along with the house."

Quite contrary to this report, fire prevention authorities state that rats or mice do not chew on matches. Because this has been reported as the cause of so many fires, a test was made in which these rodents were confined in a glass case without food for several days. A number of ordinary matches left in the enclosure were untouched.

There is a fire hazard in connection with matches and rodents, however, which is caused by the possibility of a match being set off in the wall of a house as the rodent carries it to his nest. Accordingly, these potential fire brands should be kept in tightly closed metal containers, well out of the reach of children, who are more likely to cause fires with matches, than mice or rats. For safety's sake keep kerosene in closed containers where it cannot be knocked over.

It is interesting to note that the national board of fire underwriters reported a loss of almost $30,000,000 during 1932 from the careless use of matches and smoking materials. Petroleum and its products caused a loss of $11,500,000 during the same year.

Fire losses in general have been reduced extensively in the past two years of depression. Let's keep them down as better than times return, is the suggestion of the Seymour, Ins. Agency.

GENERAL TIRES THWART ROBBER

Jumbos Withstand Highwayman's Bullets And Victim Escapes

A Cleveland newspaperman, Richard Lechner, attributes his escape from a pair of highwaymen recently to the fact that a revolver bullet was unable to put his low pressure stream-line Jumbo tires out of commission.

Shortly before midnight, one Sunday night, Lechner was driving on the State road from Akron to Cleveland at about 45 miles an hour when two men stepped out into the road and attempted to stop him.

"I slowed down momentarily, then decided to speed up," said Lechner, after the encounter. "A few seconds later, I heard a report followed by another almost immediately. I could feel both bullets strike my car."

"I drove 10 miles at a high rate of speed before stopping. When I got out of the car, I found a bullet hole through the middle of one rear fender directly in line with one of the tires. The other fender was dented but not pierced. As neither tire was deflated, I drove on into Cleveland."

"After having parked the car for about an hour, I saw one tire was partly deflated and the next morning, it was entirely down. I put on a spare and did nothing more with the deflated tire for about a week when I took it into a service station to be repaired."

"After a thorough inspection, the repairman said he could find no break in the tire but heard something rolling around inside the tube, which he opened. Inside was a bullet, which had gone through the fender, tire casing and tube to remain inside the tube when it had been spent."

Lechner said he felt sure that the bullet would have caused an ordinary balloon tire to go out at once, with a bang, and probably would have diverted the course of the car, traveling at high speed, so that it might have been wrecked.

PONTIACS HAVE SMOOTH ENGINE

Straight Eight Motor Found Most Satisfactory, Says Engineer

PONTIAC, Mich., March 24.—(Special)—It is conceded that every motorist wants a smooth running automobile engine. The smoother the engine the greater the pleasure in driving. According to B. H. Anibal, vice president in charge of engineering of Pontiac Motor company, an engine designed for smoothness in not all that is necessary. Works and months of designing and testing are wasted unless just as much care is taken to manufacture smoothness into the engine.

"The Pontiac management decided to build nothing but straight eight engines," said Mr. Anibal, "because they knew that with four overlapping power impulses to every turn of the crankshaft the smoothest kind of performance is possible. That means an uninterrupted flow of power which you do not find with fewer cylinders."

"Pontiac production experts have backed up the smoothness of our 8-cylinder design," continued Mr. Anibal, "with special tools and machinery that turned out just as perfectly balanced rotating and reciprocating parts as you will find in any automobile."

"For instance, the 71-pound, 100 per cent counterweighted crankshaft, which rotates at a high rate of speed, is as smooth on its bearings at any speed as it is when the engine is not running. That is brought by placing every crankshaft in running balance in an ingenious patented machine even before the accurate machining and grinding operations are started. Following the final machining operations each shaft gets the customary tests both for static and running balance. Flywheel and clutch assemblies similarly are balanced."

"The short stroke or throw of the Pontiac crankshaft greatly stiffens it, prevents twisting and distortion and increases engine smoothness. Another feature that contributes a lot to its smoothness," Mr. Anibal went on, "is the use of eight counterweights which are forged as integral parts of the crankshaft. Centrifugal force exerted by the mass of these counterweights reduces bearing pressure at all speeds. It is one of the few crankshafts that is 100 per cent counterweighted."

"Engine smoothness is increased further by equipping the front end of the crankshaft with an harmonic balancer which neutralizes any tendency of torsional (twisting) vibration."

"Pontiac crankshafts are stiffened and strengthened by inside webs and outside ribs which eliminate distortion, prevent bearing thumps and knocks and thus insure a smooth running engine."

One of the principal factors in the smoothness of Pontiac straight eight engines, it is stated, comes from the care and precision that is taken with connecting rods. All connecting rods are forged with extra metal at the lower end and on each side of the rod just above the lower bearing. By machining off the right amount of metal at the bottom of the rod, the center of gravity is located accurately at the point desired, just above the lower bearing and is identically the same for every rod. By machining off metal above and below the center of gravity where extra metal also is located, every rod is brought to exactly the same weight."

'Advantages' Of Long's Society Are Expounded

A capacity audience last night at the Ouachita parish high school auditorium heard expounded the "advantages" of Senator Huey P. Long's "Share Our Wealth" society, units of which the senator is trying to form all over the United States. Long's record as a governor and as a member of the senate was defended.

Queer Fire Hazard Is Reported In Michigan

This very curious incident was recently reported from Hazel Bar, Michigan:

Quite contrary to this report, fire prevention authorities state that rats or mice do not chew on matches. Because this has been reported as the cause of so many fires, a test was made in which these rodents were confined in a glass case without food for several days. A number of ordinary matches left in the enclosure were untouched.

There is a fire hazard in connection with matches and rodents, however, which is caused by the possibility of a match being set off in the wall of a house as the rodent carries it to his nest. Accordingly, these potential fire brands should be kept in tightly closed metal containers, well out of the reach of children, who are more likely to cause fires with matches, than mice or rats. For safety's sake keep kerosene in closed containers where it cannot be knocked over.

It is interesting to note that the national board of fire underwriters reported a loss of almost $30,000,000 during 1932 from the careless use of matches and smoking materials. Petroleum and its products caused a loss of $11,500,000 during the same year.

Fire losses in general have been reduced extensively in the past two years of depression. Let's keep them down as better than times return, is the suggestion of the Seymour, Ins. Agency.

GENERAL TIRES THWART ROBBER

Jumbos Withstand Highwayman's Bullets And Victim Escapes

A Cleveland newspaperman, Richard Lechner, attributes his escape from a pair of highwaymen recently to the fact that a revolver bullet was unable to pierce his low pressure stream-line Jumbo tires out of commission.

Shortly before midnight, one Sunday night, Lechner was driving on the State road from Akron to Cleveland at about 45 miles an hour when two men stepped into the road and attempted to stop him.

"I slowed down momentarily, then decided to speed up," said Lechner, after the encounter. "A few seconds later, I heard a report followed by another almost immediately. I could feel both bullets strike my car."

"I drove 10 miles at a high rate of speed before stopping. When I got out of the car, I found a bullet hole through the middle of one rear fender directly in line with one of the tires. The other fender was dented but not pierced. As neither tire was deflated, I drove on into Cleveland."

"After having parked the car for about an hour, I saw one tire was partly deflated and the next morning, it was entirely down. I put on a spare and did nothing more with the deflated tire for about a week when I took it into a service station to be repaired."

"After a thorough inspection, the repairman said he could find no break in the tire but heard something rolling around inside the tube, which he opened. Inside was a bullet, which had gone through the fender, tire casing and tube to remain inside the tube when it had been spent."

Lechner said he felt sure that the bullet would have caused an ordinary balloon tire to go out at once, with a bang, and probably would have diverted the course of the car, traveling at high speed, so that it might have been wrecked.

The famous General tire line is sold in Monroe by the Central and Circle S serve stations, home of complete service.

Straight Eight Motor Found Most Satisfactory, Says Engineer

PONTIAC, Mich., March 24.—(Special)—It is conceded that every motorist wants a smooth running automobile engine. The smoother the engine the greater the pleasure in driving. According to B. H. Anibal, vice president in charge of engineering of Pontiac Motor company, an engine designed for smoothness in not all that is necessary. Works and months of designing and testing are wasted unless just as much care is taken to manufacture smoothness into the engine.

"The Pontiac management decided to build nothing but straight eight engines," said Mr. Anibal, "because they knew that with four overlapping power impulses to every turn of the crankshaft the smoothest kind of performance is possible. That means an uninterrupted flow of power which you do not find with fewer cylinders."

"Pontiac production experts have backed up the smoothness of our 8-cylinder design," continued Mr. Anibal, "with special tools and machinery that turn out just as perfectly balanced rotating and reciprocating parts as you will find in any automobile."

"For instance, the 71-pound, 100 per cent counterweighted crankshaft, which rotates at a high rate of speed, is as smooth on its bearings at any speed as it is when the engine is not running. That is brought by placing every crankshaft in running balance in an ingenious patented machine even before the accurate machining and grinding operations are started. Following the final machining operations each shaft gets the customary tests both for static and running balance. Flywheel and clutch assemblies similarly are balanced."

"The short stroke or throw of the Pontiac crankshaft greatly stiffens it, prevents twisting and distortion and increases engine smoothness. Another feature that contributes a lot to its smoothness," Mr. Anibal went on, "is the use of eight counterweights which are forged as integral parts of the crankshaft. Centrifugal force exerted by the mass of these counterweights reduces bearing pressure at all speeds. It is one of the few crankshafts that is 100 per cent counterweighted."

"Engine smoothness is increased further by equipping the front end of the crankshaft with an harmonic balancer which neutralizes any tendency of torsional (twisting) vibration."

"Pontiac crankshafts are stiffened and strengthened by inside webs and outside ribs which eliminate distortion, prevent bearing thumps and knocks and thus insure a smooth running engine."

One of the principal factors in the smoothness of Pontiac straight eight engines, it is stated, comes from the care and precision that is taken with connecting rods. All connecting rods are forged with extra metal at the lower end and on each side of the rod just above the lower bearing. By machining off the right amount of metal at the bottom of the rod, the center of gravity is located accurately at the point desired, just above the lower bearing, and is identically the same for every rod. By machining off metal above and below the center of gravity where extra metal also is located, every rod is brought to exactly the same weight."

'Advantages' Of Long's Society Are Expounded

A capacity audience last night at the Ouachita parish high school auditorium heard expounded the "advantages" of Senator Huey P. Long's "Share Our Wealth" society, units of which the senator is trying to form all over the United States. Long's record as a governor and as a member of the senate was defended.

HORTON SMITH HOLDS LEAD AT AUGUSTA WITH 212

JONES GETS PAR 72 BUT IS FAR BEHIND LEADERS

Five Pros Remain In Thrilling Battle For First Prize Money

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)
AUGUSTA, Ga., March 24.—(AP)—On the cold, soggy battleground of the Augusta National links today, after a gallant but discouraging pursuit, the great Bob Jones surrendered his last chance of over-taking the flying professional squadron in the $5,000 Masters' invitation golf tournament.

Jones today shot the best golf he has exhibited since he began his comeback two days after a lapse of nearly four years since his retirement as world champion. He shifted to a rusty old putter his mother has been using and recovered his touch to the extent of taking only 30 putts for the 18 holes but the "breaks" were against him and his par golf was not good enough to close the big gap between him and the leaders.

The Georgian's 54-hole total of 222, although lifting him 10 notches up the list to a tie for 18th place, also left him exactly 10 strokes behind the brilliant young leader, Horton Smith, of Chicago. Smith shattered par for the second time in three days with a 70. His three-day aggregate of 212 kept him a stroke in front of the field and made him the marked man in a prospective five-cornered battle in the final round tomorrow for the top money of $1,500.

While Jones was struggling through the raw, cheerless day in a hopeless chase, unable even to keep the stride with his old rival and playing companion, Walter Hagen, the professional pace setter gave par another terrific shattering.

On Horton Smith's heels, alone in second place, was Bill Burke, the man who succeeded Jones as national open champion in 1931. The Cleveland delegate, smoking his inevitable cigar, kept up his steady improvement with a 70 for a 54-hole total of 213. As a result he broke a tie with his playing partner, Ed Dudley, who posted a 71 for an aggregate of 214.

Craig Wood, the big blonde sharpshooter from Deal, N. J., leaped into the thick of the fight with a 69, which not only equaled Dudley's course record, set yesterday, but tied him with the home club pro for third place at 214. On their heels came diminutive Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., no longer worried about playing with Jones as he shot a 71 and moved up to fifth position with a total of 215.

These five, bunched within three shots of each other, looked to have the battle pretty much to themselves. Their nearest possible challengers were Willie MacFarlen, 1925 open champion, and the veteran Hagen, both of whom shot their best rounds today, 70 each and were tied for sixth at 217.

All 17 of the players leading Jones are professionals, many of whom have been through the big golfing wars with the Georgian. The pace setter, Horton Smith, was the last to take

CENTENARY GRID PRACTICE BEGINS

Coach Parker Faced With Task Of Replacing Ten Graduates

SHREVEPORT, March 24.—(Special)—Displaying the enthusiasm that carried them through a successful 1933 season, the Gents opened spring training Monday with a determination to produce another winner in '34.

The practice introduced Coach Curtis Parker as head coach and the Gents and E. T. Renfro as a very capable assistant. The season was opened by Coach Parker with an outline of what he expected of the boys, which was followed by a few words from Coach Renfro.

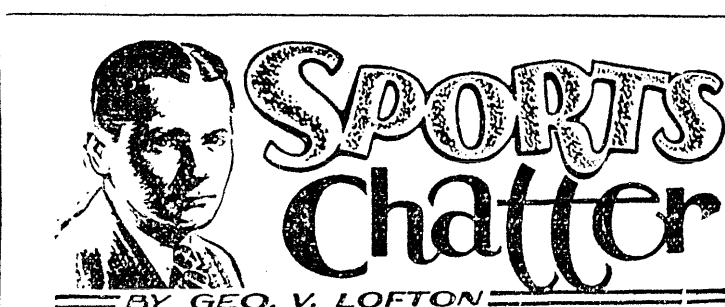

The spring session, which will last approximately eight weeks, will strive to fill the vacancies left by ten seniors. The first two or three weeks will consist mainly of fundamentals after which time "we will go into team play vigorously," said the Gent Mentor.

From last year's great ball club there are left such stars as "Buddy" Parker, newly appointed captain, and "Cotton" Weidman in the infield; Sid Binion and Conway Baker at the tackle posts and Fred Williams at center. The guard, end and quarterback positions as "wide open," so to speak. Herman Stacks, who saw considerable service, will probably hold down one of the end berths. The remaining lettermen consist of Glumac and Sellers in the backfield and Joe Gully at tackle.

The old system of appointing a captain before each game was recently abandoned when Coach Parker appointed "Buddy" Parker of Kemp, Texas, as captain of the Gents for the 1934 season. The appointment was revealed Saturday and unanimously accepted by the Gent warriors.

Parker will be a senior next year and is considered one of the best blocking backs to appear in a Gent uniform in the past decade. Besides his outstanding football ability, "Buddy," as he is known to his companions, is one of the most popular boys both on and off the gridiron.

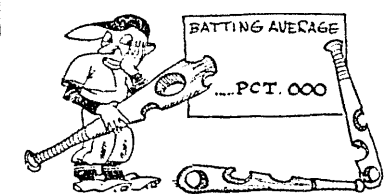

Neville High Scores 15 Points To Win State Boxing Title

THE SAME OLD FACES

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la, have nothing whatever on a half hundred rookies who annually live in the newspaper glare for a brief month or so and then fade away as swiftly as they came. These lads who join the major league camps each year have their moments of glory as the correspondents send glowing write-ups back to the home paper but when the season starts, the same old faces are usually occupying the important positions on the ball clubs.

That's particularly true this season. Few youngsters labeled as "million dollar beauties" will break into the lineups this year. There may be one or two exceptions, but as a whole you'll find the veterans doing the chores when the May sun begins to warm things up.

Right now the vets are patiently standing aside and allowing the eager rookies to enjoy their brief moment of glory. Another week or two and we'll be wondering what became of Joe Whoois, the lad who was certain to beat Al Simmons out of his job. The veterans will have hit their stride then.

Some of the rookies will stick it out, of course, and some day several of those who go back to the bushes this summer will return and make the grade.

But this season you're going to find that few untied ball players have measured up to major league standards. The clubs will be changed, of course, but that's because the managers spent one of the busiest winters in history in their trading activities. The employees were shifted about and as a result, a more even race in each league is expected.

All of which reminds us of the story which is usually told as having Casey Stengel as its principal character. Casey was just a youngster who went south with a major league ball club. He was a rookie outfielder. The first week in camp, young Stengel was a wild day each time he trotted out to do his stint before the manager's eyes. But as time wore on, Casey began to find it harder and harder to hold up his end as the team's shining rookie. Finally it became so tough he sat down at the dining desk in the hotel and penned these words to his mother:

"Dear Ma,
"The pitchers have started throwing curves. I will be home soon.
"Your loving son,
"CASEY STENGEL."

WAS HIS FACE RED?

The fellows on the other side will have to be pretty tough if Rupert Scott, halfback candidate, is knocked out in Auburn's football games next fall.

Repairing a radio aerial on the roof of a dormitory the other day, his foot slipped and he fell three stories.

S. A. A. U. CROWN WON BY LOYOLA

University Boxers Amass 16 Points In New Orleans Tourney

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—(AP)—Loyola university tonight won the team championship of the annual southern A. A. U. boxing tournament by amassing a total of 16 points.

Southwestern Louisiana institute of Lafayette, La., was second with 13 points, and Shreveport, La., was third with seven.

The summary:
105-pound class—Denny Kennedy, independent score, technical knockout over Bob O'Brien, Knights of Columbus, in second round.
112-pound class—Artie Kennedy, independent, outpointed "Pee Wee" Gibbs, Shreveport.

Heavyweight—Woodrow Carter, Hattiesburg, Miss., outpointed Jerry Anselmo, Kingsley house.

Witnesses came running, expecting to find him dead or seriously injured. But he arose with only slight injuries and a red face.

Embarrassment was the worst part about it, said Rupert.

ANOTHER BLAST

Bill Tilden has deserted the ranks of the amateurs but others have come to the fore as severe critics of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association. In fact, there seems to be more critics of this august body than defenders.

Vincent Richards, five times former member of the Davis cup team, turned author and gives his formula for regaining this symbol of international tennis supremacy, in the April issue of Esquire, somewhat in the form of an open letter to the U. S. L. T. A.

Concerning that able body, Richards has a few, not too tender remarks to make about its origin and political working order.

"As is always the case when a 'sure thing' comes along," writes Mr. Richards, "keen-eyed business men, shrewd executives throughout the country, pounced upon tennis with avidity. They lost no time in recognizing the potentialities of the game. Call it foresight, insight, business acumen or what you will, the fact remains in cold analysis, that the smart boys realized what a public appeal the game would enjoy and envied the glory and indirect but invaluable benefits they would derive in their commercial operations from a prominent connection with the United States Lawn Tennis association."

"Accordingly they established themselves in honorary positions. Actually the United States Lawn Tennis association was formed in 1886, but I refer to that era of 'job-grabbing and office seeking' immediately following its birth.

"It little mattered that they could not manipulate a racket. They were the organizers. They could not be the players but at least they were the planners. It was in this decade that the foundation was laid for one of the greatest political machines in the realm of sports. A machine functioning so smoothly—comprehensively—automatically and with such finality that even Tammany Hall might well raise its brows, observe, and pattern with profit."

DO YOU REMEMBER?

One Year Ago Today—The New York Rangers defeated the Montreal Canadiens in the third-place National Hockey league playoff for the Stanley cup.

Five Years Ago Today—Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, knocked out Joey Medill of Chicago, in the fourth of a 12-rounder.

CUNNINGHAM WINS MILE AT BUTLER

Kansas Star Easily Beats Ray Sears In Feature Of Relays

BUTLER UNIVERSITY FIELD-HOUSE, INDIANAPOLIS, March 24.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham, world indoor mile record holder, ran to an easy mile victory over Ray Sears of Butler in the feature event of the Butler university indoor relays here tonight.

The great champion opened a lead on the last lap and led Sears to the tape by 20 yards in 4:17.9.

Willis Ward, Michigan negro, nosed out Hall of the University of Kansas in the 60-yard dash, equalling the accepted world's record of 6.2 seconds, set by Metcalfe, Marquette, in 1933.

Ward was stopped in his bid for a triple victory when after winning the 60-yard dash he was nosed out by Kenneth Sandbach of Purdue in the finals of the 60-yard high hurdles.

Sandbach broke the tape in 6.7 seconds, but a few feet in front of Kenneth Sandbach of Purdue.

Lambertus' world and intercollegiate record for the event, set this year, was 6.8 seconds.

MANTERIS BEATS MANSOUR TO WIN 145-POUND TITLE

Bolton, Lutchter And Baton Rouge Tie For Second Place Honor

BATON ROUGE, La., March 25.—(AP)—A flock of first, second and third places totaling 15 points tonight gave Neville high of Monroe the state high school boxing team championship. Bolton, Alexandria, Lutchter, and Baton Rouge tied for second.

The north Louisiana boys, who came to Baton Rouge as champions of their district, snatched the state title from the eager grasps of Bolton, of Alexandria, Lutchter and Baton Rouge, who tied for second.

Neville clinched the title when Manteris won the 145-pound final round in a spectacular go with Mansour of Baton Rouge. Manteris had formerly been beaten by Mansour and the Baton Rouge boy was scheduled to take him again, but the Neville scrapper came through handily.

Other Neville point winners were: 105 pounds, Nicholson, second; 165 pounds, Crews, second; 90 pounds, King, third; 112 pounds, Mattinson, third; 118 pounds, Green, third; 175 pounds, Reagan, third.

JUNIOR COLLEGE STARTS SOFTBALL

Intramural League To Be Organized For Ouachita Athletes

Although spring is in the air it will be no excuse for the athletes of Ouachita parish junior college to take a vacation for they have plenty of work to do. With tennis already under way, plans are being made for an intramural league in softball that should be ready for play next week.

From the last reports the tennis squad is rounding in shape fast and should be ready for a practice match next week-end with one of the local high schools. Ranking of players will be made this week and this is causing the candidates to take their practices seriously.

Henry Florheim, who was elected captain last week, said that he thought they would be able to hold their own with any other squad in this section after two more weeks of workouts.

The club will be particularly strong in the women's single with Elizabeth Kennedy as No. 1 and Beverly Russell, No. 2. These two girls will also pair off in the women's doubles.

After a successful season with an intramural basketball league, Coach J. Paul Kemerer said the softball league probably will be even more popular than the cage league that gave about 50 boys a chance to participate in athletics. About 75 candidates are expected out for the four teams that will comprise the league.

A schedule is now being worked out and final arrangements should be made within a few days.

The schedule will be divided into two halves with each team playing each other twice in a round. With the material divided as equally as possible, interest in the league should be kept high.

George Manteris Voted Most Valuable Athlete

George Manteris, the Tigers' versatile athlete, won first place in a contest to determine Neville high school's most valuable athlete and will be awarded a suit of clothes by Fink the Tailor.

Manteris, who has lettered in football, basketball, boxing and baseball during his career at Neville, polled 682 votes, beating out Tommy Nicholson, boxing star, who polled 479 ballots. Manteris is a senior.

The blank ballots were run for three days in the World and News-Star and the large total of 1,489 votes were cast in the contest.

Herbert Fink, who made the award, announced that next year the contest will be enlarged to include the most valuable athlete of both Neville and Ouachita high schools.

Following is the complete vote: George Manteris, 682.

Tommy Nicholson, 479.
Nick Danna, 154.
James Sumrell, 91.
Julian Reagan, 27.
Ernest Pierce, 23.
Darius Crews, 19.
Tom King, 14.

REPLACING L. S. U. STARS TOUGH JOB

Jones Hunts For Successors To Torrance, Kent And Lobdell

BATON ROUGE, March 24.—(Special)—The battle scarred football shoes of Jack Torrance, John Kent and Bill Lobdell look larger and larger every time.

With the spring football training scheduled to end Wednesday, the Louisiana State mentors haven't as yet found men capable of filling the brogans of the three departed grid-men.

Finding men capable of filling the shoes of Torrance, 280-pound all-South tackle, and John Kent, center, voted the most valuable man on the undefeated 1933 team, needless to say is no easy task.

The L. S. U. coaches have devoted a great deal of time this winter to the tackle candidates since two men will be needed to replace the giant Torrance, who was good for 60 minutes in every tough game. Shelby Calhoun, a 1933 reserve, is the best of the candidates, but Coach Jones is having trouble finding a good replacement.

Garland Pickett, 215-pound end, has been worked as a tackle this winter, but thus far he has failed to measure up to the Jones standard.

Kent was considered by many experts as the outstanding center in the south and he has been assisting in the search for his successor. Maurice Brooks and Maurice Stewart, a pair of freshmen, are staging a warm battle for the center post along with Lloyd Stovall, a senior. Stovall was a regular in 1932, but was forced out of the lineup last fall by Kent. None of these youngsters measures up to Kent, but Brooks and Stewart have been tabbed "prospects."

Lobdell has been the Tigers' regular field general since Captain Jones came to L. S. U. two years ago, and although the youngster was not a flashy player, he was regarded by his coaches as a smart strategist and good all-around man. Joe Lawrie, understudy to Lobdell last fall, is the leading candidate for the starting position next fall. "Red" Rice and Anson Day, both sophomores, are other candidates.

Walter Sullivan, senior halfback, may get to see service as a play guesser should the above trio fail to develop.

The task of replacing Gee Mitchell, stoic guard, and Pete Burge, fleet terminal, has been made easier by the presence of several good reserves and upcoming freshmen. "Butch" Holveston, who substituted for Mitchell last fall, is capable of plugging the vacant gap in good style. Although none of the present crop of terminals can catch passes as well as Burge, Coach Jones is not worried about this department of his team.

On the whole Captain Jones is satisfied with the progress made in spring training. Poor weather retarded practice during the first two weeks.

The Tigers will open their 1934 season with Rice institute at Houston, Texas, on September 29.

Monroe Monarchs Play Bastrop Squad Today

After trimming the Bastrop Red Sox 12 to 0 at Bastrop Friday, the Monroe Monarchs will tackle the Sox again today at Casino park if weather permits, it was announced last night.

At Bastrop Friday, Foster, Morris and Smith held the Red Sox to two straight hits. The local negroes, have played two games and have piled up 31 runs while allowing their opponents one.

Tuesday and Wednesday the Little Rock Cubs will play the locals here and on Easter Sunday the Pittsburgh Crawfords, colorful negro team of the east, will open a two-game series at Casino park.

Announcement of the Negro South-eastern league schedule will be made following the return of Manager Johnson from Memphis.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 24.—(AP)—John J. McGraw, the late baseball strategist, left the bulk of his estate to the widow, Mrs. Blanche S. McGraw, it was revealed when his will was admitted to probate in surrogate's court today.

The petition for probate bore the declaration that the deceased "has no real estate and property worth more than $10,000."

The will was dated February 23, three days before McGraw died in a New Rochelle hospital. It was typewritten. McGraw's signature was an almost illegible scrawl.

The text of the will, extremely brief:
"To my lawful wife, Blanche S. McGraw, I hereby sign all my property, both real and personal, with the exception of 40 shares of National Exhibition stock to my sister, Nelly Donnelly, of Camillus, N. Y., and 40 shares of National Exhibition stock to my sister, Anna Gray, of New Canaan, Conn."

"I, being of sound mind this twenty-second day of February, 1934, sign this in the presence of witnesses."

Witnesses were his physician, Dr. Louis B. Chapman, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Cregar, of Lewisburg, Pa., sister-in-law of Christy Mathewson, and Charles Sprung, a clerk at the hospital.

No mention of an executor was made in the will. The National Exhibition company mentioned owns the New York Giants baseball club of which McGraw was manager for years.

HORTON SMITH HOLDS LEAD AT AUGUSTA WITH 212

JONES GETS PAR 72 BUT IS FAR BEHIND LEADERS

Five Pros Remain In Thrilling Battle For First Prize Money

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)
AUGUSTA, Ga., March 24.—(P)—On the cold, soggy background of the Augusta National links today, after a gallant but discouraging pursuit, the great Bob Jones surrendered his last chance of over-taking the flying professional squadron in the $5,000 Masters' Invitation golf tournament.

Jones today shot the best golf he has exhibited since he began his come-back two days ago after a lapse of nearly four years since his retirement as world champion. He shifted to a rusty old putter his mother has been using and recovered his touch to the extent of taking only 30 putts for the 18 holes but the "breaks" were against him and his par golf was not good enough to close the big gap between him and the leaders.

The Georgian's 54-hole total of 222, although lifting him 10 notches up the list to a tie for 18th place, also left him exactly 10 strokes behind the brilliant young leader, Horton Smith, of Chicago. Smith shattered par for the second time in three days with a 70. His three-day aggregate of 212 kept him a stroke in front of the field and made him the marked man in a prospective five-cornered battle in the final round tomorrow for the top money of $1,500.

While Jones was struggling through the raw, cheerless day in a hopeless chase, unable even to keep stride with his old rival and playing companion, Walter Hagen, the professional pace setter gave par another terrific shelling.

On Horton Smith's heels, alone in second place, was Bill Burke, the man who succeeded Jones as national open champion in 1931. The Cleveland delegate, smoking his inevitable cigar, kept up his steady improvement with a 70 for 54-hole total of 213. As a result he broke a tie with his playing partner, Ed Dudley, who posted a 71 for an aggregate of 214.

Craig Wood, the big blonde sharpshooter from Deal, N. J., leaped into the thick of the fight with a 69, which not only equalled Dudley's course record, set yesterday, but tied him with the home club pro for third place at 214. On their heels came diminutive Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., no longer worried about playing with Jones as he shot a 71 and moved up to fifth position with a total of 215.

These five, bunched within three shots of each other, looked to have the battle pretty much to themselves. Their nearest possible challengers were Willie MacFarlen, 1925 open champion, and the veteran Hagen, both of whom shot their best rounds today, 70 each and were tied for sixth at 217.

All 17 of the players leading Jones are professionals, many of whom have been through the big golfing wars with the Georgian. The pace setter, Horton Smith, was the last to take

THE SAME OLD FACES

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la, have nothing whatever on a half hundred rookies who annually live in the newsprint glare for a brief month or so and then fade away as swiftly as they came. These lads who join the major league camps each year have their moments of glory as the correspondents send glowing write-ups back to the home paper but when the season starts, the same old faces are usually occupying the important positions on the ball clubs.

That's particularly true this season. Few youngsters labeled as "million dollar beauties" will break into the lineup this year. There may be one or two exceptions, but as a whole you'll find the veterans doing the chores when the May sun begins to warm things up.

Right now the vets are patiently standing aside and allowing the eager rookies to enjoy their brief moment of glory. Another week or two and we'll be wondering what became of Joe Whooiss, the lad who was certain to beat Al Simmons out of his stride then.

Some of the rookies will stick it out, of course, and some day several of those who go back to the bushes this summer will return and make the grade.

But this season you're going to find that few untried ball players have measured up to major league standards. The clubs will be changed, of course, but that's because the majors spent one of the busiest winters in history in their trading activities. The employees were shifted about and as a result, a more even race in each league is expected.

All of which reminds us of the story which is usually told as having Casey Stengel as its principal character.

Casey was just a youngster who went south with a major league hall club. He was a rookie outfielder. The first week in camp, young Stengel has a field day each time he trotted out to do his stint before the manager's eyes. But as time wore on, Casey began to find it harder and harder to hold up his end as the team's shining rookie. Finally it became so tough he sat down at the writing desk in the hotel and penned these words to his mother:

"Dear Ma:
"The pitchers have started throwing curves. I will be home soon.
"Your loving son,
"CASEY STENGEL."

WAS HIS FACE RED?

The fellows on the other side will have to be pretty tough if Rupert Scott, halfback candidate, is knocked out in Auburn's football games next fall.

Repairing a radio aerial on the roof of a dormitory the other day, his foot slipped and he fell three stories.

S. A. A. U. CROWN WON BY LOYOLA

University Boxers Amass 16 Points In New Orleans Tourney

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—(P)—Loyola university tonight won the team championship of the annual southern A. A. U. boxing tournament by amassing a total of 16 points.

Southwestern Louisiana institute of Lafayette, La., was second with 13 points, and Shreveport, La., was third with 7 points.

The summary:
105-pound class—Denny Kennedy, independent, scored technical knockout over Bob O'Brien, Knights of Columbus, in second round.

112-pound class—Artie Kennedy, independent, outpointed "Pee Wee" Gibbs, Shreveport.

118-pound class—Elmer Kelly, Loyola, won decision over Val Scalfani, New Orleans Athletic club.

150-pound class—Elmer Fraz, New Orleans independent, outpointed George Thomas, Shreveport.

175-pound class—Chester Schmitz, Loyola, outpointed John Gosling, Kingsley house.

Heavyweight—Woodrow Carter, Hattiesburg, Miss., outpointed Jerry Anselmo, Kingsley house.

Witnesses came running, expecting to find him dead or seriously injured. But he arose with only slight injuries and a red face.

Embarrassment was the worst part about it, said Rupert.

ANOTHER BLAST

Bill Tilden has deserted the ranks of the amateurs but others have come to the fore as severe critics of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association. In fact, there seems to be more critics of this august body than defenders.

Vincent Richards, five times former member of the Davis cup team, turns author and gives his formula for regaining this symbol of international tennis supremacy, in the April issue of Esquire, somewhat in the form of an open letter to the U. S. L. T. A.

Concerning that able body, Richards has a few, not too tender remarks to make about its origin and political working order.

"As is always the case when a 'sure thing' comes along," writes Mr. Richards, "keen-eyed business men, shrewd executives throughout the country, pounced upon tennis with avidity. They lost no time in recognizing the potentialities of the game. Call it foresight, insight, business acumen or what you will, the fact remains in cold analysis, that the smart boys realized what a public appeal the game would enjoy and envisioned the glory and indirect but invaluable benefits they would derive from its commercial operations from a promiscuous connection with the United States Lawn Tennis association."

"Accordingly they established themselves in honorary positions. Actually the United States Lawn Tennis association was formed in 1886, but I refer to that era of 'job-grabbing and office seeking' immediately following its birth."

"It little mattered that they could not manipulate a racket. They were the organizers. They could not be the players but at least they were the planners. It was in this decade that the foundation was laid for one of the greatest political machines in the realm of sports. A machine functioning so smoothly—comprehensively—automatically and with such finality that even Tammany Hall might well raise its brows, observe, and pattern with profit."

DO YOU REMEMBER?

One Year Ago Today—The New York Rangers defeated the Montreal Canadiens in the third-place National Hockey league playoff for the Stanley cup.

Five Years Ago Today—Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, knocked out Joey Medill of Chicago, in the fourth of a 12-rounder.

Ten Years Ago Today—Harry Kosky, member of the American Olympic ice skating team, was suspended indefinitely by the skating union for demanding excessive expenses for his trips to skating meets.

Although spring is in the air it will be no excuse for the athletes of Ouachita parish junior college to take a vacation for they have plenty of work to do. With tennis already under way, plans are being made for an intramural league in softball that should be ready for play next week.

From the last reports the tennis squad is rounding in shape fast and should be ready for a practice match next week-end with one of the local high schools. Ranking of players will be made this week and this is causing the candidates to take their practices seriously.

Henry Florsheim, who was elected captain last week, said that he thought they would be able to hold their own with any other squad in this section after two more weeks of workouts.

The club will be particularly strong in the women's singles with Elizabeth Kennedy as No. 1 and Beverly Russell, No. 2. These two girls will also pair off in the women's doubles.

After a successful season with an intramural basketball league, Coach J. Paul Kemmerer said the softball league probably will be even more popular than the cage league that gave about 50 boys a chance to participate in athletics. About 75 candidates are expected out for the four teams that will comprise the league.

A schedule is now being worked out and final arrangements should be made within a few days.

The schedule will be divided into two halves with each team playing each other twice in a round. With the material divided as equally as possible, interest in the league should be kept high.

Willis Ward, Michigan negro, nosed out Hall of the University of Kansas in the 60-yard dash, equalling the accepted world's record of 6.2 seconds. Set by Metcalfe, Marquette, in 1933.

Ward was stopped in his bid for a triple victory when after winning the 60-yard dash he was nosed out by Kenneth Sandbach of Purdue in the finals of the 60-yard high hurdles.

Sandbach fought the Michigan athlete down the lane hurdle for hurdle and slid over the last one to nip Ward by inches. The time, 7.4 was a new relay record, four-tenths of a second faster than Pantlind made it in 1933.

Ward got a double victory, however, by outjumping the field in the high jump and setting a new relay record of 6 feet 5 7/8 inches.

Heye Lambertus, University of Nebraska hurdler, bettered his own world record for the 60-yard low hurdles in a great burst of speed.

Lambertus broke the burst in 6.7 seconds, but a few feet in front of Kenneth Sandbach of Purdue.

Lambertus' world and intercollegiate record for the event, set this year, was 6.8 seconds.

MANTERIS BEATS MANSOUR TO WIN 145-POUND TITLE

Bolton, Lutecher And Baton Rouge Tie For Second Place Honor

BATON ROUGE, La., March 25.—(P)—A flock of first, second and third places totaling 15 points tonight gave Neville high of Monroe the state high school boxing team championship. Bolton of Alexandria, Lutecher, and Baton Rouge tied for second.

The north Louisiana boys, who came to Baton Rouge as champions of their district, snatched the state title from the eager grasps of Bolton, of Alexandria, Lutecher and Baton Rouge, who tied for second.

Nevill clinched the title when Manteris won the 145-pound final round in a spectacular go with Mansour of Catholic high of Baton Rouge. Manteris had formerly been beaten by Mansour and the Baton Rouge boy was scheduled to take him again, but the Neville scrapper came through handily.

Other Neville point winners were: 105 pounds, Nicholson, second; 165 pounds, Crews, second; 90 pounds, King, third; 112 pounds, Mattison, third; 118 pounds, Green, third; 175 pounds, Reagan, third.

REPLACING L. S. U. STARS TOUGH JOB

Jones Hunts For Successors To Torrance, Kent And Lobdell

BATON ROUGE, March 24.—(Special)—The battle scarred football shoes of Jack Torrance, John Kent and Bill Lobdell look larger and larger every time Captain "Biff" Jones looks at them. With the spring football training scheduled to end Wednesday, the Louisiana State mentors haven't as yet found men capable of filling the brogans of the three departed grid-men.

Finding men capable of filling the shoes of Torrance, 280-pound all-South tackle, and John Kent, center, voted the most valuable man on the undefeated 1933 team, needless to say is no easy task.

The L. S. U. coaches have devoted a great deal of time this winter to the tackle candidates since two men will be needed to replace the giant Torrance, who was good for 60 minutes in every tough game. Shelby Calhoun, a 1933 reserve, is the best of the candidates, but Coach Jones is having trouble finding a good replacement.

Garland Pickett, 215-pound end, has been worked as a tackle this winter, but thus far he has failed to measure up to the Jones standard.

Kent was considered by many experts as the outstanding center in the south and he has been assisting in the search for his successor, Maurice Brooks and Marvin Stewart, a pair of freshmen, are staging a warm battle for the center post along with Lloyd Stovall, a senior. Stovall was a regular in 1932, but was forced out of the lineup last fall by Kent. None of these youngsters measures up to Kent, but Brooks and Stewart have been tabbed "prospects."

Lobdell has been the Tigers' regular field general since Captain Jones came to L. S. U. two years ago, and although the youngster was not a flashy player, he was regarded by his coaches as a smart strategist and good all-around man. Joe Lawrie, understudy to Lobdell last fall, is the leading candidate for the starting position next fall.

"Rock" Reed and Anon Doy, both sophomores, are other candidates. Walter Sullivan, senior halfback, may get to see service as a player since should the above trio fail to develop.

The task of replacing George Mitchell, stocky guard, and Pete Burge, fleet terminal, has been made easier by the presence of several good reserves and upcoming freshmen. "Butch" Helveston, who substituted for Mitchell last fall, is capable of plugging the vacant gap in good style. Although none of the present crop of terminals can catch passes as well as Burge, Coach Jones is not worried about this department of his team.

On the whole Captain Jones is satisfied with the progress made in spring training. Poor weather retarded practice during the first two weeks.

The Tigers will open their 1934 season with Rice institute at Houston, Texas, on September 29.

Monroe Monarchs Play Bastrop Squad Today

After trimming the Bastrop Red Sox 12 to 0 at Bastrop Friday, the Monroe Monarchs will tackle the Sox again today at Casino park if weather permits, it was announced last night.

At Bastrop Friday, Foster, Morris and Smith held the Red Sox to two scratch hits. The local negroes have played two games and have piled up 31 runs while allowing their opponents one.

Tuesday and Wednesday the Little Rock Cubs will play the locals here and on Easter Sunday the Pittsburgh Crawfords, colorful negro team of the east, will open a two-game series at Casino park.

Announcement of the Negro South-eastern league schedule will be made following the return of Manager Johnson from Memphis.

STRONG SEXTETS MEET AT WICHITA

Shreveport And El Dorado Listed Among Favorites In Tourney

WICHITA, Kas., March 24.—(P)—The court battles of the "softies" and the "tomboys" get under way Monday noon in the first round of the tenth annual women's National A. A. U. basketball tournament with 30 sextets assailing the championship heights held by the Cardinals of Oklahoma City.

The Oklahoma City team, champion of the United States and Canada, will defend its title against a larger field than ever before.

Two years ago, the Cardinals, then representing Oklahoma Presbyterian College for Women, became champions by defeating the Dallas Golden Cyclones in a stiff battle at Shreveport. Last year they again were pushed to the limit in turning back the same club in the finals here.

Strong contenders are the Shreveport Meadows-Draughtons, who last year went to the semi-finals; El Dorado, Ark.; the Kansas City all-stars; Kansas City Brownies; Des Moines; Stratton, Colo.; Tupelo, Miss.; Gainesville, Fla., and the Pasadena of Houston, Texas.

A "tomboy" flight, composed of teams using men's rules, will be added this year to the tournament.

Eight or 12 outstanding teams from various sections of the nation will be accepted for entry in this division, and the winner may be invited to meet the official girls' championship team in a playoff for feminine basketball supremacy.

Leslie Edmonds, Kansas commissioner for the A. A. U., says the "tomboy" champions would not be awarded an official title, however, either in their own division or in the official women's meet, in the event the extra final game or games should find them victorious.

JACK TORRANCE BREAKS WORLD SHOT PUT RECORD

L. S. U. Track Team Takes First Place In S. L. I. Carnival

LAFAYETTE, La., March 24.—(P)—Jack Torrance, Louisiana's man-mountain athlete, threw the 16-pound shot into the horizon today for a new all-time mark of 53 feet, 6 inches.

The towering 260-pound football, basketball and track star from Louisiana State university, performing in the Southwestern Louisiana institute carnival relay, bested the official world mark of 52 feet 7 1/2 inches by almost a foot. The record was set in 1932 by Zygmunt Helgass, of Poland.

Torrance, who expects to attend the military academy at West Point after finishing at L. S. U., was a member of the little band of Louisiana athletes who went to Chicago last year and beat out the University of California for the national track title. He threw the shot 52 feet 10 inches in that meet to set a new record.

Torrance's throw was more than six feet better than the Southwestern relay record of 47 feet 3 1/2 inches. Two of the south's greatest timber toppers, Johnny Morris, a member of the United States track team which toured Europe last year, and Al Moore of L. S. U. performed over the 120-yard high hurdles.

Morris finished comfortably ahead of Moore in the last time of 14.3 1/2 seconds.

Nine other meet records fell by the wayside as 300 star athletes of Louisiana and Texas colleges and high schools competed.

The lion's share of first places in the college division went to L. S. U., while Port Arthur, Tex., led in the high school section.

Tulane, Rice, Texas A. and M., Louisiana Normal, Stephen F. Austin and Southwestern collected first places in the college contests.

First places in high school competition went to St. Aloysius of New Orleans, Baton Rouge, La., Warren Easton of New Orleans, Port Arthur, Tex., Commercial high of New Orleans, Beaumont, Tex., and Mangum, Tex.

Blair of L. S. U. threw the javelin 185 feet six inches to beat the meet record of 178 feet two inches set in 1928 by Holliday of L. S. U.

The 440 relay was won by an L. S. U. team composed of Saxton, Newell, Hardin and Stockwell in 43.1 seconds. The old record was 43.5 seconds, set by Louisiana Normal in 1932.

Rice Institute captured the mile relay in 3 minutes 24.2 seconds. The team was composed of McCain, Herbert, Colliada and Guidry.

L. S. U. won the medley relay in seven minutes 38.7 seconds, beating the old record of seven minutes 46.2 seconds by L. S. U. in 1932. The

Equipoise Must Win Two Races to Equal Record

Whitney Star Gets Crack At Sun Beau's Mark At Arlington

CHICAGO, March 24.—(Special)—Equipoise must win both the Stars and Stripes Handicap and Arlington Handicap to have any chance to surpass Sun Beau's world money-winning record this season. Thomas J. Healey, trainer of C. V. Whitney's great thoroughbred, recently informed Roy Carruthers, secretary of the Arlington Park Jockey club. Last year each of these Arlington Park attractions carried $10,000 in added money and Equipoise was victorious in the Arlington Handicap.

The son of Pennant and Swinging, now in his sixth year, is in training at his owner's farm in Kentucky and soon will go to Maryland to begin his 1934 campaign. Trainer Healey plans to bring Equipoise to the popular northside course here following conclusion of the spring season in the east and it is his belief the champion will reach the peak of his form in July when the two Arlington events are decided.

Standing fourth on the list of world's leading money winners, Equipoise has $322,970 to his credit. The champion Sun Beau, which reached his position when a six-year-old the same age as Equipoise is now, retired in 1931 with a total of $376,744, which is nearly $50,000 above that carried by Grant Fox, the previous holder of this honor.

In attaining his present high position, Equipoise has gained more laurels than Sun Beau, having won the Stars and Stripes, Gold cup and Arlington Handicap each once. Sun Beau failed to account for a Stars and Stripes, although he was twice third in that valuable mile and a furlong event. While Equipoise holds the Arlington mile record, the Willis Sharpe Kilmer representative is credited with the best mark for the mile and one-quarter, racing the distance in 2:01 4/5 in 1931 in capturing the Gold cup.

Team was composed of Hardin, Saxton, Lehman and Sanders.

Fisher of L. S. U., showed promise of stepping into the shoes of Al Moore when he stepped over the high hurdles in 15 seconds flat, beating the old record of 15 1/2 seconds, held jointly by Hawkins of Southwestern and Moore of North Texas Teachers college.

Irwin of Texas A. and M. tossed the discus 146 feet, 11 inches to beat the record of 143 feet five inches set in 1933 by Payne of Tulane. Torrance had to be content with second place in the event.

L. S. U. captured the two-mile relay in eight minutes 7.6 seconds, beating the old record of eight minutes 21.8 seconds set by L. S. U. in 1932. The winning team was composed of Goodgold, Sanders, Lehman and O'Neil.

Nussbaum of Warren Easton threw the shot 48 feet 9 1/2 inches to win the high school event and beat the old record of 48 feet three inches set by Rousseaux of Abbeville, La., in 1931.

Monroe of Beaumont, Tex., won the high school high jump with a leap of five feet 11 1/2 inches, which was better than the mark of five feet 10 inches in the college event. He beat the old high school record of five feet 11 3/8 inches, set by Brasseaux of Carver, La., in 1932.

Glenn "Slats" Hardin, L. S. U.'s great quarter-mile and hurdler, and holder of the 32-second world record for the 400 meter hurdles, did not enter any individual contests. He ran in several of the relay races.

PELICANS HAVE LIKELY CROP OF ROOKIE HURLERS

Gilbert Refuses To Predict A Pennant But Hopes Run High

By Bob Myers
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—(P)—The Pelicans of New Orleans, with last year's Southern and Dixie baseball championship flags safely tucked away among their baseball souvenirs, hope to add to their collection this year.

But ask manager Larry Gilbert to make a direct promise and about all you'll get is a smile and a shoulder shrug. Larry never has been able to match optimism with his shoulder shrugging and even if his club is facing the 1934 season with but few misses from last year's pennant winners, he simply will not become too enthusiastic, if enthusiastic at all.

True, he lost two of his best pitchers, Dennis Galloway and Bill Perrin, but he still has three of his 1933 wheelhorse moundmen left, Fred Johnson, Jimmy Moore and Andy Messinger.

And in addition, he has several likely prospects on which to base a prayer if not a hope—Al Milnar, a southpaw; Philip Margavio, who finished the season last year with the Pels; Harold Claydew, New Orleans semipro; Cap Bryant, who played here and then was sent back to New Orleans because his arm went bad. Then there is T. Paul LeBlanc, of Lafayette, La., who may be just a Teeche county sandlotter but he was good enough last year to shut out the flag-flying Pelicans in a post-season game.

Suppose, too, that Dennis Galloway, now in spring training with the Cleveland Indians, was sent back to New Orleans. The hurling staff would be in good shape, wouldn't it?

As for backstops, the Pels have Chick Autry and Charley "Greek" George back for regular duty.

In the infield, Eddie Morgan, who supplied plenty of punch at bat and on first base when he joined the Pels late in the season last year, is missing, but Johnny Olliver, who swapped places with Eddie in Cleveland, is back to take over the initial bag.

Andy Harrington is the only veteran infielder missing entirely. He's been traded to Seattle while Roy Hughes, Zanesville, Ohio, recruit, and young Larry Gilbert, Jr., fight it out over his place. Both boys have showed promise with Hughes probably having an edge.

George Knothe is a cinch to continue his usual assignment at short and the veteran Eddie Moran is hardly likely to lose charge of third.

Hank Flarito seems destined for utility duty.

The outfield is likewise intact, with Pete Fleming in right field, Jack Ward in center and Lucie Rose in left. Several rookies are after one of the jobs but the regular trio will most likely stay on.

All in all, it looks like a 1934 lineup for the Pels well capable of defending the association and Dixie pennants which will be flying over Heintzmann park this year.

send the two children to college," said Meringer. "Then I think we'll take a trip to the old country. That's Austria."

In Brooklyn, Mrs. Laura Anderson, a 52-year-old widow, who bought a ticket to help her daughter, won $75,000. Her daughter had undertaken to sell a book of sweepstakes tickets among friends in the neighborhood. Mrs. Anderson, able for the first time in her life to take a vacation, planned to visit relatives in Norway. William Sweet, lobster fisherman of Marblehead, Mass., winner of $30,000, said he would buy a new fishing boat. Mrs. Hannah Waterbury, a widow of Medford, Mass., spoke vaguely of taking a trip with some of her money.

"I don't know what to do," was the comment of J. T. Burton, civil engineer, of Bradford, Pa., one of the $75,000 ticket holders.

Eckland, Boston maid who won $10,000, is going back to Sweden. Two Boston porters, Patrick Coleman and Ralph Massarelli, and a friend, will divide $76,668. Other big winners included Samuel Carp, of Dorchester, Mass., $35,000; Constantine Carco, of Boston, $20,000; C. J. Gallagher of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., $30,000.

Bob's measure, in the spring of 1930. Tied with Jones in 18th position are Denny Shute of Philadelphia, the present holder of the British open championship, as well as two of the younger set, Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee and Henry Picard of Charleston, S. C.

Congratulated by his father on his 34 for the last time, as he came into the locker room, Jones said: "Well, I feel a bit better about my game today, whether it means anything or not."

Hagen and Jones, playing together for the first time in years, entertained a gallery of nearly 1,000 fans and seemed to have a stimulating effect upon each other. At any rate both shot the best golf they have exhibited so far and seemed to enjoy it. On one hole where Bob's ball was only a foot from the cup, Walter joked "I'll concede you this one."

All told seven of the leaders broke par for their third round. Several flirted with chances to dig into the sixties but Wood was the only one to succeed, thanks to a sensational outgoing nine in 33, three under par. Craig missed only one green on the way to the turn, the fifth and next to last hole, and then he sank this lone mistake by carding four birdies. His approaches were "dead" on the sixth and eighth while he caned 10 foot putts for birdies on the third and seventh. Coming home, he sank another 10 footer for a deuce on the 12th but three-putted the next green, otherwise playing par to a stand-still for his record-equalling score of 69.

Hagen, who matched Jones' birdies on five holes with brilliant shots, shot away his chance for a 69 when he over-played the last hole, taking a five against a par of four. Burke, with a similar opportunity to crack 70, three-putted the home green. Dudley, enjoying one dazzling streak where he collected five birdies in six consecutive holes, missed his chance for another 69 by three-putting the 14th and 18th.

Starting his third round after most of his rivals had fired their challenges, Horton Smith refused to crack under the pace-setting tension. The tall, good-natured Missourian was away flying with birdies on three of his first five holes, where he sank putts ranging from eight to 30 feet. He reached the turn in 34, gaining on all except Wood, and then played even par on the back-stretch for his second 70 of the tournament.

Walkathon Box Score

Again last night there were no casualties in the gruelling sprint, but at least five marathoners were almost erased from the picture. Buddy Struck's partner, Miss Helene Mills, of Toledo, folded up and barely made it. Joan Woods and Ann Nichols also found the going tough and just managed to pull through. Thelma King, who has been ill for the past few days, was "out" during most of the sprint but her partner, Don King, pulled her through. Fern Eynum, the local girl, lost her wind at the start of the sprint and stumbled several times but finally regained her equilibrium and made it in fine style. At 10 o'clock last night, the contestants had walked continuously for 623 hours. In an effort to further reduce the field, the management announced that starting Monday there will be two sprints each day, one at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and the other at night.

Couples remaining in the walkathon at 10 last night were:
No. 1—Chuck Delk, Los Angeles, and Fern Eynum, Monroe.
No. 5—Don King and Thelma King, Reno.
No. 8—Nick Nichols and Ann Nichols, Austin, Texas.
No. 9—O. T. Abbott, Reno, and Frances Bottorff, Wayne.
No. 10—Buddy Struck and Helene Mills, Toledo.
No. 11—Gordon Beasley, Spokane, and Nellie Tucker, Long Beach, Calif.
No. 22—Cecil Beasley and Sally Beasley, Spokane.

Louisiana Tech Maps Out Ambitious Athletic Card

Six Sports Now Engage Attention Of Athletes At Ruston School

TECH STATION, March 24.—(Special)—No claim is being made by Louisiana Tech for athletic leadership of intercollegiate circles of the state since Tulane has been to the Rose Bowl representing the south, Louisiana State has won a national track title and a claim to the Southeastern grid crown and Centenary has turned out nationally famous football teams. Right now at Tech, however, the most ambitious and extensive sports program of any institution of higher learning in the state is under way.

Four major, one minor and one class sport are included on the Bulldog athletic program. Spring football is under the direction of Coaches McLane and Davis, track for both freshmen and varsity squads is coached by E. M. Shirley, the golf team is supervised by D. G. Armstrong, director of extension for the college; interclass baseball is managed by Leon Kyle, student assistant, and spring basketball has a former cage ace of the college, Nick Medica, as student director and baseball is handled by the new director of athletics and his assistant.

Close to 100 students take part in the class diamond games, 50 are listed for spring football drills, more than 40 spikemen are included in the two track squads, 20 have reported for baseball practice, 20 basketball candidates reported to the spring school recently and the regular foursome in golf gives nearly every male student at the college some type of athletic diversion to participate in. In addition, quite a number of excellent tennis players may organize a team in the near future.

Director McLane gave the word during the past week to start the first spring drills in cage work ever attempted at the college and the score of candidates surpassed the total expected. Class diamond games are nothing new and were started some weeks ago but delayed due to cold weather.

John Thurmon, Jr., Fred Hines, Foster Wallace and Jimmie Holland were named recently as the foursome to represent the college in golf matches during the spring. "Bis" Bolen was chosen as alternate and James Davis, member of the team for the past two years, was also named with the group and will play whenever no conflict occurs with a baseball game. The divot diggers have a match scheduled with L. S. U. and one pending with Southwestern and assurance of a match with Birmingham-Southern.

Football practice will enter its third week Monday with the candidates facing a number of scrimmages during the week. Coach McLane plans to end the work after the fourth week with a regulation game between the gridironers and the football players.

Louisiana Tech's champion association track team is facing a tough schedule starting in April minus the services of most of last year's letter-men. Under the direction of E. M. Shirley, the thinclads have won all their matches in the past two seasons and lost only one during a three-year period.

To date, Tech is the only S. I. A. A. team in the state with baseball and golf on the sports program.

Fritz Crisler Returns To Midwest; For While

MOOREHEAD, Minn., March 24.—(P)—Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler, mentor of Princeton's unbeaten football team, is coming back to the scenes of his former triumphs.

But not permanently; only for a brief time to take charge of the annual football coaching school at the Moorhead Teachers college next August.

Crisler, before going to Princeton, took a University of Minnesota team that was going nowhere and fashioned a much feared aggregation out of the Gophers in two years.

'Dirt Cheap' Mockery To San Francisco Club
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., March 24.—(P)—One of the most bothersome of the fixed overhead costs of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league is dirt.

The club owners have to buy trucks of it every season to fill in the Seal stadium diamond—for the wind blows it away.

When baseball gets prosperous hereabouts again—the owners say—they're going to put in a lattice-work wind-break in right field.

FIELD TRIALS AT W. MONROE TODAY

Louisiana Beagle Club Sponsors Two-Day Event Across River

This section's first field trial will start today at Dozier's orchard, near West Monroe, and will continue through Monday. The trial is being held by the Louisiana Beagle club and is authorized by the American Kennel club.

W. E. Lawson, local member of the club in charge of arrangements, said he expects a large entry list of beagle hounds this morning. He has urged all beagle owners of this section to enter their dogs.

Mr. Lawson said last night that it has not been determined definitely whether or not a dog show would be held in connection with the trial. Well known judges have been engaged to judge the trial and some excellent sport is anticipated, Mr. Lawson said. The public is invited to witness the trial.

Wisner Teams Win First Places In Joint Meet

The scores were as follows: Senior girls—Wisner, 22 points, Block high of Jonesville 21 and Winnboro 20; Junior boys—Wisner 43 points, Winnboro 14 1/2 points, Crowville 13 points.

New York Chef Made Good Hasenpfeffer; Worth $150,000 Now

NEW YORK, March 24.—(P)—So far as William Meringer, restaurant chef, and "Maggie," his wife, are concerned, it was three helpings of hasenpfeffer and not Golden Miller that won the Irish national sweepstakes on the course today at Aintree.

The Meringers, who are in $150,000 as a result of a sweepstakes ticket on the Grand National favorite, said they "owed everything to that hasenpfeffer."

"Bill cooked it," explained Mrs. Meringer, "at the restaurant where he was working and I made it for him it was so good he asked for three helpings."

"He said that hasenpfeffer was the best hasenpfeffer he'd eaten in his lifetime of hasenpfeffer eating. So he took out two tickets and handed them to Bill. He said he hoped they would bring him luck."

Meringer, grinning as his wife told the story, broke into the conversation. "I came home with them," he said, "and gave them to Maggie, for it was Christmas, but I also gave her $5 for I did not know if the tickets were any good."

Eddie McLane's Initials Seem Most Appropriate

RUSTON, March 24.—(Special)—There may not be much in a name, as Shakespeare pointed out, but in the case of initials, Coach L. P. McLane, new athletic director at Louisiana Tech, is the right man for the job he holds here.

When in doubt as to the initials of the new Tech mentor, think of "Louisiana Polytechnic," the institution where he is coaching, and you'll get his initials—"L. P."

The coach's full name is Lovick Pierce McLane, but athletically speaking it's just plain "Eddie."

Someone nicknamed McLane "Eddie" after Eddie Collins, noted professional baseball player, when McLane himself was starring as a second baseman. The cognomen has followed McLane through his sports career.

Coach McLane assumed the directorship of athletics at Louisiana Tech two weeks ago, succeeding George M. Bohler, resigned. He came to Tech from Howard college in Birmingham, Ala., where he enjoyed considerable success as athletic director for several years.

On his first day at Tech, Coach McLane issued a call for football candidates and got more than 50 for drill that afternoon. Pounding away at practice every day and holding "skull" class at night, McLane declares he has come here "to win." His early efforts are going over big with students, faculty members and townspeople—all of whom are looking forward to a turn for the better in Tech's sports accomplishments.

PLANS COMPLETE
FOR CONVENTIONState Baptist Missionary Union Meeting Here
April 3-5

More than 500 delegates, messengers and visitors are expected to register at the First Baptist church, St. John street, April 3, for the annual convention of the state Women's Missionary union, officials of the local church announced Saturday. The sessions will begin April 3 and continue through April 5.

Committees under the direction of Mrs. Walter Rhodes, general chairman, have been busy for some time in perfecting details for the convention. Mrs. W. H. Banister, home assignment chairman, is being aided by a corps of assistants in the task of housing delegates and messengers. All the missionary units of Baptist churches in the Twin Cities are co-operating in providing "bed-and-breakfast" for those in attendance at the three-day meeting.

The executive committee will begin its deliberations Tuesday morning, April 3. A luncheon will be served at noon to those present by the missionary unit of the First Baptist church, under the direction of Mrs. H. H. Benoit and her committee.

Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the state-wide declaration meeting will open. Young people representing the eight districts of the state will compete in the finals for the yearling proclamation awards. A young people's banquet will follow the contest. Mrs. J. W. Bolton of Alexandria is in charge of the stewardship declaration contest, assisted by Miss Vivian Ora Pittman, also of Alexandria. On Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock the annual meeting will begin with a young people's session at which Miss Pittman will preside.

Departmental conferences will precede the sessions on Wednesday and Thursday. Each morning session will begin at 9:30 o'clock. On Wednesday morning, April 4, Mrs. Lee Stall, president of the W. M. U., of the First Baptist church of Monroe, will bring friendship greetings to the assembly. Mrs. H. M. B. Edwards, state president of the W. M. U., will give the president's annual message at the same session. The afternoon session Wednesday will adjourn at 4 o'clock for a tea at the Baptist children's home. Mrs. J. Norman Coon is chairman of the committee in charge of this event.

Among the speakers who will bring messages of missionary interest during the convention will be three native Louisiana missionaries now home on furlough. They are Rev. J. Dawson King, Rev. C. H. Strother and Mrs. C. E. Leonard, all from China. Dr. M. E. Dodd, president of the Southern Baptist convention, will bring a message at the session Wednesday evening. Miss Pearl Bourne, associate young people's secretary for the W. M. U. auxiliary to the Southern Baptist convention, is also on the program.

An interesting event Thursday evening, April 5, will be the mission study banquet with Mrs. T. V. Herndon, of Lake Charles, in charge. Only those who have completed the first course in mission study will be eligible to attend. Mrs. H. R. Arlig of Monroe, mission study chairman, is in charge of arrangements for the banquet.

Other events on the program will be a playlet on Wednesday evening, "Our Real Problem" given under the direction of Mrs. Forrest Seaman of Monroe First church, a program on Thursday afternoon by the children from the Louisiana Baptist Children's home; and the presentation of the missionary drama, "Ba Thian," by students from Louisiana college at Pineville. This will conclude the sessions of the convention Thursday night.

Miss Wolfe Leaves For Chemical Society Meet

Miss Kathryn M. Wolfe, chemistry instructor at Ouachita junior college, left yesterday for St. Petersburg, Fla., where she will attend the 57th annual meeting of the National American Chemical society which opens today. Miss Wolfe is especially interested in crystal structure, she said, since she has done some research work in that subject and is anxious to hear experts tell of their work on crystal formations.

Because of recovery activities in the Black Hills and Harney national forest of South Dakota more men are employed there this winter than at any time since the gold rush.

Markets -- Financial

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—(AP)—Cotton was only moderately active in today's short session but prices advanced well on better economic news and in sympathy with stocks.

The opening was rather disappointing, showing gains of only 4 points, in view of the strength of Liverpool which came in 7 penny points better than due. The market soon rallied, however, on firmness in stocks and reports of favorable prospects for settlement of national labor disputes. In the late trading, May advanced to 12.03, July to 12.15 and October to 12.27, or 13 to 14 points above yesterday's close.

There was a slight reaction at the end on realizing but the close was steady, showing net gains for the day of 10 to 12 points.

New York

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Cotton was steadier today on commission house buying, week-end covering and trade support influenced partly by a more cheerful view of the labor situation. Aside from early foreign selling, contracts were relatively scarce and the market responded to a moderate demand. July sold up from 12.06 to 12.15 and closed at 12.12. The general market closed 13 to 15 points net higher.

Cotton futures closed steady, 13-15 higher.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Stock market sentiment improved today as further reports from Washington indicated hopes of a compromise in the automobile labor controversy. Led by the motors, many issues recovered fractions to a point or more in relatively quiet trading. The close was firm. Transfers approximated 650,000 shares.

The principal activity occurred in the first half-hour. There was some quick profit taking, however, and the volume dwindled appreciably. Some short covering later brought the list up to around its peak level of the brief session.

Grains, cotton, rubber and silver futures turned up with equities, although there was little buoyancy shown by the commodities generally. Bonds were a little mixed. U. S. government securities received some support. International dollar rates again recorded only slight changes.

Shares of General Motors, Chrysler, Nash, Hudson and Auburn got up more than a point. The rails reflected reports of better traffic and earnings. N. Y. Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific were almost as firm as the automotive group.

Du Pont rallied more than 2 points and issues up major fractions to more than a point. U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Case, Liggett & Myers, American Tobacco B, Bethlehem Steel, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Western Union and American Locomotive. Most of the aircrafts were active, but their values were small. The utilities and alcohol were rather narrow.

THE AUTOMOBILE STRIKE, if it comes, will give prosperity a set-back and take a million dollars a day from the pockets of workers, still hangs in the balance.

When the automobile industry started mechanics were getting one dollar and seventy-five cents a day. Now they get from four to seven dollars a day, some, very skillful, much more. The new industry has created good wages for at least two millions of men, directly and indirectly

PLANS COMPLETE FOR CONVENTION

State Baptist Missionary Union Meeting Here April 3-5

More than 500 delegates, messengers and visitors are expected to register at the First Baptist church, St. John street, April 3, for the annual convention of the state Women's Missionary union, officials of the local church announced Saturday. The sessions will begin April 3 and continue through April 5.

Committees under the direction of Mrs. Walter Rhodes, general chairman, have been busy for some time in perfecting details for the convention. Mrs. W. H. Banister, home assignment chairman, is being aided by a corps of assistants in the task of housing delegates and guests.

All the missionary units of Baptist churches in the Twin Cities are co-operating in providing "bed-and-breakfast" for those in attendance at the three-day meeting.

The executive committee will begin its deliberations Tuesday morning, April 3. A luncheon will be served at noon to those present by the missionary unit of the First Baptist church, under the direction of Mrs. H. H. Benoit and her committee.

Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the state-wide declaration contest will open. Young people representing the eight districts of the state will compete in the finals for the stewardship declaration awards. A young people's banquet will follow the contest. Mrs. J. W. Bolton of Alexandria is in charge of the stewardship declaration contest, assisted by Miss Virginia Ora Pittman, also of Alexandria. On Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock the annual meeting will begin with a young people's session at which Miss Pittman will preside.

Departmental conferences will precede the sessions on Wednesday and Thursday. Each morning session will begin at 9:30 o'clock. On Wednesday morning, April 4, Mrs. Lee Stall, president of the W. M. S., of the First Baptist church of Monroe, will bring friendship greetings to the assembly. Mrs. H. M. Bennett of Bastrop, state president of the W. M. U., will give the president's annual message at the same session. The afternoon session Wednesday will adjourn at 4 o'clock for a tea at the Baptist children's home. Mrs. J. Norman Coon is chairman of the committee in charge of this event.

Among the speakers who will bring messages of missionary interest during the convention will be three native Louisiana missionaries now home on furlough. They are Rev. J. Dawson King, Rev. G. H. Strother and Mrs. C. E. Leonard, all from China. Dr. M. E. Dodd, president of the Southern Baptist convention, will bring a message at the session Wednesday evening. Miss Pearl Bourne, associate young people's secretary for the W. M. U. auxiliary to the Southern Baptist convention, is also on the program.

An interesting event Thursday evening, April 5, will be the mission study banquet with Mrs. T. V. Herndon, of Lake Charles, in charge. Only those who have completed the first course in mission study will be eligible to attend. Mrs. H. R. Arlig of Monroe, mission study chairman, is in charge of arrangements for the banquet.

Other events on the program will be a playlet on Wednesday evening, "Our Real Problem," given under the direction of Mrs. Forrest Seaman of Monroe First church, a program on Thursday afternoon by the children from the Louisiana Baptist Children's home; and the presentation of the missionary drama, "Ba Thane," by students from Louisiana college at Pineville. This will conclude the sessions of the convention Thursday night.

Miss Wolfe Leaves For Chemical Society Meet

Miss Kathryn M. Wolfe, chemistry instructor at Ouachita junior college, left yesterday for St. Petersburg, Fla., where she will attend the 67th annual meeting of the National American Chemical society which opens today. Miss Wolfe is especially interested in crystal structure, she said, since she has done some research work in that subject and is anxious to hear experts tell of their work on crystal formations.

Because of recovery activities in the Black Hills and Harney national forest of South Dakota more men are employed there this winter than at any time since the gold rush.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.—(P)—Cotton was only moderately active in today's short session but prices advanced well on better economic news and in sympathy with stocks.

The opening was rather disappointing, showing gains of only 4 points, in view of the strength of Liverpool which came in 7 penny points better than due. The market soon rallied, however, on firmness in stocks and reports of favorable prospects for settlement of national labor disputes. In the late trading, May advanced to 12.03, July to 12.15 and October to 12.27, or 13 to 14 points above yesterday's close.

There was a slight reaction at the end on realizing but the close was steady, showing net gains for the day of 10 to 12 points.

Exports for the day were 8,397 bales. Cotton futures closed steady at net advances of 10 to 12 points.

New York Stocks

By Victor Euhank

NEW YORK, March 24.—(P)—Stock market sentiment improved today as further reports from Washington indicated hopes of a compromise in the automobile labor controversy. Led by the motors, many issues recovered fractions to a point or more in relatively quiet trading. The close was firm. Transfers approximated 650,000 shares.

The principal activity occurred in the first half-hour. There was some quick profit taking, however, and the volume dwindled appreciably. Some short covering later brought the list up to around its peak level of the brief session.

Grains, cotton, rubber and silver futures turned up with equities, although there was little buoyancy shown by the commodities generally. Bonds were a little mixed. U. S. government securities received some support. International dollar rates again recorded only slight changes.

Shares of General Motors, Chrysler, Nash, Hudson and Auburn got up more than a point. The rails reflected reports of better traffic and earnings. N. Y. Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific were almost as firm as the automobile group.

Do not rally more than 2 points and issue major fractions to more than 1 included. U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Case, Liggett & Myers, American Tobacco B, Bethlehem Steel, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Western Union and American Locomotive. Most of the aircrafts were active, but their gains were small. The utilities and alcohol were rather narrow.

LONG POSES AS TAX REFORMER

any persons who do not think the supervisor's office has attained the perfection of proficiency under Miss Alice Lee Grosjean, who believe that the board of liquidation is not the most patriotic and unselfish public body in the state and who think money can be saved by consolidating the levee system, are simply raving maniacs.

So far as the schools are concerned, they are interested only in proper support and in relief of local taxpayers. But, the administration has an interest far beyond that. Notwithstanding its black school record, it wants to be a shield and a buckler for the true interests of public education, at the same time that it doesn't want any of its own marbles taken.

The pre-legislative situation at this time sums up as follows:

The schools, needing more money badly, think that the best means of getting it is offered by the plan of the Louisiana Tax Reform commission.

Afraid to combat tax reform, and having no concrete plan of its own, the state administration grudgingly consent to suggestions of the commission—with the exceptions noted.

Consciously or unconsciously, the Long-Allen regime has accepted most of the recommendations of the New Deal Democracy concerning tax changes. Its leaders will probably say that the state administration thought of these reforms first. But, it didn't.

In all of this pre-legislation set up, there is one palpitating, transparent fact. It is that the Long-Allen crew is preparing to shout tax reform in a frantic effort to save its political hide. Nevertheless, tax reform is to be the issue at Baton Rouge. The principal feature of the tax reform commission plan is that it contemplates an annual state budget for public education of $10,000,000, of which $2,500,000 is to be covered into an equalizing fund.

The idea is to shift the burden of school support from local communities to the state.

The plan to help the schools is, of course, only part of the readjustment program of the tax commission. It proposes to afford property tax relief to the extent of nearly $2,000,000 per year through taking over parish road bonds and interest payments, transferring parish and local school taxes from property to other forms of taxation collected by the state from statewide sources, reduction in school expenses of $400,000 with a further potential reduction of $2,500,000, reducing the cost of road maintenance and providing homestead exemptions of $2,000 each.

This would amount to a saving to property taxpayers of 44.72 per cent. The total ad valorem taxes levied in 1932 were $46,804,734.68. Besides this, the commission proposes to effect an annual saving to the property taxpayers through reductions in the cost of government. This plan embraces $350,000 saved through abolition of the supervisor's office and consolidation of levee boards. Members of the commission are quite well aware, however, that to accomplish this without violent opposition, they will have to chloroform Huey P. Long. As a me-tooer of high rank, Governor Allen is expected to protest also. But, he doesn't want to.

Parish road bonds which the state would take over under this fiscal plan amount to $44,603,350. School bonds of $27,860,444, drainage bonds of $12,580,180 and miscellaneous bonds of $61,781,500 would not be included. Through transfer of road bonds, the parishes of the state would save a large annual interest bill.

Since he has built his roads on the pay-as-you-go plan and issued no bonds for that purpose, Caddo would not benefit from this transfer. Other fourth district parishes would benefit as follows:

Bienville	1,051,000.00
Claiborne	448,000.00
Webster	510,000.00
De Soto	749,500.00
Red River	725,500.00
Every parish in the fifth congressional district has issued road bonds. The figures follow:
Caldwell	$ 466,000.00
Catahoula	600,000.00
Concordia	448,000.00
East Carroll	542,000.00
Franklin	551,000.00
Jackson	659,000.00
Lincoln	568,000.00
Madison	746,000.00
Morehouse	1,427,000.00
Ouachita	1,437,000.00
Richland	1,076,000.00
Tensas	799,000.00
Union	503,000.00
West Carroll	189,000.00

In the eighth congressional district, also, all of the parishes built roads with bonds and have a large road bond debt, in consequence. Here is the recital:

Avoyelles	$1,382,350.00
Grant	777,200.00
LaSalle	467,500.00
Natchitoches	1,525,500.00
Rapides	1,967,200.00
Sabine	782,800.00
Vernon	884,000.00

Necessarily, in order to afford this tax relief, substitute taxes will have to be provided. The Louisiana tax reform commission has decided upon the nature of the taxes it will suggest but has not announced them. Its members decline to do so at this time.

However, in the event that an income tax should be urged as a means of raising revenue to replace that lost to the state, it is quite likely that a constitutional amendment will be proposed to change the present organic income tax provision.

The legislature is now constitutionally authorized to impose an income tax as a lieu tax up to three per cent. This limitation would not suffice if the program of the Louisiana

Delinquent Tax Payments Help Claiborne Schools

HOMER, La., March 24.—(Special)—Sufficient funds have been received by the payments of 1932 delinquent taxes to enable the schools of Claiborne parish to continue with the usual nine-month term, according to an announcement made here by John S. Patton, parish superintendent of schools.

School teachers, who received only 45 per cent of the salary due them last year, will be paid in full, Mr. Patton said.

Cycles Of Depressions Fail To Affect D'Arbonne Man

As far as Eli Rugg personally is concerned there never has been a depression. And Mr. Rugg in his 85 years has lived through several cycles of so-called depressions or "panics."

Mr. Rugg is a farmer—a successful farmer.

For more than two score years he has serenely lived amidst plenty at his home while politicians, state and national legislators and "book farmers" have argued and banded about "farm relief" schemes and plans which somehow or other inevitably failed to achieve any great or lasting results.

Mr. Rugg lives in a large, comfortable farm house at the site of old D'Arbonne postoffice, several miles north of Choudrant on the Ruston-Farmerville highway. That has been his home for nearly a half-century. Approximately 200 acres of land, some of it wooded, surrounds the farm.

Mr. Rugg, twice married and twice widowed, is the father of 10 children, several of whom are prominent citizens in Union, Lincoln and other Louisiana parishes. All of his surviving children were afforded higher education—college and university training.

F. M. Gates, Monroe realtor, formerly connected with the New Orleans Federal Land bank for more than seven years as general appraiser in north Louisiana parishes, and who has appraised approximately 4,000 farms in this section, says that in his long study of farming methods and farm conditions the record made by Mr. Rugg is unique and stands almost without a parallel.

Mr. Gates, for years intimately acquainted with Mr. Rugg, tells this story about the D'Arbonne agriculturist:

"Mr. Rugg was first married about 1872. For nearly 10 years after that he followed the method of farming then in vogue. He planted the majority of his best land to cotton and the balance to corn. He depended, of course, on the money realized from the sale of his cotton to care for other farm operation expenses and home and personal maintenance.

"Mr. Rugg usually made on an average 20 bales of cotton a year. If the market was high he realized a surplus over his expenses and if the market was low he was affected adversely.

"Somehow or other, like thousands of other farmers in those days, he never seemed to get ahead. He knew something was wrong.

"Taking stock of his situation he discovered his financial position was too greatly subjected to the whims and fantasies of the cotton exchange. He further found that he was too often forced to 'live out of stores'—buying the greater part of his family's food from commission merchants.

"The next year after his awakening he deserted the one-crop plan. He planted the greater part of his tillable land to peas, peanuts, potatoes and vegetables of all kinds. He only used a small portion of his land for cotton. He also grew sugar cane and made his own syrup.

"In the meantime he bought high-grade cows, chickens and hogs, and cultivated fruit trees.

"From that year hence Mr. Rugg became independent. First of all, he raised plenty of food to last him through the winter and had a surplus on most of his crops which, even if sold at low prices, brought a profit.

"He was never worried about the fluctuation of the cotton market and the few bales he made he held or sold as he wished. He made a profit on his other surpluses and was not dependent on the cotton crop for cash. "One could go to the Rugg farm any time of the year and be assured that the dining table at mealtime would be loaded with the choicest of home-grown products—vegetables, meats, syrup, milk and butter, etc."

"I know of my own knowledge," Mr. Gates said, "that for 30 or 40 years Mr. Rugg has maintained a steady cash balance in banks, that he owes not a cent and that he has never applied to a government agency for financial aid.

"At 85 now Mr. Rugg, still hale and hearty, is enjoying the fruits of his forethought and labors. One of his greatest delights is to have his progeny visit him. His large home has about eight rooms and often they are occupied by his children and grandchildren, all of whom derive as much pleasure in visiting him as Mr. Rugg does in having them come.

"Mr. Rugg typifies the ideal farm citizen, who is, after all, the real backbone of the community. He is imbued with a combination of the pioneer spirit and modern thought in conducting his affairs. When he passes to his reward he will indeed have left distinct and permanent footprints on the sands of time," Mr. Gates concluded.

AMNESIA VICTIM REGAINS MEMORY

Young Man Who Forgot Name Identified As Memphis Citizen

Identity of the young man who has been in St. Francis sanitarium since Monday night, suffering from amnesia, was established Saturday afternoon when he regained his memory and stated that his name was William Adams of Memphis, Tenn. He said his nearest relative was his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Watkins, of Memphis, whom he left about a month ago.

Adams said that since arriving here from Memphis he had been engaged in highway work and had been employed under M. J. Adams, a highway foreman not related to him. While suffering from the attack of amnesia the young man would say the word "Adams" occasionally in an almost inaudible voice, but officers and physicians were unable to determine whether he meant Adams was his own name or the name of his foreman, but Saturday he explained that both he and his foreman were named Adams.

The young man said he came across the Monroe traffic bridge Monday afternoon with his foreman and his foreman's wife, but that he had no recollection of anything that occurred after he left their automobile. According to his story, he had $3 or $4 in his pocket at the time he lost consciousness, but at police headquarters it was stated that nothing was found on his person when he was apprehended.

Adams was taken into custody by police when they found him acting in a strange manner and was transferred to St. Francis sanitarium when it became apparent that he had suffered a mental lapse. When questioned at the sanitarium Saturday, Adams said he had no idea what could have happened to him, as he had never had spells of unconsciousness before.

Ouachita Farmers Ask $35,000 In Crop Loans

Applications for crop loans totaling approximately $35,000 have been made with the local office of the Rayville Production Credit association, attached at the office said Saturday. A number of applications from this section have been approved at the headquarters office in Tallulah, it was said.

After the applications have been filed here the farmers deal directly with the office at Tallulah. No checks are sent through the Monroe office.

Castles, 618 Calypso street. Mr. Castles graduated from Monroe city high school in 1930. He will be home for the Easter holidays, Mrs. Castles said.

West Monroe Municipal Campaign Is Uneventful; Final Week Begins Today

Today begins the final week of the West Monroe municipal campaign which has been marked by unusual quietness. The Democratic primary in which a mayor, five members of the board of aldermen and three members of the city Democratic committee are to be nominated will be held Tuesday, April 3.

Three candidates aspire to the mayoralty, nine to the board of aldermen and three men are unopposed for the Democratic committee posts.

No date for the second primary, should one be necessary, has been set.

RELIEF WORKERS TO BE INSURED

ERA Employees To Receive Protection Under State Laws

According to regulations issued by the emergency relief administration, all persons hereafter given employment on relief projects will be protected by state workmen's compensation laws.

At a meeting held Friday between parish and city officials and ERA executives, it was agreed that the cost of insurance premiums for workers will be borne by the city of Monroe and Ouchita parish. The premium amounts to 5 per cent of the payroll. The regulation will go into effect April 1, it was announced.

It was urged by both ERA and municipal officials that new projects, designed to keep as many persons at work as possible, will be developed. Those attending the meeting included Mayor Arnold Bernstein, John M. Breed, president of the police jury; Grayson Guthrie, G. B. Cooley and Sam Collins, members of the CWA advisory board, and Miss Watson, parish supervisor of the CWA. S. H. McClary represented the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe.

North Carolina dairymen estimate they sold $10,000,000 worth of milk to urban consumers last year.

For more than two score years he has serenely lived amidst plenty at his home while politicians, state and national legislators and "book farmers" have argued and banded about "farm relief" schemes and plans which somehow or other inevitably failed to achieve any great or lasting results.

Mr. Rugg lives in a large, comfortable farm house at the site of old D'Arbonne postoffice, several miles north of Choudrant on the Ruston-Farmerville highway. That has been his home for nearly a half-century. Approximately 200 acres of land, some of it wooded, surrounds the farm.

Mr. Rugg, twice married and twice widowed, is the father of 10 children, several of whom are prominent citizens in Union, Lincoln and other Louisiana parishes. All of his surviving children were afforded higher education—college and university training.

F. M. Gates, Monroe realtor, formerly connected with the New Orleans Federal Land bank for more than seven years as general appraiser in north Louisiana parishes, and who has appraised approximately 4,000 farms in this section, says that in his long study of farming methods and farm conditions the record made by Mr. Rugg is unique and stands almost without a parallel.

Mr. Gates, for years intimately acquainted with Mr. Rugg, tells this story about the D'Arbonne agriculturist:

"Mr. Rugg was first married about 1872. For nearly 10 years after that he followed the method of farming then in vogue. He planted the majority of his best land to cotton and the balance to corn. He depended, of course, on the money realized from the sale of his cotton to care for other farm operation expenses and home and personal maintenance.

"Mr. Rugg usually made on an average 20 bales of cotton a year. If the market was high he realized a surplus over his expenses and if the market was low he was affected adversely.

"Somehow or other, like thousands of other farmers in those days, he never seemed to get ahead. He knew something was wrong.

"Taking stock of his situation he discovered his financial position was too greatly subjected to the whims and fantasies of the cotton exchange. He further found that he was too often forced to 'live out of stores'—buying the greater part of his family's food from commission merchants.

"The next year after his awakening he deserted the one-crop plan. He planted the greater part of his tillable land to peas, peanuts, potatoes and vegetables of all kinds. He only used a small portion of his land for cotton. He also grew sugar cane and made his own syrup.

"In the meantime he bought high-grade cows, chickens and hogs, and cultivated fruit trees.

"From that year hence Mr. Rugg became independent. First of all, he raised plenty of food to last him through the winter and had a surplus on most of his crops which, even if sold at low prices, brought a profit.

"He was never worried about the fluctuation of the cotton market and the few bales he made he held or sold as he wished. He made a profit on his other surpluses and was not dependent on the cotton crop for cash.

"One could go to the Rugg farm any time of the year and be assured that the dining table at mealtime would be loaded with the choicest of home-grown products—vegetables, meats, syrup, milk and butter, etc."

"I know of my own knowledge," Mr. Gates said, "that for 30 or 40 years Mr. Rugg has maintained a steady cash balance in banks, that he owes not a cent and that he has never applied to a government agency for financial aid.

"At 85 now Mr. Rugg, still hale and hearty, is enjoying the fruits of his forethought and labors. One of his greatest delights is to have his progeny visit him. His large home has about eight rooms and often they are occupied by his children and grandchildren, all of whom derive as much pleasure in visiting him as Mr. Rugg does in having them come.

"Mr. Rugg typifies the ideal farm citizen, who is, after all, the real backbone of the commonwealth. He is imbued with a combination of the pioneer spirit and modern thought in conducting his affairs. When he passes to his reward he will indeed have left distinct and permanent footprints on the sands of time," Mr. Gates concluded.

AMNESIA VICTIM REGAINS MEMORY

Young Man Who Forgot Name Identified As Memphis Citizen

Identity of the young man who has been in St. Francis sanitarium since Monday night, suffering from amnesia, was established Saturday afternoon when he regained his memory and stated that his name was William Adams of Memphis, Tenn. He said his nearest relative was his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Watkins, of Memphis, whom he left about a month ago.

Adams said that since arriving here from Memphis he had been engaged in highway work and had been employed under M. J. Adams, a highway foreman, not related to him. While suffering from the attack of amnesia the young man would say the word "Adams" occasionally in an almost inaudible voice, but officers and physicians were unable to determine whether he meant Adams was his own name or the name of his foreman, but Saturday he explained that both he and his foreman were named Adams.

The young man said he came across the Monroe traffic bridge Monday afternoon with his foreman and his foreman's wife, but that he had no recollection of anything that occurred after he left their automobile. According to his story, he had $3 or $4 in his pocket at the time he lost consciousness, but at police headquarters it was stated that nothing was found on his person when he was apprehended.

Adams was taken into custody by police when they found him acting in a strange manner and was transferred to St. Francis sanitarium when it became apparent that he had suffered a mental lapse.

When questioned at the sanitarium Saturday, Adams said he had no idea what could have happened to him, as he had never had spells of unconsciousness before.

Ouachita Farmers Ask $35,000 In Crop Loans

Applications for crop loans totaling approximately $35,000 have been made with the local office of the Rayville Production Credit association, attaches at the office said Saturday.

A number of applications from this section have been approved at the headquarters office in Tallulah, it was said.

West Monroe Municipal Campaign Is Uneventful; Final Week Begins Today

Today begins the final week of the West Monroe municipal campaign which has been marked by unusual quietness. The Democratic primary in which a mayor, five members of the board of aldermen and three members of the city Democratic committee are to be nominated will be held Tuesday, April 3.

Three candidates aspire to the mayoralty, nine to the board of aldermen and three men are unopposed for the Democratic committee posts.

No date for the second primary, should one be necessary, has been set.

RELIEF WORKERS TO BE INSURED

ERA Employees To Receive Protection Under State Laws

According to regulations issued by the emergency relief administration, all persons hereafter given employment on relief projects will be protected by state workmen's compensation laws.

At a meeting held Friday between parish and city officials and ERA executives, it was agreed that the cost of insurance premiums for workers will be borne by the city of Monroe and Ouachita parish. The premium amounts to 5 per cent of the payroll. The regulation will go into effect April 1, it was announced.

It was urged by both ERA and municipal officials that new projects, designed to keep as many persons at work as possible, will be developed.

Those attending the meeting included Mayor Arnold Bernstein, John M. Breard, president of the police jury; Grayson Guthrie, G. B. Cooley and Sam Collins, members of the CWA advisory board, and Miss Watson, parish supervisor of the CWA. S. H. McClary represented the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe.

North Carolina dairymen estimate they sold $10,000,000 worth of milk to urban consumers last year.

SMART STYLES SKETCHED ALONG THE RIVIERA

*Silhouettes Are More Feminine and Gay With Color in Charming Spring Designs
by Leading Couturiers*

HERE in Paris there is great excitement taking place in the realm of chic clothes. The first weeks of Spring have brought forth some irresistible new fashion presentations. Rounder, softer lines are noticeable throughout and speak emphatically for a more feminine silhouette.

An occasional bloused bodice seems to indicate that the siren sheath silhouette is doomed. Day skirts remain narrow, but in many instances they are relieved by wrap-around effects or low pleats, placed either in back or in front. Afternoon frocks show shorter skirts—some being twelve inches off the floor. And what seems most remarkable of all, the uneven hemline is being welcomed back. This Spring it will be quite the thing to have a frock that dips gracefully both back and front, while the sides remain short.

As to necklines—take your choice! A frock with a high neckline is generally enhanced by an interesting collar treatment that lends a softening effect.

Square shoulders seem to have taken a back seat—perhaps it's only a temporary change; but rounded, soft shoulder lines seem to be most in demand right now. Elbow-length sleeves that flare at the finish and brief cape sleeves are new.

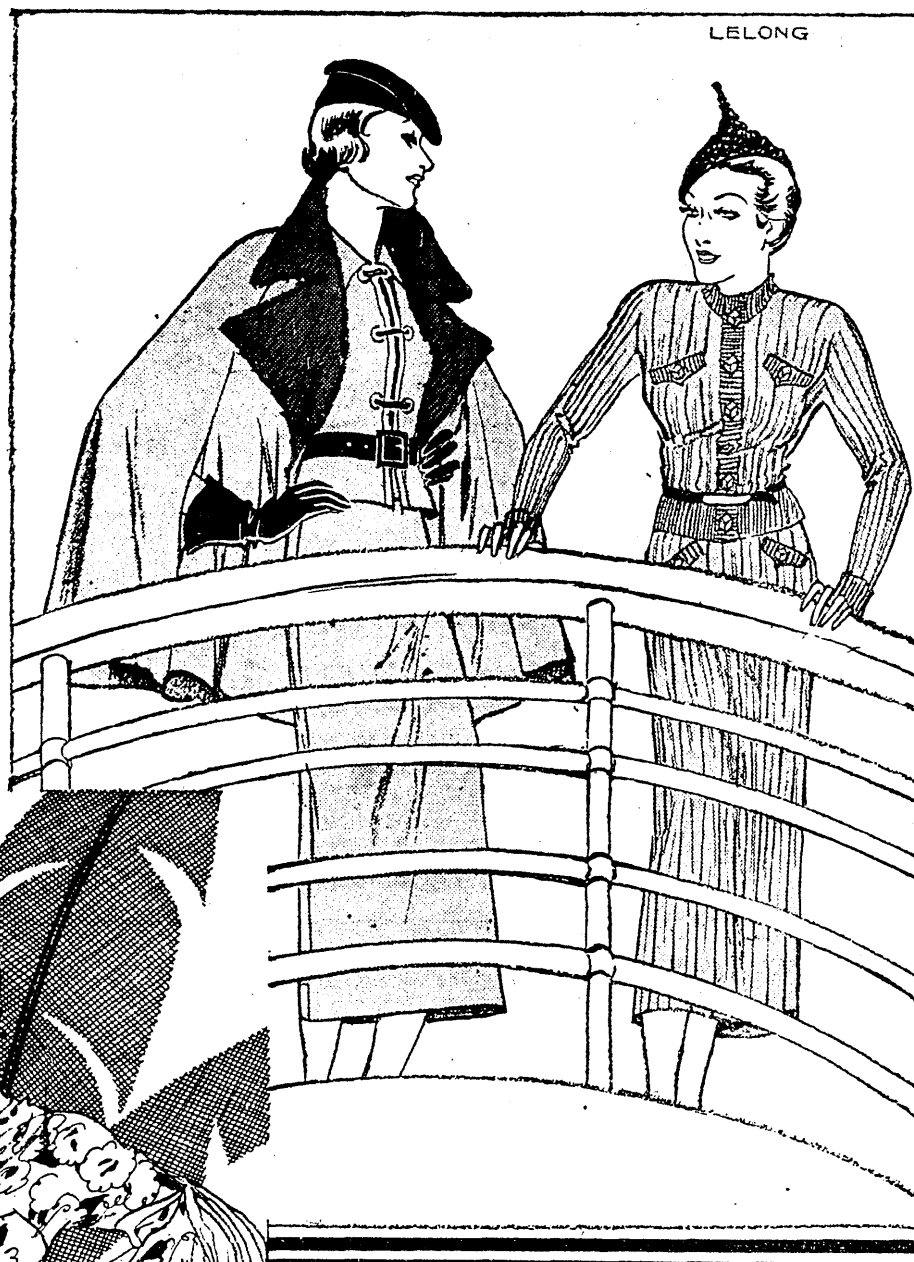

Your waistline this season should be emphasized either with a soft, wide contrasting sash, or with a trick belt of some sort. Lacquered, straw and cord belts are all new and charming.

And, by the way, capes are used for every occasion. For daytime wear the hip-length cape is popular. Long, flowing capes swing their graceful folds at many afternoon and evening activities.

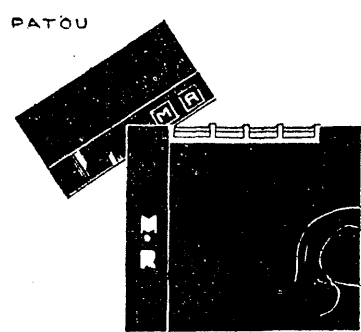

A SPORTS ENSEMBLE

BELOW: Bruyere combines a smart frock of canary yellow crepe with a black cloth coat. The frock is cut on very slim lines and with a high V-neckline. Inserts of Irish crochet are used as trimming. The three-quarter coat with full sleeves and narrow collar uses rows of tucks to add interest. Youthful and gay is Maggy Rouff's printed ensemble of crepe de Chine in brown and blue on a white background. The elbow bows and collar trim are of black and turquoise velvet.

PATOU designs the charming gray afternoon frock of crepe, sketched below. Interest is centered in the back, where you see two wing-like inserts of organza. The intricate sleeves are elbow length and the narrow belt of self-material ends in a small, flat bow. At the upper right is sketched a stunning sports ensemble, a Molyneux creation. Of brown rough wool, its belt and lacings are of brown leather run through enameled eyelets. The hip-length swagger cape is collared with nutria. Just perfect for sport occasions is Lelong's soft, creamy, gray knitted wool suit with steel buttons.

MAGGY ROUFF presents a figured crepe de Chine (at left), with a green background, featuring black, white, orange and blue flowers. Note the insets of shirred white organdie on the elbow-length sleeves. Sash and frock are cut in one very long piece.

TWO bags in black antelope feature initials. The small one shows a silver-edged black enamel band across the bottom. The other closes with a square crystal bar run through a silver frame. Cunning ear-clips are of strass and small brilliants.

BRUYERE includes a cunning turned-back hat of beige wool, with a stitched brim and bow-trimmed crown. The green woolen necklace ties in back with long black woolen strings, and is studded in front with steel. A stunning bag and umbrella set shows matching handles of steel studs. The bag is of soft wool with a zipper fastening.

THE wind-blown silhouette is expressed, at the right, by Lelong in a gray woolen frock, with belt and bracelets of steel studs and black leather. The bow and incrustations are of navy blue and white polka-dotted silk. Jean Patou's black and white wool crepe frock shows a demure turn-back collar in front, but a deep V-back.

POODLE

By Ring Lardner

NOW, I won't tell you who I am, but if you want to ferret it out for yourself, call up Information and inquire for a fella that's married to a woman named Mary who says that when her husband's drinking, he talks a great deal too much. When he ain't drinking, he won't talk at all. Mary always gets mad at him when he's drinking, so she must figure that if he talks at all, it's too much.

Outside of me, the great sorrow in Mary's life is not having insomnia. It just about kills her to think that there's seven or eight hours out of the twenty-four when she ain't talking. I've tried to tell her that she talks in her sleep. She won't believe it because she always wakes up depressed.

Well, let's begin all over. I meant to say that every Christmas up to last Christmas, Waldron's always gave their employees a bonus of ten percent, and believe it or not, that meant six hundred dollars to the fella that's promised to rock you to sleep. As a matter of fact, it didn't really mean a dime; I just kept the check till I got home, and then I endorsed it and turned it over to Mary and she went ahead and spent it whatever way she wanted to, which was to help pay for a new car because the one she bought last year had cigarette ashes on the running board.

But when we girls and boys opened our envelopes on the twenty-fourth of December this last ult., we got a big surprise. It seems the old man had received a mash note from the Secretary of the Treasury and he'd read between the lines and found out that there was a temporary slump in business, and the only way to offset it was to turn over our bonus checks to some deserving charity on Wall Street. He enclosed a substitute for same in the form of an order on a couple of haberdashers, one for women and one for men, calling for fifty dollars' worth of pearl-handled suspenders for the high-salaried guys like myself and scaling all the way down to one-dollar certificates for the office boys and the little blond kid who had been playing guessing games with the telephone switchboard for three weeks.

Well, during the first week of my married life I'd passed a resolution to never tell Mary any bad news, and the result was that I'd practically become a mute except when I made a few local stops on the way home from the office. But this time there was no way of concealing the facts or even stalling long enough to not spoil the spirit of the occasion.

I handed her the envelope without a word of warning and when she'd read the contents often enough to realize that it wasn't a joke, she let out a yell that would have waked up a porter.

I won't attempt to remember all the bright ideas she had when the first shock was over. One was to hire a lawyer to sue Mr. Waldron for the six hundred on the grounds that he had given it to me so many Christmases that it was really part of my salary.

When you've been Mary's husband eight years, you know that the only way to win an argument, or stop one, is to agree with everything she says. After you've yes-ed her a couple of times, she'll change sides. Then you change with her.

She gave up plotting how to fleece Mr. Waldron after I'd cheered every suggestion she could think of.

THE Ingrams were the first people we met when we came to Bay-side. It only took Mary and Edith Ingram twenty minutes to cement a beautiful friendship and I'd have had to like Jack even if he was a Collector of Internal Revenue.

Jack had a good job with the Boland Drug Company. We were getting seven when we met him and they boosted him to seventy-five hundred before the crash.

Christmas Eve, it was the Ingrams' turn to come and see us. Mary said I mustn't tell them about our little surprise; they liked us so much that they'd feel pretty near as bad as we did, especially Edith, who could be so sympathetic sometimes that it was almost impossible not to get up and sock her in the jaw. You see, the difference between my regular salary and Jack's was fifteen hundred dollars, but his firm had never even given him a pocket comb for Christmas, let alone a check, so if Edith didn't know our secret, Mary could still take advantage of her only annual chance to go to town. I had to state in behalf of my Mary that she can outgait any two women I ever met, and doesn't need to speak a word. Twice during the evening Edith brought up the subject herself. She asked me how it felt to be a millionaire. I said I wished I knew, but Mary flashed a smile that would have fooled even Edith. Mr. Waldron had raised the bonus instead of repeating it—that's what you'd have thought, seeing Mary smile.

Well, Jack's concern remembered him the last day of the year. They gave him his free-dome and a nice note telling him how sorry they were to lose his services. Jack realized that there wasn't a chance of him landing anything in his line at even half what the Boland people had paid him, so he and Edith moved out to Chicago where his brother owns a couple of hotels and he's going to run one of them.

Mary felt terrible losing Edith, but she did have the satisfaction of one final go at the night before they went away. That happened to be the seventh of January and the seventh of January happened to be my birthday. And without knowing anything about it being my birthday, Mr. Waldron called me in his office that afternoon and made a speech which I'm still wondering why he made it. He said he understood what a blow the bonus thing must have been to the employees; it had probably spoiled their Christmas; it had spoiled his Christmas worrying about it; he hated not showing his appreciation of our loyalty in the usual way, but business conditions didn't warrant his keeping everybody on the payroll, let alone giving us a bonus of ten percent. However, I was the most valuable man in his employ and it wasn't fair for me to be treated like the riffraff and he intended to more than make up to me for the six hundred dollars I hadn't got; it wouldn't be in the form of a bonus, but my salary check would be different from now on; and finally I must treat this as strictly confidential.

The old man hadn't stated how much my raise was to be, just that it would be more than six hundred dollars. Mary insisted on me guessing and I guessed seven hundred. That didn't satisfy her at all, so I made it eight hundred and fifty. But she's the kind that you give her an inch and she'll take the Lincoln Highway, and by the time the Ingrams showed up, she had me getting eight thousand a year, and a hundred more than Bolands were paying Jack before they fired him. Not only that, but she appointed me general manager and if the Ingrams had stayed an hour longer, she probably would have made me Waldron's partner. Edith was the silentest I ever saw her. If she'd opened her mouth she'd have screamed.

THAT brings us to the comedy relief, or the love interest, or something. Waldron left for Florida Monday night, the thirtieth of January. He didn't call me in to bid him goodbye, but when I got to the office Tuesday morning, there was a mash note from him saying he regretted that a sudden change in plans had prevented him seeing me in person, and a sudden change in the business outlook had rendered it necessary to reduce expenses fifty per cent; I was the highest salaried man in his employ and it was simply impossible to pay me what I'd been getting; on the other hand, or maybe the same one, he wouldn't insult such a valuable and important employee by asking me to take a cut, so this was a notice that he would have to wait along without my services after February the fourth, and he hoped I'd understand that he, and not I, was the one who would really suffer.

Now I may as well admit that I was afraid to break the news to Mary. To report that my future earnings would be nothing per cent—well, you don't get up to a ravenous wolf and tell him they took the diner off at Jackson.

I was in a tough spot and it was necessary to practise deception, which is as foreign to my nature as rolling on a duck's back. The system in our family has always been for me to give Mary my check and for her to give me ten dollars a week for subway fare and lunch and side trips to the old Spanish missions. At the end of the month, she makes out a check for the next month's railroad ticket, but she makes it out to the Long Island Railroad Company. That didn't matter anyway, because if my secret was to be a secret, I had to go to town and come home on my regular train, job or no job; besides, I could think of many a more economical way of spending the winter than to hang around the house all day long and wait for Mary to run out of hallelujahs.

A risk I couldn't afford to take was in regards to being called up at the office; I mean, after February fourth, Mary hardly ever phoned, but she might. I had to fix it with the switchboard gal to say I was out or in conference and couldn't be disturbed, and was there any message? The gal was as dumb as they come, but she would lie for me because I never squawked when she made a mistake, which was every day from eight-thirty to five, with a half hour off for lunch, where she probably got somebody else's order.

WHEN Mary gave me my allowance the morning of the sixth, I realized I'd better go light on lunch myself; it don't take more than two or three hours to answer all the help-wanted ads, and in the middle of winter, with the kind of weather we've had, you get bored waiting for time to go home. You ain't in any frame of mind to read, except the ads, so the Public Library is no good. The waiting room in the Long Island station, or any other station, or the lobby of a hotel—any place that's indoors and free—they all lose their kick after a few days. It came down to a choice between the talkies and the speakies, though there wasn't really a choice. Ten dollars don't last forever in a place like this, and in my case, the explanation when I got home would have lasted the rest of my life. Well, I've seen every cheap talkie in town and most of them twice in one day.

When I got home at the end of the first week of "vacation" I had to explain why there was no check at all. As I've already said, I'm not an expert at deception; just the same, Mary believed my story.

It appears that Mr. Waldron had decided to pay me my salary monthly instead of weekly. I would receive my next check the first of April, and so on.

I was afraid Mary would be sore about this. She was just the opposite. I never saw her enjoy herself as much as she did that night, dividing different amounts by twelve and then multiplying to see if they came out the same way.

She had money in the bank and she didn't mind advancing me ten dollars every Monday morning till the new deal went into effect.

I wish I'd kept a list of the jobs I tried to get and didn't get and couldn't have held onto them if I'd got them.

I applied for positions that I don't even know what the words mean: "Galalith" for instance, if that's how you pronounce it; and "Furniture tracer, to locate furniture skips"; and "Famfold biller," "Silk disponent," and "Beveler."

Now try and stay awake long enough to listen to what happened today. I came in town as usual. The papers only had three new want ads I could answer in person and I wasn't qualified for any of the jobs they offered even if they gave me a trial. Just the same I answered them so as not to spoil my record.

THIS part of the performance was finished at ten and I spent the next two hours writing to people who wanted their ads answered by mail. That's really the best way to go job-hunting. You don't have to listen to thirty or forty hard-luck stories from bores that are as bad off as you are, or pretend you're pulling for them to land the same job that you hope to land for yourself. You don't have to act indifferent or force a smile when the master of ceremonies announces that "there's no need detaining you gentlemen; the vacancy has been filled." And when you've written your letter and dropped it in the box, the suspense is over. You know you'll never hear from it again, and some lucky fifteen-dollar-a-week secretary will soon be tossing it in the waste-basket.

It was a little past noon, hard-ly twelve hours ago, I got through with my day's "work" and nothing to do till train time, and I was headed for Pelton's Restaurant where the Fifty-Cent Blue Plate Lunch is just as good as other places, but it takes them a lot longer to serve it, and crossing Forty-second Street I heard a couple of women say, "Oh, let's go to the Paramount! Paul Whiteman's there this week," only I guess they didn't both say it, but one was enough—I'm a sucker for Whiteman's music.

The other woman said, "If we go now, we can hear him twice," and I certainly had no right to overlook a bargain. A newsreel was showing a bunch of Greeks, all twins, fishing for sponges at Tarpon Springs, Florida, when the guy next to me nudged me in the elbow and said, "Well, Poodle, how do you like the big town?" "Listen, Poodle," I said, "you've got me mixed up with some other dog. You and I are strangers." I said, "and it suits me fine to continue the relationship."

So he said, "Your parents would hate to see the change in you," he said. "They never would have got the swell head just because they live in New York."

I said, "People don't get the swell head on account of living in New York. They get embarrassed, unless they're crazy, like you."

So he said, "I'm not crazy, Poodle," he said, "but I am under observation."

"Why not?" I said. "You're talking as loud as a Congressman, and even sillier."

So he said, "I mean I'm under observation at Graves' Hospital, on Fifty-seventh," he said. "I don't want you to mention that when you write home."

"I'm not liable to," I said. "I don't write home because there's Mary can always outgait any other woman.

nobody left to write to, and if I did, I couldn't mention you because I don't know your name."

He dropped his voice to a shout.

"I'll tell you my name," he said, "though you know it as well as I do. I'm Phil Hughes. There!" he said. "How does that strike you?"

"It's prettier than Poodle," I said, "but it's the first time I ever heard it."

So he said, "I haven't any idea why you want to keep up this sham. Your mother's son couldn't be very bad, but if you're mixed up in a shady business of any kind, I won't squeal on you," he said. "I won't even say I saw you if I ever go back to Oconomowoc."

I asked him if that was where we came from and he said, "Just as if you didn't know!" So I asked him what was my name and he said, "Ben Collins, the same as your dad's, but everybody called you Poodle because you looked like a poodle and still do." I thanked him and then I said, "Now listen once more: my real name is none of your business. But it ain't Ben Collins and nobody but you calls me Poodle or ever called me Poodle much as I may look like one, and besides that, the only Oconomowoc I ever heard of is in Wisconsin—there couldn't be two of them—and I was never west of Parkersburg, Pennsylvania, in all my life."

So he said, "You better not talk so loud, Poodle, or they'll put you out," he said. "You've got some reason for changing your identity. I don't like to pry into your affairs, though I'd like to know what you're doing and I hope it's honest for your mother's sake."

So I said, "I'll tell you. I'm making an honest effort to hear Whiteman's band, but the competition has got me licked." So he said, "I'd like to know what you're doing for a living," and I said, "I'll tell you another piece of truth: I was making an honest living, but I ain't making any living at all right now because I lost my job." So he said, "If that's true and you can prove it's true, I'll give you a job, but we'll have to leave here and go somewhere else to discuss it."

And as the ushers reached the same decision at the same time, my pal, Phil Hughes, and his pal, Poodle, marched out of the theater to the strains of "Rhapsody in Blue."

I THOUGHT that when he saw me in broad daylight, he might realize his mistake and admit it. But no; I was still Poodle on Seventh Avenue and still Poodle when we got out of the taxi at Graves' Hospital on Fifty-seventh Street. He took me up to the seventh floor and introduced me to a nurse as Mr. Collins, a young man he used to know in Oconomowoc. He asked the nurse to send for Dr. Gregory. The nurse said that the doctor was somewhere in the hospital, and he said to send him to his room. The room is a nice, big room and full of books about travel in this country and Europe.

While he waited, Mr. Hughes said that he was allowed to go out alone after nine in the morning provided he reported at the hospital for lunch and was in for good by five in the afternoon. The doctor had been after him to employ a companion to go around with him daytimes, not because there was danger of him doing anything rash, but to keep him from spending too much money. If I wanted the job, I could have it because it would make him feel good to think he was helping my mother's son.

I told him again that he had never seen my mother, that my name wasn't Ben Collins or Poodle Collins and didn't even begin with a C, and that Pennsylvania was the closest I'd ever been to Oconomowoc. He said, "Some day you'll trust me with your secret, but you can't fool me and we'll just let it go at that." I told him what I had been getting at Waldron's and he said he would pay me seventy-two hundred dollars a year, and the first month in advance. In my pocket right now I've got his check for five hundred, and the money I've been spending tonight is part of a hundred-dollar bill he gave me in case I needed cash, as I certainly did. It wasn't the doctor's business how much he paid me, but he wanted the doctor's approval of me as a man.

Finally the doctor showed up and Mr. Hughes introduced me to him: "Dr. Gregory, this is a boy from my home town. We used to call him Poodle Collins and now he resents the nickname and denies the rest of it. But if he meets with your approval, I'll take him as a companion, and we've already agreed on terms."

The doctor said he would like to talk to me alone, and we went out to some visitors' room or something and I thought that as soon as I told him the truth, Poodle would die the death of a dog and I'd be as far out of a job as I was this morning. But got this: the doctor said his own name was Tyson, not Gregory, only Mr. Hughes insisted that he was Dr. Gregory and that he'd known him in Cleveland, where Dr. Tyson has never been. Mr. Hughes makes Dr. Tyson's checks to cash because Dr. Tyson doesn't like to endorse them with the name Gregory. This check I've got is made out to cash because I'd have trouble establishing myself as Ben Collins or Poodle and Mr. Hughes won't believe my name is anything else. Dr. Tyson said that if I was on the level it didn't make any difference what my name was or where I came from; he wanted Mr. Hughes to have somebody with him when he's wandering around, to prevent him buying the corner of Forty-second and Fifth Avenue and starting a rival Radio City. He gets a big monthly check from a trust fund and he tries to get rid of it as fast as he can. My six hundred a month may save him six times that amount and spare Dr. Tyson a lot of worry.

The fella is harmless and no bad habits. He likes to go to matinees and picture shows and baseball in the summer. Won't he get a job? Dr. Tyson can't hold his job! And Dr. Tyson thinks I can if I pretend I came from Oconomowoc and know everybody I'm supposed to know, though the doctor says their records show that Mr. Hughes didn't live in Oconomowoc and only spent a couple of summers there.

The doctor naturally wanted references and the only one I could give was Waldron's, with the old man still in Palm Beach. But he telephoned to the treasurer and the vice-president, and what they said must have satisfied him. If it hadn't, I'd have gone down there and shot up the joint.

So that's about all. I'm a seventy-two-hundred-dollar day nurse named Poodle. I spend eight hours a day with a crazy person that pays me and the rest of the time with one that doesn't. Only she ain't around just now, and maybe she won't be for quite a while. Because it seems that she called up Waldron's a half hour before my regular lunch hour today and Waldron's had a new switchboard gal, which I don't blame them for, but the gal they fired had forgotten to leave instructions with the new one protecting me, and the new one had never heard my name, but said to wait and she would make inquiries. Evidently she told Mary the truth, which was that I hadn't been connected with the place since February fourth. So when I got to Bay-side this evening, there was no Parker sedan to meet me at the station and for the first time in months I had to use my key to open the Love Nest door. On the table in the hall there was twenty dollars and a note. It's short and I'll read it to you:

"I am going home to my mother and I wish I had never left her and never had met a man like you. I did not know there was such people in the world, people who can deliberately lie and lie to the person they have promised to love and cherish and who have made as many sacrifices for you as I. I do not know and certainly don't wish to know the name of the woman with whom you have been associating all the weeks when you pretended you were still at work. When you have given her up and when you have secured a position and can support a true and loyal wife as she should be supported and when you have convinced me that you are through once and for all with the lies and deceptions and frauds and infidelity which you have been practicing and laughing in your sleeve at the loving wife who has sacrificed her whole life to make you happy, perhaps then and only then I may perhaps come back and resume my own humiliating position as your slave whom you have treated worse than the harem of Italy and Europe. Until that time I ask for you to not communicate with me in any way, shape or manner as you will receive no reply. Kindly be careful not to throw ashes and lighted cigarettes on the floor and I imagine that when this money which I am giving you runs out with huzzy will gladly supply you with ample to supply your needs extravagant as they may be and as I know they are. Please do not insult me further by bringing that woman into this house."

Well, I guess Mary deserves a vacation and I'm going to let her have one at least as long as the one I've enjoyed; maybe a couple of months longer.

POODLE

By Ring Lardner

NOW, I won't tell you who I am, but if you want to ferret it out for yourself, call up Information and inquire for a fella that's married to a woman named Mary who says that when her husband's drinking, he talks a great deal too much. When he ain't drinking, he won't talk at all. Mary always gets mad at him when he's drinking, so she must figure that if he talks at all, it's too much.

Outside of me, the great sorrow in Mary's life is not having insomnia. It just about kills her to think that there's seven or eight hours out of the twenty-four when she ain't talking. I've tried to tell her that she talks in her sleep. She won't believe it because she always wakes up depressed.

Well, let's begin all over. I meant to say that every Christmas up to last Christmas, Waldron's always gave their employees a bonus of ten percent, and believe it or not, that meant six hundred dollars to the fella that's promised to rock you to sleep. As a matter of fact, it didn't really mean a dime; I just kept the check till I got home, and then I endorsed it and turned it over to Mary and she went ahead and spent it whatever way she wanted to, which was to help pay for a new car because the one she bought last year had cigarette ashes on the running board.

But when we girls and boys opened our envelopes on the twenty-fourth of December this last ult., we got a big surprise. It seems the old man had received a mash note from the Secretary of the Treasury and he'd read between the lines and found out that there was a temporary slump in business, and the only way to offset it was to turn over our bonus checks to some deserving charity on Wall Street. He enclosed a substitute for same in the form of an order on a couple of haberdashers, calling for fifty dollars' worth of pearl-handled suspenders for the high-salaried guys like myself and scaling all the way down to five-dollar certificates for the office boys and the little blond kid who had been playing guessing games with the telephone switchboard for three weeks.

Well, during the first week of my married life I'd passed a resolution to never tell Mary any bad news, and the result was that I'd practically become a mute except when I made a few local stops on the way home from the office. But this time there was no way of concealing the facts or even stalling long enough to not spoil the spirit of the occasion.

I handed her the envelope without a word of warning and when she'd read the contents often enough to realize that it wasn't a joke, she let out a yell that would have waked up a porter.

I won't attempt to remember all the bright ideas she had when the first shock was over. One was to hire a lawyer to sue Mr. Waldron for the six hundred on the grounds that he had given it to me so many Christmases that it was really part of my salary.

Paul Whiteman's there this week." Only I guess they didn't both say it, but one was enough—I'm a sucker for Whiteman's music—and the other woman said, "If we go now, we can hear him twice"; I certainly had no right to overlook a bargain.

A newsreel was showing a bunch of Greeks, all twins, fishing for sponges at Tarpon Springs, Florida, when the guy next to me nudged me in the elbow and said, "Well, Poodle, how do you like the big town?"

"Listen, Cuckoo," I said, "you've got me mixed up with some other dog. You and I are strangers." I said, "and it suits me fine to continue the relationship."

So he said, "Your parents would hate to see the change in you," he said, "They never would have got the swell head just because they live in New York."

I said, "People don't get the swell head on account of living in New York. They get embarrassed, unless they're crazy, like you."

So he said, "I'm not crazy, Poodle," he said, "but I am under observation."

"Why not?" I said, "You're talking as loud as a Congressman, and even sillier."

So he said, "I mean I'm under observation at Graves' Hospital, on Fifty-seventh," he said, "I don't want you to mention that when you write home."

"I'm not liable to," I said, "I don't write home because there's nobody left to write to, and if I did, I couldn't mention you because I don't know your name."

He dropped his voice to a shout.

"I'll tell you my name," he said, "though you know it as well as I do. I'm Phil Hughes. There!" he said, "How does that strike you?"

So he said, "I haven't any idea why you want to keep up this sham. Your mother's son couldn't be very bad, but if you're mixed up in a shady business of any kind, I won't squeal on you," he said, "I won't even say I saw you if I ever go back to Oconowoc."

I asked him if that was where we came from and he said, "Just as if you didn't know!" So I asked him what was my name and he said, "Ben Collins, the same as your dad's, but everybody called you Poodle because you looked like a poodle and still do." I thanked him and then I said, "Now listen once more: my real name is none of your business. But it ain't Ben Collins and nobody but you calls me Poodle or ever called me Poodle much as I may look like one, and besides that, the only Oconowoc I ever heard of is in Wisconsin—there couldn't be two of them—and I was never west of Parkersburg, Pennsylvania, in all my life."

So he said, "You better not talk so loud, Poodle, or they'll put you out," he said, "You've got some reason for changing your identity. I don't like to pry into your affairs, though I'd like to know what you're doing and I hope it's honest for your mother's sake."

So I said, "I'll tell you. I'm making an honest effort to hear Whiteman's band, but the competition has got me licked." So he said, "I'd like to know what you're doing for a living," and I said, "I'll tell you another piece of truth: I was making an honest living, but I ain't making any living at all right now because I lost my job." So he said, "If that's true and you can prove it's true, I'll give you a job, but we'll have to leave here and go somewhere else to discuss it."

And as the ushers reached the same decision at the same time, my pal, Phil Hughes, and his pal, Poodle, marched out of the theater to the strains of "Rhapsody in Blue."

I THOUGHT that when he saw me in broad daylight, he might realize his mistake and admit it. But no; I was still Poodle on Seventh Avenue and still Poodle when we got out of the taxi at Graves' Hospital on Fifty-seventh Street. He took me up to the seventh floor and introduced me to a nurse as Mr. Collins, a young man he used to know in Oconowoc. He asked the nurse to send for Dr. Gregory. The nurse said that the doctor was somewhere in the hospital and he said to send him to his room. The room is a nice, big room and full of books about travel in this country and Europe.

While he waited, Mr. Hughes said that he was allowed to go out alone after nine in the morning provided he reported at the hospital for lunch and was in for good by five in the afternoon. The doctor had been after him to employ a companion to go around with him daytimes, not because there was danger of him doing anything rash, but to keep him from spending too much money. If I wanted the job, I could have it because it would make him feel good to think he was helping my mother's son.

While he waited, Mr. Hughes said that he was allowed to go out alone after nine in the morning provided he reported at the hospital for lunch and was in for good by five in the afternoon. If I wanted the job, I could have it because it would make him feel good to think he was helping my mother's son.

Finally the doctor showed up and Mr. Hughes introduced me to him: "Dr. Gregory, this is a boy from my home town. We used to call him Poodle Collins and now he resents the nickname and denies the rest of it. But if he meets with your approval, I'll take him as a companion, and we've already agreed on terms."

The doctor said he would like to talk to me alone, and we went out to some visitors' room or something and I thought that as soon as I told him the truth, Poodle would die the death of a dog and I'd be as far out of a job as I was this morning. But get this: the doctor said his own name was Tyson, not Gregory, only Mr. Hughes insisted that he was Dr. Gregory and that he'd known him in Cleveland, where Dr. Tyson has never been. Mr. Hughes makes Dr. Tyson's checks to cash because Dr. Tyson doesn't like to endorse them with the name Gregory. This check I've got is made out to cash because I'd have trouble establishing myself as Ben Collins or Poodle and Mr. Hughes won't believe my name is anything else. Dr. Tyson said that if I was on the level it didn't make any difference what my name was or where I came from; he wanted Mr. Hughes to have somebody with him when he's wandering around, to prevent him buying the corner of Forty-second and Fifth Avenue and starting a rival Radio City. He gets a big monthly check from a trust fund and he tries to get rid of it as fast as he can. My six hundred a month may save him six times that amount and spare Dr. Tyson a lot of worry.

The fella is harmless and no bad habits. He likes to go to matinees and picture shows and baseball in the summer. Won't that be tough, if Poodle can hold his job! And Dr. Tyson thinks I can if I pretend I came from Oconowoc and know everybody I'm supposed to know, though the doctor says their records show that Mr. Hughes didn't live in Oconowoc and only spent a couple of summers there.

The doctor naturally wanted references and the only one I could give was Waldron's, with the old man still in Palm Beach. But he telephoned to the treasurer and the vice-president, and what they said must have satisfied him. If it hadn't, I'd have gone down there and shot up the joint.

So that's about all. I'm a seventy-two-hundred-dollar day nurse named Poodle. I spend eight hours a day with a crazy person that pays me and the rest of the time with one that doesn't. Only she ain't around just now, and maybe she won't be for quite a while. Because it seems that she called up Waldron's a half hour before my regular lunch hour today and Waldron's had a new switchboard gal, which I don't blame her for, but the gal they fired had forgotten to leave instructions with the new one protecting me, and the new one had never heard my name, but said to wait and she would make inquiries. Evidently she told Mary the truth, which was that I hadn't been connected with the place since February fourth. So when I got to Bayside this evening, there was no Parker sedan to meet me at the station and for the first time in months I had to use my key to open the Love Nest door. On the table in the hall there was twenty dollars and a note. It's short and I'll read it to you:

"I am going home to my mother and I wish I had never left her and never had met a man like you. I did not know there was such people in the world, people who can deliberately lie and lie to the person they have promised to love and cherish and who have made as many sacrifices for you as I. I do not know and certainly don't wish to know the name of the woman with whom you have been associating all the weeks when you pretended you were still at work. When you have given her up and when you have secured a position and can support a true and loyal wife as she should be supported and when you have convinced me that you are through once and for all with the lies and deceptions and frauds and infidelity which you have been practising and laughing in your sleeve at the loving wife who has sacrificed her whole life to make you happy, perhaps then and only then I may perhaps come back and resume my own humiliating position as your slave whom you have treated worse than the harem of Italy and Europe. Until that time I ask for you to not communicate with me in any way, shape or manner as you will receive no reply. Kindly be careful not to throw ashes and lighted cigarettes on the floor and I imagine that when this money which I am giving you runs out your huzzy will gladly supply you with ample to supply your needs extravagant as they may be and as I know they are. Please do not insult me further by bringing that woman into this house."

Well, I guess Mary deserves a vacation and I'm going to let her have one at least as long as the one I've enjoyed; maybe a couple of months longer.
